W. AND A. MONTHLY RENTAL WILL GO UP, BELIEF OF CANDLER

Railroad Commission Chairman of Opinion Increase Will Be Between $15,000 and $25,000

GIVES CALIF. GOVERNOR STATE ROAD'S HISTORY

Mr. Candler in Favor of Road Being Taken Over by State, but Does Not Believe This Will Be Done

It is the opinion of C. M. Candler, chairman of the state railroad commission, that when the Western and Atlantic railroad (the state's railroad property) is re-leased in 1919 the monthly rental will be increased from $35,001 received under the present lease, to between $50,000 and $60,000.

Personally Mr. Candler is of the opinion that the road should be taken over by the state at the end of the present lease, extended from Atlanta to the sea and operated by the state, but he does not believe that this will be done. He thinks that public opinion generally will favor a re-leasing of the property and that for this reason a new lease will be entered into.

Mr. Candler favors the state taking over and operating the property, not primarily to make money but for the influence such a course of action would exert toward the maintenance of just and reasonable freight rates.

REPLY TO JOHNSON.

These and other very interesting conclusions are contained in Mr. Candler's reply to a recent telegram from Governor Hiram Johnson of California. Governor Johnson wired Mr. Candler that the state of California was considering a proposition to purchase and operate the Western Pacific railroad and was making an investigation and gathering data.

He said that the experience of the state of Georgia with the Western and Atlantic railroad was being frequently referred to in California, and that inasmuch as there was much confusion in the minds of the people of that state regarding the road's history he would like Mr. Candler to furnish him an authentic account of the railroad, the reasons why the state of Georgia abandoned its operation and whether Georgia's experience with this road could be considered a fair test of a government-owned railway property.

Mr. Candler's reply to this telegram is not only interesting because of the interesting facts it records and for the conclusions of the writer but it is also interesting for the reason that the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic railroad is just now the one big question engaging the attention of the people of Georgia and one which will demand the best thought and work of the 1915-16 legislature which must arrange the terms of the new lease.

GIVES FULL DETAILS.

In part Mr. Candler's reply follows:

"The Western and Atlantic railroad was built and is owned by the state of Georgia. It extends from Atlanta, Ga., to Chattanooga, Tenn., a distance of 138.42 miles, of which 121.67 miles are in Georgia and 15.42 miles in Tennessee.

"Its construction, as a state enterprise, was authorized by the general assembly of Georgia in 1836, the first appropriation therefor from the treasury being $250,000. The territory traversed by the road had been in 1826 only recently ceded by the state by the Indians. It was a broken, rough country, rich in possibilities, but with a very small white population.

"Georgia had been originally settled on the eastern coast, beginning at Savannah and extending up the Savannah river to Augusta and thence westward through eastern into middle Georgia. The site now occupied by Atlanta was the western frontier of the white settlement. Charleston and Savannah interests had in 1830 and 1833 begun the construction of railroads westward into the interior—into east and middle Georgia. Cotton was already being extensively cultivated in these sections, and for this commerce Charleston and Savannah were the chief competitors. The need of connections with the great west also soon began to be felt.

"Efforts were made to enlist private interests in the construction of a railroad from the Chattahoochee river, the objective of the Charleston and Savannah railroads, toward Cincinnati and the west.

NATURAL GATEWAY.

"The present site of Chattanooga was a natural gateway and the head of navigation on the Tennessee river. These efforts to secure the construction of the desired link between the coast roads building westward to the Chattahoochee and the west, by private capital, were not successful.

"The state felt a deep concern in having this western connection and in securing this construction through the thinly settled and only partially developed Cherokee section.

"Private interests declining to undertake its construction, the state decided to do so.

"At that time there were less than a thousand miles of railroads in the world.

"Actual work of construction began in 1837 and progressed slowly in the face of many difficulties.

"The track did not reach Chattanooga until 1851; the road was not fully completed and equipped with rolling stock, depots and needed sidetracks and terminals until 1857.

"Its actual cost because of its manner of construction and the fact that it was put into operation in part long before completion and earnings put back into construction, is not easily ascertained, but in 1858 was estimated by the then governor, Joseph E. Brown, as about $4,500,000.

"Except for a period during the Civil war when because of hostilities along its line operations were suspended, the road was continuously operated by the state until leased in 1870 to a private corporation for a rental of $25,000 per month for a period of twenty years. It was released in 1890 for a period of thirty years for a monthly rental of

An obstructive dog and a slippery pavement caused two right legs to break just above two ankles at exactly 4 o'clock last night, according to reports of the accidents, Sam N. Hodges, 17 Willow street, and Rudolph Hubert, 53 Gasknell street, are now resting in the same ward at Grady hospital.

Sam N. Hodges was riding a motorcycle on Williams street between Fourth street and North avenue when the machine rolled over a dog. Hodges was thrown off, he says, but, gallopping riderless, he clung to the handlebars of the machine, which was still swiftly moving. The motorcycle turned, however, and crushed his right leg against the curbstone. A Grady ambulance was hastily summoned, and Hodges was taken to the hospital with a broken leg.

Randolph Hubert was riding a horse when, at the corner of Bell and Decatur streets, the animal slipped and fell on top of him, breaking his right leg. A Grady ambulance rushed him to the hospital.

Hidden Treasures Are Brought to Light as Soldiers Dig Trenches

PARIS, March 6.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The continual upheaval of earth in the war of trenches is bringing many hidden treasures to light. A French reservist unearthed a package of bonds worth a hundred thousand francs ($25,000), which he promptly handed over to his officer.

French, English and German coins to the value of $400 were unearthed in a trench near La Bassee by an English soldier. Another found a gold carved necklace of the seventeenth century.

LASSEN PEAK BELCHES BLACK SMOKE AND ASHES

Bumpas Hell, Feared by Scientists, Is Also Showing Activity

(By Associated Press.)

REDDING, Cal. March 20.—In magnitude and duration, Lassen Peak's eruption around could today exceded all previous eruptions.

Beginning at dawn a great column of dense black smoke rose from the Volcano's principal crater and spread a pall over the countryside for miles. At 5 p. m. the eruption ceased, but for an hour longer ashes continued to fall fifteen miles away.

Whether other craters surrounding the main vent were active today could not be ascertained owing to the black billows from the peak, whose funnel has an extreme length of 1,900 feet and an average width of 200 feet.

Yesterday, however, two other vents, one in a desolate region three miles away from the peak and known as Bumpas Hell, were unusually active.

Scientists who inspected Lassen peak last summer, it was recalled today, gave this warning:

"If Bumpas Hell wakes up look out."

ENTHUSIASM OVER FAIR SWELLS FUND TO $33,000 MARK

Campaign Moves Along Rapidly of Its Own Momentum, Saturday's Subscriptions Amounting to $2,600

COMPLETION OF CANVASS THIS WEEK IS PREDICTED

Two New Committees Are Named and All Are Expected to Begin Their Work Tomorrow

The campaign to sell the stock of the Southeastern Fair association moved rapidly along Saturday—practically of its own momentum, and the subscriptions are known to have passed the $33,000 mark although the committee chairman will not report to General Chairman Ivan E. Allen until Monday at noon. The subscriptions reported Saturday were mostly made without solicitation, yet they amounted to $2,600.

While several of the committees have not yet perfected their organization and few of them worked Saturday because of the business pressure that the day brings, Mr. Allen and a number of the chairmen of the sub-committees expressed belief that by the end of this week $75,000 stock will be subscribed.

M. Rich, chairman of the Whitehall street committee, stated that no effort was made to take an active canvas by his committee, but despite that fact a voluntary subscription from the Southern Book concern for $100 was received during the day.

ENTHUSIASM GROWS.

"The sentiment for the fair is growing daily," Mr. Rich said, "and I have no doubt that the fund will be quickly raised. The business men are realizing that by dividing the payments into twenty-five installments the fair association has made it easy for everybody to boost the work. My committee will likely resume work Monday, when we hope to be able to report a number of subscriptions."

The Broad street committee, L. L. Shivers, chairman, was one of the few to make a canvass of any part of its district, and it secured five $100 subscriptions within a few minutes.

Andrew J. Miller, of the Mitchell street committee, reported a subscription, although he says that his committee will be unable to start its canvass until Tuesday.

The Peachtree street committee, headed by Loyd B. Parks, is one of several important committees which has not yet started its work. Mr. Parks, however, expresses confidence that the fund will be raised in a record time and declares that the enthusiasm for the fair is growing daily.

O. T. Camp and S. L. Rhorer, committee chairmen, declare that they will start work in their districts early in the week, with the prospect of a number of good subscriptions.

COMPLETION SOON.

General Chairman Allen declared last night he expected to work under high pressure this week in the hope and belief that all of the $75,000 stock would be subscribed before next Saturday night.

"I hope to see the subscription total $50,000 very early in the week, said Mr. Allen, "for then it means that the $150,000 appropriations by the city and the county become immediately available, and work on the fair grounds at Lakewood can start. The actual beginning of work on the grounds will give employment to a large number of men.

"I expect practically all of the committees to begin work Monday, and when they do start you can watch for the fair stock to jump quickly and steadily upwards until $75,000 is secured."

Mr. Allen has announced the appointment of two new committees, which will meet with the others at a noon luncheon at the chamber of commerce building Monday. The new committees are:

Farm Implement Dealers' Committee—W. H. Stents, chairman; W. J. Dabney, Julius Fleibleman, M. F. Holahan and Clyde L. King.

Real Estate Men's Committee—R. R. Otis, chairman; M. L. Thrower, S. B. Turman, Harris G. White and Charles P. Glover.

SNATCH THIEVES GRAB PURSE OF MISS M. BURNE

In the middle of a dark block on Forrest avenue last night Miss M. Burne, who lives at 181 Forrest avenue, was held up by two negroes and her purse, containing $18, together with a gold necklace and locket, were snatched from her.

She screamed and tried to resist the negroes, but they overpowered her and were gone with their loot before she could get a description of them.

FREEMAN TO INTRODUCE NEW JITNEY ORDINANCE

Councilman Declares Lee Measure, Now Pending, Entirely Too Drastic

Increased activity over the "jitney bus" problem is being noted about the city hall. Councilman Sam Freeman, of the Tenth ward, has announced that at the next meeting he will introduce a substitute for the bus regulation ordinance, now pending before that body.

Councilman Jesse B. Lee, who introduced the ordinance now pending, will call his joint committee together during next week to take definite action on the measure.

Records of the city clerk's office show that within the past two weeks nearly forty people have received licenses to hire or rent their automobiles under the regular hack and taxi-cab law. The price for this license is $25 per year.

Councilman Freeman in announcing that he will introduce a new ordinance to regulate the "jitneys," vigorously assailed the measure introduced by Councilman Lee.

MEASURE DRASTIC.

"The so-called Lee ordinance," said Councilman Freeman, "would have the effect of prohibiting the operation of 'jitneys' in Atlanta. I agree that they should be regulated, but not by a drastic measure like that pending before council, which wouldn't even give them a fighting chance.

"I wrote to Los Angelese, Cal., and to several other cities, where the "jitneys" have been flourishing for some time, and secured much data about them. I then outlined my ideas of an ordinance to City Attorney Mayson, who has drafted the paper in legal shape.

"My ordinance would require a tax of $25 for five passenger cars, the same tax now paid by taxi-cabs, and the owner would be required to give a $5,000 bond to respond to an action for damages.

"The city already has the charter authority to name a committee of examiners to pass upon the abilities and character of applicants for a permit to operate automobiles. My ordinance requires the applicant for a license to secure such a permit from such a board for his chauffeur before the license is granted.

NOT PROHIBITIVE.

"It requires the posting of a proper sign, and generally regulates, but does not prohibit the "jitneys."

Councilman Lee's ordinance would require a tax of $100 for each car, a $10,000 bond and certificate of character and ability from the driver.

Councilman Lee in speaking of the "jitney" situation Saturday declared that he has recently talked with several of the operators and that they tell him that they average about $15 per day in fares.

TIRES OF SUPPORTING HIS CHILDREN, SO KILLS THEM

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 20.—Samuel Liebman, of New York, charged by police of that city with throwing his two small children out of a fifth story window, resulting in the death of one and the serious injury of the other, was arrested here tonight.

Liebman admitted his identity and, according to detectives, said he threw the children out of the window because he was tired of supporting them.

Passion Play Christ Will Go to War, to Slay Kaiser's Foes

Potter of Oberammergau, Famous the World Over for Part He Played in Passion Play, Fights for Kaiser

(Special Correspondence.)

OBERAMMERGAU, Bavaria, March 6.—Anton Lang, who gained world fame by playing the role of Christ in the last two performances of the Passion Play, has hurried away to the front to kill and maim his fellow men in the name of war.

He has started from his home in this village to join a new corps of troops equipped with skis which the Germans have formed to fight the French chasseurs in the Vosges.

Behind him he has left his wife and three children and a host of the villagers, the majority of whom have appeared in the Passion Play—torn by conflicting emotions.

They are intensely patriotic, and to them the Fatherland means everything and yet they are shocked.

It is almost inconceivable to them that Anton Lang, the man who played the role of Christus with such feeling and spiritualness as perhaps no other person had, should now take up a gun and seek to slay his fellow men—even in defense of the Fatherland.

GENERAL FORECAST GIVES GEORGIA FAIR WEATHER

Other Southern States May Not Fare So Well, Says Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Frost warnings have been issued for the gulf states, including northern and central Florida, the weather bureau announced tonight in its general forecast. Temperatures in the south, it was stated, were from 10 to 20 degrees below the seasonal average.

Snow fell last night and today at points as far south as Meridian, Miss., and Selma, Ala., but it was believed crop damage would be negligible. The snow quickly melted.

Snow was forecast Sunday night or Monday in Oklahoma, with rain or snow in Arkansas and northern Texas. Generally fair weather was forecast in other southern states Sunday, to continue Monday in all but Mississippi and Louisiana.

British Lose 240 Officers Killed in Just Two Battles

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 20.—Another list of forty-five officers, including officers of Indian regiments, killed at Neuve Chapelle and St. Eloi, was given out today. These additions bring the total officers killed in these two battles up to 240. The same list adds seventy-nine to the wounded, making the total of officers wounded 395.

Since the beginning of the war the British army on the continent has lost 1,543 officers killed and 2,823 wounded, while 705 have been reported missing. This give a grand total officers' casualty list of 5,081, men.

MRS. FOSTER'S GOLD IS SEIZED BY BERLIN POLICE

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN (Via London), March 21.—Mrs. Nona McAdoo Foster, sister of the American Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, Friday entered a formal complaint with the American ambassador that the police had come to her house on March 8 and forced her, under threat of searching the apartment, to surrender 2,900 marks ($725) in gold she had stored away for emergency.

The ambassador immediately had the complaint put into affidavit form, preparatory to making a demand on the German foreign office for the return of the money.

Mrs. Foster claimed she had surrendered the money only when convinced it was useless to resist, but did so under protest and received a receipt which she cabled for paper money.

Without waiting for the complaint, the German authorities immediately began an investigation. This disclosed that the gold had been illegally purchased at a premium by Angelo Scarpa, an adopted brother of Mrs. Foster, with whom she had been residing here for several months. The brother, in a sworn statement to the police, declared he had bought the gold from a milk man for 1 per cent premium, not knowing it was in violation of the law. He said he had to go to the United States and had heard tickets could be purchased only with gold. Later, he changed his mind and decided to remain in Berlin.

Mr. Scarpa signed an affidavit that the money had been surrendered voluntarily to the authorities and that he was convinced Mrs. Foster's imperfect knowledge of the German language had led her to mistake the penalty bruque over-zealousness of the police for threats. The Reichband, on Saturday, sent Mrs. Foster a message saying gold was at her disposal at any time of need.

AMERICAN COTTON AGENT IS ARRESTED BY BRITISH

Canadian Held On Charge of Trading With the Enemy

LIVERPOOL, March 20.—(Via London.)—George Arthur Gatehouse, a Canadian living in Montreal, was taken into custody here today as he was about to sail for America. A magistrate remanded him for one week on the charge of "trading with the enemy." Details of the charge have not been revealed. Bail was refused.

Mr. Gatehouse has been abroad representing a Philadelphia concern. He admitted he had been in Holland once since his arrival in Europe last December, but declared he was innocent of any intention of trading with countries hostile to great Britain.

Company Has No Trade In Germany, Says Official

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—George A. Gatehouse represents the N. P. Sloan company, Philadelphia cotton merchants. Norman P. Sloan, a member of the company said today Gatehouse left here several months ago to establish a connection in Liverpool to take care of the selling of cotton. The company has customers among the mills in Holland,

SUCCESS OF ALLIES IN THE DARDANELLES REMAINS IN DOUBT

Despite Confidence of British and French in Reaching Constantinople Turks Contend Forts Are Impregnable

SINKING OF SHIPS GIVE DEFENDERS NEW HOPE

Recent Defeat Gives Weight to Belief That Straits Can't Be Won Without Support on Land

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 20.—With the Russian Black sea fleet reported knocking at the eastern door of the Bosphorus and six British and French battleships renewing their bombardment at the western end of the Dardanelles, London believes the fate of Constantinople today is hanging in the balance. Reports from Turkish sources, however, still profess supreme confidence in the impregnability of the defending forts which, it is claimed, have successfully weathered a bombardment extending over twenty-one days.

The admiralty's announcement of the sinking of two British and one French battleship is rather hazy as to the results achieved by this sacrifice, giving weight to the belief that the straits will not be won until naval operations are supported on land.

The French battleship Henri IV, and the British battleships Queen and Implacable are on their way east to replace the ships which at the latest the fleet will be as formidable as ever, while the Russian Black sea squadron is believed to be ready to cooperate.

Except in the case of the Bouvet, of whose crew only sixty-four were saved, casualties suffered in the bombardment of Thursday are said to be light. The British admiralty tonight published the losses among the officers on the irresistible, and although the ship was sunk and the crew had to be transferred under a hot fire, the list contains the names of only four officers killed and one severely wounded.

NEWS FROM MINES.

Part of the fleet entered the straits yesterday, but owing to unfavorable weather, the bombardment of the day before was not resumed, which probably the only object of the warships was to prevent the Turks from repairing the damage already done.

The admiralty states that steps are being taken to deal with the mines, but experts warn the public that so long as the Turks have mines in place in the strong current, which rushes through the straits the ships will be exposed to that danger. The insertion of the currents, of course, is known, but with a big fleet operating, some of the ships must enter the area thus mined, and, lying across the straits to fire broadsides, offer a large target to floating mines.

The intentions as to the landing of a force are closely guarded, but it is known that an army of considerable size is ready to attack the Turkish forces along the Dardanelles when the admirals advise that the moment has arrived.

Although fighting of more or less intensity is always in progress along the German and western fronts, there have been no very important operations in the last few days.

Germans claim small successes against the British near Ypres and against the French at Notre Dame de Lorette, north of Arras, and to have repulsed French attacks in Champagne, the Argonne forest and the Vosges.

NO LARGE OPERATIONS.

In North Poland there have been several affairs of the outposts, but neither army apparently is attempting any large operations while the ground remains frozen, unless one Russian movement turns out to be more important than it at present appears to be, namely, a cavalry raid.

The Austrians, it is said, have been reinforced in Bukowina, and they report they have repulsed Russian attacks there and in the Carpathians, although in the latter region it has been generally understood it was the Austrians and Germans who were acting on the offensive.

Neutral steamers in European waters are having rather an uncomfortable time. The British have seized or are holding several, including the Maracas, which are suspected of having contraband for German. The Germans, besides seizing two Scandinavian oil steamers in the Baltic, have just taken the Dutch steamer Zaanstroom, loaded with eggs for England, to Zeebrugge.

Holland has formally protested to Great Britain and France against the order prohibiting the movement of goods to and from Germany via Holland.

A German aviator passed over Deal today, but was driven off after dropping two bombs, which fell into the sea perilously close to the American bark, Manga Reva.

Counter Attacks of Germans Are Beaten Off by French

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, VIA LONDON, March 20.—The following official report was issued by the war office tonight:

"At La Boiselle, northeast of Albert, the Germans, after a violent bombardment, attempted a night attack, which was repulsed. They suffered appreciable losses.

"In Champagne Friday night the enemy made a counter attack to the west of Perthes which was repulsed.

"There have been no infantry attacks to-day. Our artillery fired on a concentration of German infantry, which suffered heavily.

"In the Argonne, near Bolante, there has been a somewhat violent bombardment, without however, an infantry attack. Our progress has continued at Les Eparges. After repulsing two counter attacks of the enemy we carried the greater part of a German position around which a struggle has been going on for two days. Three times the enemy delivered counter attacks with

CARRANZA FORTIFYING VERA CRUZ FOR ATTACK

Trenches Are Dug and Barbed Wire Entanglements Erected on Outskirts

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Carranza forces are digging trenches and fortifying Vera Cruz with a series of barbed wire stockades, apparently in anticipation of attack by the Villa-Zapata forces. Advices to the state department today say the barbed wire extends from a point on the beach to the railroad a mile and a half north of the city, and will be continued to Tejeria, making a semi-circle.

Several business men from Progreso and vicinity conferred with state department officials today on conditions in Yucatan. They fear Carranza's occupation of the port, which they say will make further business impossible because of excessive taxation.

Vicar General Paredes and fifteen priests taken from Mexico City by General Obregon when he evacuated the capital, have arrived at Vera Cruz, state department dispatches say today, and General Carranza has ordered them released.

The Carranza agency received a dispatch saying Carranza forces had occupied Merida, capital of Yucatan, twenty miles south of Progreso.

Villa Troops Occupy Two Towns Near the Border

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 20.—Occupation of Mier and Camargo, Mexico, seventy miles west of Brownsville, by Villa troops was confirmed today by telephone messages from Rio Grand City. Carranza forces are reported retreating toward Matamoras.

Camargo was not burned as reported last night.

Morris Brandon Elected President of Association at Banquet Saturday

The annual founder's day banquet of the Atlanta Association of the Phi Delta Theta college fraternity was held last night at the Ansley hotel.

E. V. Carter, Jr., retiring president of the association, presided as toastmaster. The speakers were Morris Brandon, Joel T. Daves, W. A. Speer, W. T. Gentry and Frank Gillespie.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President, Morris Brandon; vice president, Dr. W. W. Blackman; treasurer, Frank Carter; reporter, Palmer Blackburn; chairman executive committee, Fred Houser.

Seventy alumni were present. Music was furnished by an orchestra and there were several vocal selections. The name of each alumnus was called and he rose and gave his college and his year of graduation. The college yells of all leages represented were given in rousing style.

DECATUR PLANNING FOR ANNUAL CLEAN-UP WEEK

Board of Trade Offers Prizes in Different Departments of Work

Active plans for the annual cleaning up week in Decatur have been arranged by the Decatur board of trade through the civic beauty committee. The cleaning up week will be observed from April 5 to April 12, the dates that have been designated by the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs.

The board of trade has offered prizes in the different departments of the work, which will be given invaluable assistance by the woman's auxiliary of the civic beauty committee and the Decatur public schools, under the supervision of Superintendent E. E. Treadwell.

The negroes of Decatur will observe cleaning up week next week and the board of trade has also offered prizes for the work of the colored citizens.

Pledges will be distributed to the people of Decatur, asking them to assist in the general cleaning up of the town.

SIMPLICITY OF THE SONG.

A gospel chorus is simply a Scripture phrase or Biblical truth linked to a melody that cannot easily be forgotten. These gospel choruses have hooks in them. They grip and hold. And the message of the song sings its way on into the heart and life.

Musicians frequently say to me: "Why do you not use classical music tunes above the style of gospel songs?" I reply: "When you can show me similar effects following such high class music in moving the hearts of men and women I will use it fast enough. Until then I shall keep to gospel songs, which have a wonderful way of reaching everybody, because they touch the soul."

II Timothy 2:15

"HE'S UP A TREE!" HE YELLED AT THE SCREEN

It was during the performance of "M'Liss" at the Grand theater recently. The hero, pursued, had guided his horse under a tree and climbed into the branches. The horsemen swept beneath him unconscious of his escape, and a man on the fifth row became so excited that he yelled, "He's up the tree! He's up the tree!" The audience laughed for twenty minutes by a watch.

PERILS OF ATLANTA IS DR. CHAPMAN'S SUBJECT

Men Only at Revival Tabernacle and Women Only at Baptist in Afternoon

Today, the beginning of the last week of the Chapman-Alexander campaign, will be marked by two monster meetings—the one for men only at the Peachtree Tabernacle at 3 p. m., when Dr. Chapman will speak on "Three Perils That Threaten Atlanta;" the other at the same hour for women only at the Baptist Tabernacle, conducted by Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. Norton and Mrs. Alexander.

The meeting tonight at the Tabernacle at 7:30 will be for everybody.

Nearly 2,000 decision cards have been signed and turned in at headquarters. These have all been referred to the various pastors to be followed up by them.

It is hoped to make the final week of the meeting notable not only for the number reached but for the deepening of the spiritual life of the churches as well. The program for the week has been built around that idea. It is as follows:

Monday, 7:30 p. m.—"The Second Coming of Christ."

Tuesday, 4 p. m.—Meeting for children in the Tabernacle; 7:30, service for everybody.

Wednesday, 4 p. m.—"The Unconscious Loss of Power;" 7:30, service for everybody.

Thursday, 3 p. m.—"The Christian's Relation to Amusements and the World;" 7:30, service for everybody.

Friday, 4 p. m.—Meeting for women only. Mrs. Alexander will speak and Mrs. Norton will sing. Mrs. Chapman will preside; 7:30, service for everybody.

Sunday, March 28, last day in the Tabernacle; 3 p. m., service for everybody; 7:30, farewell service.

Monday and Thursday at 12:30 to 1 p. m., meetings for men will be held in the ball room of the New Kimball House, the use of which has been tendered the committee especially for these meetings. Mr. J. K. Orr, the chairman of this section of the work, is inviting hundreds of business men to this half hour service and is anxious to fill the room Monday.

Corn-Mad? Use "GETS-IT," It's Sure

Makes Corns Vanish Like Magic!

A hard cap of skin makes up every corn. When you put 2 drops of "GETS-IT" on it, it shrivels up and comes right off—and there's your corn—gone by thunder! Simple as taking off your hat! That's why corn-millions have gone wild over "GETS-IT"—nothing like it ever known. Some folks, to this day, putter around with bandages, sticky tape, thick plasters, corn "pulling" salves, gouge corns out with knives, snip them with scissors, make them bleed and then howl because they can't get rid of sore corns. Use "GETS-IT." There's nothing to do but apply 2 drops. The work is done. "GETS-IT" does the rest. No pain, no ousing, no changing shoes, no limping. It never fails. Try it tonight for any corn, callus, wart or bunion. Be sure that you get "GETS-IT" and nothing else.

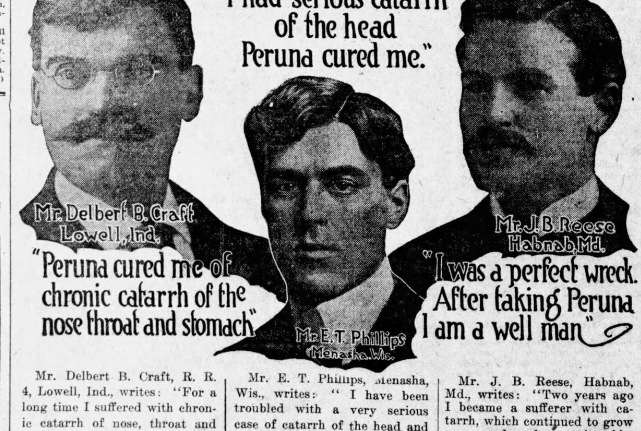
The Scourge of Chronic Catarrh



Mr. Delbert B. Craft, R. R. 4, Lowell, Ind., writes: "For a long time I suffered with chronic catarrh of nose, throat and stomach. I would continually take cold and my stomach was in bad condition. I truly suffered untold misery. I took various medicines and tried the treatment of several physicians, but I felt no better. A friend advised me to take Peruna. I wrote to the Peruna Medical Department, who prescribed treatment. As soon as I commenced to take Peruna, I was surprised at the relief it gave me. I kept on taking it until I was cured. I would advise all those afflicted with catarrh to use your remedy. I am a great friend of Peruna, for it cured me of a bad case of catarrh."

Mr. E. T. Phillips, Menasha, Wis., writes: "I have been troubled with a very serious case of catarrh of the head and throat for a number of years, and I tried many prescriptions from good physicians, but in the end I found myself no better. On the advice of a friend who had used Peruna with good results I purchased a bottle, and the effects from that one bottle were so encouraging that I continued its use and I think I used about six bottles in all, which I am glad to say cured me completely of this troublesome disease. I can therefore conscientiously recommend it and am a firm believer in the power of Peruna to cure catarrh."

Mr. J. B. Reese, Habnab, Md., writes: "Two years ago I became a sufferer with catarrh, which continued to grow worse and made me miserable. I could scarcely smell at all, and my taste had almost entirely left me. My head ached constantly, and at times had high fever and bleeding at the nose. I was a perfect wreck. I tried several doctors, but derived no relief. I read in one of your little booklets called 'Ills of Life,' of Peruna being a remedy for catarrh, and procured a bottle at once. After the use of one bottle I felt some better, so I tried the second and then the third, and now I am a well man. My health is much better than it has been for three years. All praise is due Peruna."

NEIL O'BRIEN IS DELIGHT OF REAL MINSTREL LOVER

Newest and Best in Minstrelsy Will Be Seen Here April 1

Minstrel shows may come and minstrel shows may go, but the real lover of minstrelsy is ever on the lookout for the comer. And in Neil O'Brien's troupe, which will play an engagement at the Atlanta theater Thursday matinee and night, April 1, are the latest and best, the newest and the most progressive ideas in blackface.

Neil O'Brien's show is not only a comer, it has arrived. Atlantians who saw him last year saw a good show. This year they will see a better. For Neil O'Brien is of the younger generation of minstrels who has seen the good things in the old shows and likewise the bad, grasped the good and let the bad alide, and built up an organization around him perfect to the last detail.

Mr. O'Brien himself is the bright, particular star; but he is no limelight hog. Instead, he has given attention to the most minute parts of his production, polished them, and made them sparkle. The first part is completely new, rich in artistic design. The olio has been entitled "Demon Rum," or "A Dry Town."

There is a big dancing number, and while the stars of last year's show have been retained, there are many new ones, such as Harry Van Fossen, Eddie Mazier, Pete Detzel, Carpar Nowak, Steve Weher, Doran, Strong and others.

PRIZE BIRD CONTEST OF BURROUGHS CLUB

Grammar School Children Will Compete With Lists of Bird Houses

A prize has been offered by the Atlanta Burroughs Nature club to the boy and girl of the city and county grammar schools who reports the greatest number of bird houses occupied by birds other than English sparrows and pigeons.

All who enter the contest must send their lists to Mrs. J. R. Macdonald 12 Peachtree way, R. F. D. No. 6, not later than May 22. The number of bird houses, the exact location of each, the date when discovered occupied, the name and description of the bird and the name, age, grade, school and address of the child must be given.

The nature club recommends the following to those who wish to attract birds: United States department of agriculture bulletin No. 609 on bird houses and how to build them; bulletin No. 621 on how to attract birds; Trafton's method of attracting birds; illustrated dictionary and note book.

The club urges the planting of trees and shrubs to attract birds, and the placing of bird houses and baths. Water in large quantities should be placed where birds can get at it, as water is very necessary for bird life, the club states.

Don't Be Fussy About Eating

Your Stomach Will Digest Any Kind of Food When Given the Proper Assistance.

We are prone to fall into the error of singling out some article of food and soundly berating the fiend who first invented the dish. The habit grows with some people till almost all food is put on the blacklist. This is all wrong. What is required is a little assistance with those agencies upon which scientific students for many years have set their seal of approval because they have become absolute facts. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for all stomach disorders are recognized; they have a fine record; they are rated reliable, dependable and worthy of confidence just as the president of a big bank puts his O K on a depositor's check. And so you can eat what you want, whatever you like, knowing well that should indigestion, sour risings, gas formations, fermentations or any other stomach distress arise, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in a few moments will put you right.

Coated tongue, bad breath, heartburn, belching, flatulency, bloat—all the symptoms of digestive troubles disappear quickly when these tablets are used. They are not a cure for anything but dyspepsia and kindred complaints. But they have brought relief to more sufferers from digestive disease than all the patent medicines and doctor's prescriptions put together.

The stomach does the heaviest work of any of the bodily organs, yet it's the one we treat with the least regard. We eat too much of the wrong kind of food at any time. The patient stomach stands such treatment as long as it can and then it rebels. You get notice of the rebellion in the shape of the gases and pains caused by undigested, fermenting food.

W. & A. MONTHLY RENTAL WILL GO UP, BELIEF OF CANDLER

$56,001, all betterments and improvements made by the lessee to become the property of the state on the termination of the lease. The lessee also pays to the state an annual tax on its net earnings.

"The Hon. Hooper Alexander, of Atlanta, now United States district attorney for the northern district of Georgia, for several years a leading member of the general assembly of Georgia and for years chairman of the house standing committee on the Western and Atlantic railroad, is a recognized authority on the history, development and operations of this railroad. Every detail of its inception, construction and operation, by the state and by lessees, has been dug out and verified by him.

ROAD'S EARNINGS.

"I am enclosing herewith a printed pamphlet by him containing some of his discussions on this subject, and for reply to your inquiry as to whether the road paid under state operation, I especially call your attention to the eighth article at page twenty-eight, in which are authentic statements as to earnings. The statements of fact therein made have never been disputed, so far as I know, and they have been widely disseminated throughout this state in the newspapers and otherwise.

"There can be, in my opinion, no successful contradiction of the fact that the road was profitable under state operation.

"Personally, I favor its extension to the sea and its operation by the state after the termination of the present lease, not primarily to make money, but for the influence it could exert toward the maintenance of just and reasonable rates.

"You ask why the state abandoned state operation in 1870 and leased its property.

"During the Civil war the road had been dismantled and destroyed. Sherman's march was down its length to Atlanta.

"With the close of the war Georgia found herself heavily in debt; her citizens absolutely impoverished. The federal government was demanding and proceeding to collect over $600,000 due on the direct war tax of 1864.

"A state convention met in the fall of 1865 for the purpose of re-establishing the state government.

"With the state road as security, the state was enabled in 1866 to sell $3,600,000 of bonds. The proceeds were used for payment of the federal tax, for past due debts of the state, for current expenses, and $315,000 was advanced to the state road, for its rehabilitation.

"The road had been returned to the state by the military authorities in September, 1865.

"From September 25, 1865, to July 1, 1868, it was operated by the state, the government of which was in the hands of Georgians.

OFFICIAL RECORDS.

"According to official records, as analyzed by Mr. Alexander, during this period the net earnings of the road were $1,267,000; it had repaid the state the advance of $315,000 from the proceeds of the 1866 bonds, and in addition thereto $112,000 in cash, and had on hand cash and in cash assets on July 1, 1868, about $143,000. This period of honest, capable and profitable operation was under the superintendency of Campbell Wallace.

"Under the operations of federal reconstruction measures the state government, on July 1, 1866, was taken from the hands of the white people of Georgia and turned over to 'scalawags,' 'carpetbaggers' and negroes. An orgie of grafting and robbery of the public at once commenced. The state's railroad was a shining mark for such enterprising officials.

"Within six months after the 'scalawag' government took charge the state treasury was practically empty and treasury receipts had vanished. For two years Georgia was the helpless prey of grafters and robbers. Rolling stock, rails, equipment, and materials were sold to the road at monstrously exorbitant prices and rake-offs given to its officials, or sold and paid for, but never delivered.

"These are facts revealed in subsequent investigations by legislative committees.

"A few honest Georgians were still left in the legislature in 1868, 1869 and 1870. They were a small minority and practically powerless.

"Seeing the inevitable destruction ahead for the state road, those men found some among the scalawag government who were disposed to honesty. As the only method to save the state's road from utter wreckage and ruin, these two parties decided that it was best to discontinue state operation, get the property out of the hands of the dishonest executive officials, and lease it to a private corporation.

PLAN SUCCESSFUL.

"This plan was successful and the road was leased as already stated.

"Half of the rental was devoted to the maintenance of our starved state public school system.

"Upon the expiration of the first lease, in 1890, the state was still in debt; its public schools still needy; the road practically without rolling stock and equipment.

"These conditions were emphasized by those who favored a new lease. The generation of public men in offices in 1890 had little acquaintance with the details of successful state operation prior to the war, and a very accurate knowledge of the grafting by officials during the reconstruction regime, and without difficulty were persuaded to the policy of re-leasing; the re-lease of 1890 followed.

"In my opinion, the road will again be leased at the expiration of the present lease.

"This will not be because state operation was not profitable. It will be because the is and always has been considerable conservatism in Georgia, and a somewhat natural inclination to follow precedent and to walk in the well known paths. There is and will be more or less hesitation at giving up an assured $50,000 or $60,000 per month rental under a new lease for the experiment of state operation unknown to this generation.

EXPECTS RE-LEASE.

"It will also be urged that our public school system must not be deprived of any of its present definite but all too meager revenue.

"These and other suggestions have been, are being and will be pressed by many honestly opposed to government ownership or operation of utilities, and will have their effect, so that I believe our state will once more take what some insist is the safe course, and re-lease the road.

"I trust the foregoing, in a measure, at least, answers your inquiries.

"Should there remain further points upon which you desire information, I shall be pleased to answer as I may be able.

"Very truly yours,
"C. M. CANDLER,
"Chairman."

Nature Will Cure Constipation

All she needs is a very little help.

Constipation is caused by accumulated waste in the Colon (Large Intestine), which, under our present mode of living, Nature cannot entirely remove without a little help.

The rank poisons in this waste get into the blood circulation, too, and make us feel depressed, blue, bilious and incompetent—really sick if allowed to go a little too far.

All the help that Nature asks, however, is Internal Bathing with Warm Water, applied by the "J. B. L. Cascade." This, in a perfectly natural and rational way, cleans out all the waste and poisons from the Colon, and keeps it as sweet, clean and pure, by occasional use, as Nature demands for a perfectly healthy condition.

So invariably successful has this new and improved method of Internal Bathing proved to be, that over 500,000 Americans are now enthusiastically using it to cure Constipation, ward off disease and keep them bright, vigorous and efficient.

ATLANTA ATHLETIC CLUB PLANS FOR BOND ISSUE

Members Will Discuss Issue of $150,000 Friday Night March 26

A meeting of the members of the Atlanta Athletic club has been called for Friday night, March 26, for the purpose of asking their authority to issue new bonds on the club to the amount of $150,000.

The club now has bonds outstanding to the amount of $101,000. To complete the new club house at East Lake, to furnish the same, to place the grounds in proper condition, and to make various minor improvements, will cost approximately $49,000. It is proposed by issuing new bonds of $150,000 to take up the present outstanding bonds and to provide the necessary $49,000 for the above purposes. This will give the club everything it needs and will consolidate its debts in one bond issue.

Asa G. Candler, Jr., president of the club, states that a plan has been worked out whereby the current revenue of the club will not be called upon to finance the bond issue. This plan is as follows:

From initiation fees $2,000 will be set apart every year in a savings bank to draw compound interest, and this in twenty-one years will produce $150,000 to retire the bonds.

From the increase in dues from $30 to $60 per year, which with a membership of 1,000 will produce $10,000 addition per year, $9,000 a year will be set apart to pay the interest on the bonds at 6 per cent.

Thus the club, Mr. Candler points out, will have the old dues of $50 per year intact for operating expenses, instead of being compelled, as in the past, to take out of these dues both the sinking fund and the interest on the club's bonds.

MEMBERS WILL PROFIT.

The club under this plan, Mr. Candler believes, will be able to give its members more for their money than they have ever got bfore, and he says it will be the policy of the club to make things as comfortable and attractive for the members as possible.

The new club house at East Lake will be completed and ready for occupancy May 1. The locker room and baths will not be used until that time. It had been planned to use them before the balance of the house was ready, but this plan was given up because occupancy of any part of the building would in a measure involve the acceptance of the whole, and it was deemed advisable to wait until final inspection and approval by the architect of the completed structure.

However, provision will be made for members to reserve lockers next week. A good many have already placed their cards on lockers, but some confusion arose from cards dropping off and next week the club will have a man at East Lake to take reservations and record them in a book, so that every member who reserves a locker will be sure of getting it.

Water for the baths in the new club will be taken from the lake and will be filtered, plans for the filtration plant being now under way.

Gentlemen who contemplate applying for membership in the club would be wise to file their applications without delay, Mr. Candler states, because more than seventy-five new members have been taken in since the membership meeting a short time ago and the constitutional limit leaves room for only about one hundred more.

DECATUR BOARD PLANNING MEMBERSHIP CANVASS

The new membership campaign of the Decatur board of trade will be launched in a short time. A large and representative membership committee has been named by President W. J. Dabney, of the board and the first meeting was held Friday night when preliminary plans were discussed.

The committee, which is under the chairmanship of Past President Charles D. McKinney, is made up of the officers, directors and committee chairmen of the board, as follows:

President W. J. Dabney; vice presidents H. G. Hastings, E. H. Wilson, W. Bayne Gibson; treasurer, A. R. Almon; secretary, Raymond Daniel; directors, Scott Candler, J. O. Bell and Wiley S. Ansley; committee chairmen, G. B. Scott, George R. Jones, R. E. Carroll, J. A. McCrary, J. Howell Green, Louis Estes, H. M. Stanley, M. E. Nash, O. C. Burgess, George M. Napier, W. H. S. Hamilton, Hooper Alexander, C. A. Blackstock, J. E. Bodenhamer and R. C. Eve.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.—(Advt.)

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

FOR DIABETES DROPSY, KIDNEY, BLADDER TROUBLE

Clean Clogged Kidneys. Try Old Folks' Recipe of Buchu and Juniper.

When we eat too much sugar or sweets it has a bad effect on the kidneys. The kidneys get clogged and sluggish and hurt. You experience scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage of urine; forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; stitches and pains in the back; bone pains; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen, puffy eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and despondency. Diabetes, Dropsy. Don't delay a moment, but get from any reliable druggist a bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a tablespoonful after meals. Drink plenty of fresh water and abstain from eating too much sugar, sweets or highly seasoned foods. Your kidneys and bladder will then act fine and natural. Stuart's Buchu and Juniper has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids and purify the urine so it no longer hurts you to pass water. It is old folks' recipe for weak kidneys and bladder and strengthens these organs and cures Diabetes and reduces all swellings.—(Advt.)

SOUTHERN PREPARES FOR WORK ON DOUBLE TRACK

Is Installing Modern Passing Tracks at Six Different Points

The Southern railway is installing modern passing tracks of the lap type at six points between Charlotte, N. C., and Greenville, S. C., on the Washington-Atlanta line, in order to provide greater trackage facilities in advance of the construction of double track.

These sidings will add greatly to the carrying capacity of the line, and each of them will accommodate four of the largest freight trains handled on this division. They are being put in at Vantine, Archdale, Mount Zion, Fair Forrest, Taylor and Gaffney. At each of these points an interlocking plant is being installed so that operation in the towers will control the entrance switches at the laps together with distant signals for regulating the approach of trains to switches. This will make it unnecessary for trains to stop before entering the sidings, which will greatly facilitate the movement of traffic.

BIG DELEGATION TO BE SENT TO CHATTANOOGA

Will Boost Dixie Highway From Indianapolis to Jacksonville, Fla.

Plans for sending a large delegation to Chattanooga April 3 to boost the "Dixie Highway" from Indianapolis to Jacksonville, Fla., by way of Atlanta will be formulated at a meeting in the M. & M. club Monday evening at 6 o'clock of members of the Atlanta Automobile and Accessory association, the Ad Men' club and the Rotary club.

At this meeting proposed annual automobile races on the race track to be built at the Southeastern fair grounds at Lakewood will also be discussed.

George C. Scales, senior highway engineer of the United States office of public roads, will address the meeting on the highways the government is planning from Washington to Atlanta and from Atlanta to Augusta.

E. H. Ellerby, secretary of the A. A. A. association, has sent notices to every member urging a large attendance because of the importance of the meeting.

SUCCESS OF ALLIES IN THE DARDANELLES REMAINS IN DOUBT

out gaining ground, leaving many dead on the field. We also took some prisoners.

"To the south of Les Eparges, in the Bouchot wood, we repulsed a counter attack.

"In the Woevre region in the Mortmare wood, our artillery destroyed a blockhouse and blew up several ammunition wagons with stores. In the forest of Le Pretre we have made some progress."

French Are Repulsed With Heavy Losses, Says Berlin

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, March 20.—(By Wireless.)—The German general staff today gave out this report:

"On the road between Wytschaete and Ypres our Saxon and Bavarian soldiers captured from British troops a group of houses on the south slope of the Loretto heights.

"In the Champagne district the day generally was quiet with the exception that early in the morning German troops occupied some French trenches to the north of Beausejour.

"French attacks to the north of Verdun, in the Woevre plain and at a point near Combras to the east of the heights of the Meuse all were repulsed, the enemy sustaining heavy losses.

"French troops made several advances against the German position at Reichsackerkopf and Hartmanns Weilerkopf but these attacks soon broke down and the French sustained heavy losses under the German fire.

"On the eastern front the day was comparatively quiet. Memel, the Prussian port on the Baltic, has been occupied by the Russians."

London Denies Report That Admiral Carden Was Killed

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 20.—The naval censor said tonight there was "absolutely no truth" in the widely published report that Vice Admiral Sackville Carden had been killed or wounded during the bombardment of the Dardanelles.

The report was spread after announcement that Vice Admiral Carden had been relieved of command of the British division of the allied fleet at the Dardanelles, having been incapacitated by illness.

Sixty-Four of Bouvet's Crew of 621, Saved

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, March 20, via London.—Official announcement was made here this afternoon that sixty-four men have been saved from the crew of the French battleship Bouvet, sunk in the Dardanelles March 18.

The losses on the other ships of the French division which took part in this action are declared to be very light.

The Bouvet in times of peace had a complement of 621 men. It is the custom, however, to increase the number on board vessels of this class in time of war, and the Bouvet may have had a considerably greater crew when she met disaster.

German Aeroplane Drops Bombs in Sea Near Dover

LONDON, March 20.—A German aeroplane dropped several bombs today off Deal, a seaport on the strait of Dover. The bombs all landed in the sea.

No Important Changes On Carpathian Front

(By Associated Press.)

VIENNA, VIA LONDON, March 20.—An official statement issued tonight says:

"Along the Carpathian front there have been no important developments, but at some points a brisk artillery duel was engaged in. To the northwest of Nadworna (southeast Galicia) a night attack by several Russian battalions was repulsed.

"Comparative quiet has prevailed in other sections of the battle front in this part of Galicia.

"The Przenysl garrison made a sortie yesterday in an easterly direction and encountered strong forces of the enemy, which after several hours' fighting retired."

People of Liechtenstein Feeling Brunt of War

BASEL, Switzerland, March 20, Via Paris.—People of the principality of Liechtenstein, which declared its neutrality at the war's outbreak, are suffering from lack of food. The government of the principality appealed to Switzerland and seven carloads of grain were sent which, it is estimated, will supply bread for the whole population.

Wrecked Dresden's Crew Reaches Valparaiso

(By Associated Press.)

VALPARAISO, March 20.—The Chilean cruisers Esmeralda and Ministro Zenteno arrived here today from Juan Fernandez island with the crew of the German cruiser Dresden, destroyed in action with British warships March 14. The sailors will be detailed here on board the German steamer York.

No official announcement has been made on the result of Chile's investigation into the naval fight. The Chilean schooner Argentina, however, has arrived from the battle scene, where she was damaged by shells, and her sailors confirm the German version of the encounter—that the Dresden was attacked in Chilean waters, being at anchor in Cumberland bay on the north side of the island.

FINDS A CURE FOR PELLAGRA

All Skin Eruption Gone, Doctors Now Convinced Mrs. Vaughn Is Entirely Well

Mrs. C. H. Vaughn, Millville, Ala., writes—"There is nothing I ever could do but what I can do it now. There is no sign of skin eruption. One of our local doctors told me that my cure was one of the grandest things that ever happened—not only for me, but for the whole community, to let them know that there is a cure for pellagra.

"All the doctors that waited on me are convinced that your remedy is a real cure."

There's the true word from a cured patient. If you have pellagra, or know of anyone who suffers from Pellagra, it is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn, who has fought and conquered the dreadful malady right in the heart of the Pellagra belt of Alabama.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhea or constipation.

There is hope. Get Baughn's Big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 2002, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—(Advt.)

TABERNACLE TEA ROOM WILL OPEN AT MAJESTIC

Young Ladies of All Saints' Mission Will Serve Cakes and Tea Tuesday

For the benefit of the Holy Innocents mission of All Saints' church, the young ladies who conduct the mission will open a tabernacle tea room in the Majestic hotel Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Tea, sandwiches, cakes and kindred edibles will be served from 4 to 7 o'clock Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons; persons coming from the afternoon services at the Chapman-Alexander tabernacle are especially invited to walk in and refresh themselves. The young ladies of the mission will serve the tea.

The Holy Innocents mission is conducted in a little wooden church building on Sixteenth street west of West Peachtree street. Here classes in sewing and cooking are conducted four times a week for girls, with a special kindergarten class for very small girls and boys. In addition to this, classes in sanitation and home hygiene are held for mothers, and candy pullings, magic lantern parties and other entertainments are also given occasionally.

The mission is conducted entirely by young ladies who are members of the All Saints' church.

INTERESTING CASE TO BE DECIDED IN U. S. COURT

Check Stopped After Goods Bought Were Burned, Is Charge

Judge Newman, of the federal court, Saturday ordered A. J. Stephens of Austell, and B. H. Veal, cashier of the Bank of Austell, to show cause at a later date why they should not pay into the bankruptcy court money which Stephens, it was alleged, agreed to pay for a stock of goods at Hapeville.

B. L. Milling was receiver for John Wesley Hill, a Hapeville merchant and sold to Stephens the stock of goods for $490. He paid $50 down, the allegations recited, and gave a check for $440 for the balance.

Milling claims to have had Veal's verbal assurance that the check, which was on the Austell bank would be certified. Meanwhile, the allegations say, the store was burned and Stephens stopped payment on the check.

SLIGHT TRADE REVIVAL EVIDENCED IN FRANCE

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, March 20, 4:45 p. m.—Foreign trade of France during January and February decreased 622,000,000 francs ($125,000,000) a month, equally divided between exports and imports compared with last year. The decrease in the first five months of the war was at the rate of $2,000,000 francs ($304,000,000) a month. These figures are taken to indicate a revival in trade.

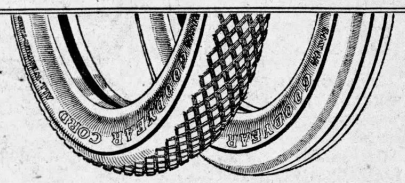
Goodyear Cord Tires

An 11-Year Development

In 5 Ways Excelling the Best Rival Productions



For Electrics and Gasoline Cars

Goodyear has made Cord Tires since 1904. Our Cord Tire of today is an 11-year development. It now sets the high mark in this type.

In the five ways listed below it excels any other Cord Tire built here or abroad.

Our average oversize is 30 per cent, compared with rival Cord Tires. That means nearly one-third more air capacity. And air is what carries the load.

Ours are the only Cord Tires in No-Rim-Cut type—with no hooks on the base to "freeze" into the rims.

Goodyears are built with from 6 to 10 cord layers, according to size. That means extreme endurance.

Goodyears alone are held secure by vulcanizing 126 braided piano wires into each tire base.

No other Cord Tire has an efficient anti-slip tread. Goodyears have our regular All-Weather treads—tough, double-thick and resistless.

The Last Word

For 11 years our experts have been improving these Cord Tires. Scores of our best men have worked on them.

These are the men who built Fortified Tires, and who have made Goodyears the largest-selling tires in the world.

This Cord Tire, which marks their 11-year result, can be wisely considered the last word in a Cord Tire. It at least excels all others in those five important ways.

Why the Cord Tire?

Cord Tires save power and add comfort. Goodyear Cord Tires, used on Electrics, add from 25 to 30 per cent to the mileage from a battery charge. That is so great a saving that no other pneumatics can be wisely advised for Electrics. No unbiased man will advise others.

Most makers of Electrics supply Goodyear Cord Tires on request. You who now use other tires should get them. Any Goodyear dealer will supply right rims without charge if your rims do not fit them.

Owners of gasoline cars can also enjoy these advantages. We make Cord Tires for gasoline cars in sizes 34x4 and up.

Ask our local branch to tell you where Goodyear Cord Tires are obtainable. Any Goodyear dealer will get them.

Why spring! Back again?

After peace is declared, then for war between the allies.

Considering that she isn't using her navy proper, Germany is waging a pretty good sea campaign.

Spruce Up!

Atlanta should look its best, in a business and civic as well as social sense, for the visitors who will come in hundreds from every part of the South to hear grand opera. They will judge the city by its appearance, particularly that of the mercantile district, and will report accordingly when they are back home. If they find the pavement on main thoroughfares snaggled and unkempt, they will conclude that this is a very slipshod or beggarly town. If they see flaring signs announcing forced sales at bankrupt prices, they will conclude, unjustly, to be sure, but none the less naturally, that the town is far from prosperous. If apparel oft proclaims the man, it invariably fixes the community's rank in the visitor's eye.

These matters are always of importance to Atlanta, because it is one of the country's great convention centers and is visited almost every week of the year by some representative gathering. The city is continually under the inspection of people whose good opinion will go far toward upbuilding or tearing down its reputation. Especially is that true of grand opera guests, who in many respects are the most observant, the most critical and the most influential who enter our gates.

As a matter of good business as well as good manners, therefore, the city should put on its brightest countenance for opera week. Broken pavements should be repaired. Flaring signs that misrepresent the real condition of our commerce should be removed. From some of these signs, a stranger would infer that the city is in a spasm of business hysteria. They strike him as so many danger signals. They stick in his memory and are the burden of his comment. They are eyesores and an injury, and, above all, are untrue to the real Atlanta. Let's take them down before opera visitors throng in, and keep them down forever afterwards.

The Rotary Club has called seasonable attention to these needs, and has appealed both to city officials and the rank and file of business men to make Atlanta look its comeliest for the approaching week of grand opera. Every property owner and merchant should support this admirable effort, for it means a vast deal to the community's good repute and practical interests.

Russia could be really inhumane and send those German prisoners to Siberia.

Seven Commandments.

Here are seven simple but far-reaching commandments, issued by the Brooklyn Tenement House Committee for the guidance and protection of people who live in crowded centers:

"Thou shalt honor thy neighborhood and keep it clean."

"Remember thy cleaning day and keep it wholly."

"Thou shalt take care of thy rubbish heap else thy neighbor will bear witness against thee."

"Thou shalt not let the wicked fly breed."

"Thou shalt not kill thy neighbor by ignoring fire menaces or by poisoning the air with rubbish and garbage."

"Thou shalt not keep thy windows closed day and night."

A general observance of these homely precepts will reduce disease and death, and add incalculably to the sum of human happiness. They are wiser than most of our philosophies, and more important than most of the laws on our statute books. Their observance is peculiarly important at this season of the year when the approach of warm weather re-emphasizes the need of health safeguards.

A correspondent who can't kill the fruit crop now is no correspondent at all.

We referred recently to the actual prohibition that resulted in North Carolina as a result of the new law limiting per capita consumption to two quarts a month. On soberer reflection, however, we are convinced that this, for North Carolina, amounts to total abolition.

Neutral Rights Ignored.

In their desperate plans of reprisal, the warring nations apparently have forgotten that neutrals have any rights. Germany advertures by submarine raids to crush British commerce, and in doing so endangers peaceful American shipping. Great Britain undertakes to starve Germany by stopping all intercourse, direct or indirect, with German ports, and thereby threatens our interests with undeserved and intolerable injury. Neither belligerent is willing to assume the responsibilities of an actual blockade. Each is attempting to injure the other at the expense of neutral commerce.

Germany declares that neutral vessels passing through the war zone around the British Isles are risk of being torpedoed. Great Britain declares that neutral vessels bound for or from German ports, as carrying to neutral ports cargoes which ultimately may reach Germany, shall be seized, even though such cargoes are not contraband. These measures are equally lawless.

True, under the British plan, life and property on neutral ships will be treated with scrupulous care. Non-contraband goods will not be confiscated. They will simply be seized and paid for, or taken to a prize court for adjudication. This method, perhaps, would not entail as heavy a loss in dollars and cents as would an outright blockade. But it would involve a shameful sacrifice of rights and principles, and if calmly tolerated would become a precedent to plague and injure us ever afterward.

The British Order in Council leaves unanswered and indefinite many questions that will enter largely into the settlement of neutral claims when the war is over, and that enter vitally into matters of immediate concern. The American position, as recently summarized at Washington, makes clear the importance of this issue:

1. If the action of the allies is a blockade, all commerce directly with Germany can be halted by making the blockade effective, a certain "radius of activity" being allowed for the blockading warships off the German coast because of the newly-developed activities of submarines. But there can be no legal blockade of the coast of neutral countries of Europe contiguous to those at war, under any circumstances, and commerce between the United States and neutrals, especially in non-contraband should be free from interruption, irrespective of ultimate destination.

2. If the action is not a blockade then there exists no legal right to detain cotton or other non-contraband cargoes even when consigned directly to German ports. Nor can foodstuffs or conditional contraband be justly interrupted unless proven, though consigned to Germany, to be destined for the use of its belligerent forces and not its civilian population. Under the same circumstances, too, there is no legal basis for detaining cargoes consigned from the United States so the neutral countries of Europe if containing cotton or non-contraband goods, irrespective of ultimate destination. Similarly the allies cannot under the previously-accepted principles of international law interrupt shipments of foodstuffs and other conditional contraband en route between the United States and neutral countries unless clearly proven to be going eventually to the belligerent forces of Germany and not its civilian population.

3. Neutral countries of Europe may declare embargoes on re-exportation of contraband or non-contraband, thus preventing supplies from reaching Germany. With this sovereign right, the United States does not take issue, but it will insist on its right to ship to neutral countries, placing the buren of stopping further progress on the latter nations themselves.

In asserting this position, the United States speaks not only for its own rights but for the rights of peaceful commerce everywhere and in time to come as well as today. It speaks for the dignity of international law, and for the interests of civilization. Belligerents may strike at each other as hard as they will, but they must remember that neutrals have inalienable rights. They may establish blockades if they will and insist that they be respected; but they cannot by mere fiat enforce paper blockades and stop commerce between neutral ports. They cannot override the law of nations merely to serve their particular convenience and gain a passing advantage.

The problems now confronting America's oversea commerce and that of all neural countries are unusually serious. For that very reason, however, cool counsel and foresight are needed. The Administration may be depended upon to handle the matter with due caution and at the same time to insist unflinchingly upon the nation's rights.

An Alabama judge has decided that the law limiting the consumption of liquor to a quart a month in that state is not constitutional. It would probably work a hardship, especially during the first year after prohibition.

One Week More.

This is the last week of the sale of season tickets for grand opera. After March the twenty-seventh, seats for single performances only will be sold. They will cost more and will be harder to get.

Every opera on this year's program is exceedingly popular, and every role will be sung by a great artist. That assures a heavy demand for seats at each performance, and means that persons who wait until the eleventh hour to make reservations will risk disappointment. True, the seating capacity of the Auditorium is unusual and every seat offered for sale is desirable. But it is the part of wisdom and economy to select seats while the range of choice is wide and the prices lower than they will be a week hence.

The railroads have announced reduced rates for opera week, a fact which presages a large out-of-town attendance. Indeed, the demand for reservations from cities throughout the South has been growing ever since season tickets were put on sale, and, no doubt, will be still greater during the next six days.

The Tree Butcher.

The tree butcher, observes the Courier-Journal, is now abroad, and his victims, "standing stripped and bleeding in the raw March winds, are seen wherever the fool or the knave has plied his pruning shears." There ought to be a law against cruelty to trees as well as against cruelty to animals. The man who mistreats a dog or a horse debases himself, but the man who mistreats a tree damages the community. Whether he does so as an ignorant amateur or as a designing quack, the result is equally harmful.

A writer in The Journal's Letter Box recently told of a traveling mountebank who professed to be able to make trees grow by placing grains of corn around their roots; and numbers of guileless persons, it seems, fell prey to the gull. That was bad, but it was merely a bit of cunning diversion beside the work of the vandals who slash and hack at trees under a pretense of pruning them.

The trimming of trees is a matter of surgery, which should be undertaken by none except those who have the experience and skill and instruments required. Many alert cities, recognizing the public importance of such work, have established municipal departments of forestry by which the community's trees are cared for the year around. A sounder civic investment could scarcely be made. Trees not only enhance the beauty of a town, but they also increase property values and add beyond recokoning to the people's pleasure and health.

"The trees," wrote Pliny long ages ago, "formed the first temples of the gods, and even at the present day the country people, preserving in all their simplicity the ancient rites, consecrate the finest of their trees to some divinity—the oak to Jupiter, the laurel to Apollo, the olive to Minerva, the myrtle to Venus, and the poplar to Hercules." Every tree is touched with divinity, and, for its benison to human life, is due man's gratitude.

Mexico is quiet; but can it be the lull before the storm or a new set of presidents?

Now Is the Time.

"Sharp advances in the grain markets," says the New York Commercial, "have come at the right time to encourage farmers to sow as much wheat, oats and corn as possible this spring, and to induce the South to plant less cotton and more grain and cattle feed." The latter observation is particularly true. Last autumn the Southern States planted 7,271,000 acres of wheat as compared with 5,459,000 the preceding autumn, and at the same time they increased their acreage of oats one hundred and two per cent. That was a wise policy then; it will prove wiser still today.

During the last six months the value of grain and foodstuffs generally has grown apace. Under the stimulus of an unprecedented foreign demand, the price of wheat has mounted steadily, a fact of far-reaching influence on other cereals. If it was profitable to plant food crops at the beginning of that period, it is far more profitable to plant them now.

Georgia farmers added a hundred and seventy thousand acres to their wheat and twenty-eight thousand to oats last autumn, an increase respectively of one hundred and eighteen per cent and ninety-six per cent. As a result, their interests are very much securer than otherwise they would have been. But they should make assurance doubly sure by proceeding to cut down the cotton acreage and devote as much land as possible to food crops.

Now is the time for them to take advantage of opportunities and to avoid perils. Now is the time for them to determine, as far as it is within their power to do so, the future price of cotton; for, so soon as it becomes evident that the 1915 cotton crop will be considerably below the average, the price of the existing crop will advance.

SEA POWER, THEN AND NOW

(From the London Spectator.)

If people have not learned since the beginning of this war what sea power means they are never likely to learn. They have had many opportunities not only of learning what it is, but of sharpening the definition by learning what it is not. Sea power, or command of the sea, means for us ability to beat every hostile fleet, or combination of fleets, that can be brought against us. If we can do this our empire is united, not divided, by the seas. Sea power emphatically does not mean that we can bring to book any and every member of a hostile fleet which strays off on an errand that may be annoying, and even expensive, to us, but cannot be strategetically important. Mahan expressed this truth excellently when he said:

"The control of the sea, however real, does not imply that an enemy's single ships or small squadrons cannot steal out of port, cannot cross more or less frequented tracts of ocean, make harassing descents upon unprotected points of a long coast line, enter blockaded harbors. On the contrary, history has shown that such evasions are always possible, to some extent, to the weaker party, however great the inequality of naval strength."

Sea power keeps us safe and normally in good health; it cannot prevent the occasional illnesses that will afflict perfectly strong and healthy persons. Without sea power Britain would die. She would consist of two small islands of starving people derelict in the northern seas. This is so obvious—depends so little upon ratiocination for its convincingness—that it may be said to be a matter of instinct rather than of demonstration. And since it is a matter of instinct it is not surprising that the English poets and men of letters, and not the statesmen, historians and strategists, were the first to insist upon the significance of sea power.

The first recognition of sea power in English literature is contained in a fifteenth century poem, "The Libel of English Policy," which is really a pamphlet in verse. An introduction says: "Here beginneth the prologue of the process of the libel of English policie, exhorting all England to keep the sea, and namely the narrow sea; shewing what profite cometh thereof, and also what worship and wealth it hath brought and to all Englishmen." The poem is not very easy to read, yet its good sense and high patriotism are remarkable enough, as may be judged from the following verses:

For if this see bee kept in time of werre,
Who can herre passe without danger and woe?
Who may escape, who may mischiefe differe?
What Marchandie may forby bee agoe?
For needs him must take trewes every foe:
Flanders and Spaine, and other, trust to mee,
Or ellis hindred all for this Narrow see.

Therefore I cast mee by a little writing
To shew at eye this conclusion,
For conscience and for mine acquitting
Against God and ageyne abusion,
And cowardice and to our enemies confusion.
For fourte things our Noble seweth to me,
King, Ship and Sword and power of the sea.

Much follows about commerce but the author here and there returns to the foundation of all commerce—naval power. The following verse is an example:

The ends of battalle is peace sikerly,
And power causeth peace finally.
Keep then the sea about in special,
Which of England is the towne wall.
As though England were likened to a cite,
And the wall environ were the see.
Keep then the sea that is the wall of England:
And than is England kept by Goddes own hande.

In the Elizabethan age we have Bacon's thrice-famous passage on sea power. "To be Master of the Sea," he says, "is an Abridgement of a Monarchy"—i. e., an epitome, or the essence, of a monarchy. He quotes the opinion which Cicero attributed to Themistocles: "Qui mare teneat, eum necesse est rerum portiri." After mentioning wars in which land battles were necessarily final, Bacon goes on:

"But there is much in certaine; That hee that commands the Sea is at great liberty, and as little of the Warre, as he will. Whereas those, that be strongest by land, are many times nevertheless in great straights. Surely if this day, with the great Fleets, the ventage of strength at sea (which is one of the principal dowries of this kingdome of Great Brittaine) is great: Both because, most of the kingdomes of Europe, are not meerly Inland, but girt with the sea, most part of their compasse; and because, the wealth of both Indies, seems in great part, but on accessory, to to the command of the sea." The famous Sir Edward Coke, Bacon's great opponent in the dispute about the Royal Prerogative, the unbridled prosecutor of Raleigh, but a man who loved and valiantly defended English liberty, was not at all behind Bacon himself in recognizing the significance of a strong navy:

"The king of England excedes all others in the world for three things, viz., beauty, strength, and safety. For beauty, they are so many palaces; for strength (no part of the world having such iron and timber as England hath), so many moyling castles and bulwarks; and for safety, they are the most defensive walls of the realm. Among the ships of other nations, they are like lions among silly beasts, or falcons amongst fearful fowl."

These words show that our musty old friend "Coke on Littleton" could take wings and soar up to lyrical heights when thoughts of ships and the sea made his blood course faster. The words we have quoted occur in the preface to the fourth part of the extremely technical Institutes. And of course Coke knew that the wonders of sea power even as he knew all the secrets of men. No one who did not take for granted the full meaning of the sea to England could have spoken of England as bound in with the triumphant sea," or have written that marvellous passage in "Richard II" where Gaunt says:

This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle,
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
This other Eden, demi-paradise;
This fortress built by Nature of herself
Against infection and the hand of war;
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious stone set in the silver sea,
Which serves it in the office of a wall,
Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happier lands.

In the seventeenth century the politicians had learnt the lessons of the poets and the men of letters, and we find that greatest and most inspired of statesmen, Lord Halifax, expressing with passionate earnestness his conviction that England's salvation "cometh by way of the sea." The passage on sea power in his pamphlet, "A Rough Draught of New Model at Sea, 1694," is doubtless well known to our readers, but we cannot resist the temptation of quoting it once more.

"I will make no other Introduction to the following Discourse than that as the Importance of our being strong at Sea was ever very great, so in our present Circumstances it is grown to be much greater; because, as formerly our Force of Shipping contributed greatly to our Trade and Safety so now it is become indispensably necessary to our very Being. It may be said now to England, Martha, Martha, thou are busy about many things but one thing is necessary. To the Question, What shall we do to be saved in this World there is no other Answer but this. Look to your Moate. The first Article of an English-mans Political Creed must be, That he believeth in the Sea &c., without that there needeth no General Council to pronounce him incapable of Salvation here. We are in an Island, confin'd to it by God Almighty, not as a Penalty but a Grace, and one of the greatest that can be given to Mankind. Happy Confinement, that hath made us Free, Rich, and Quiet; a fair Portion in this World, and very well worth the preserving; a Figure that ever hath been envied, and could never be imitated by our Neighbours. Our Situation hath made Greatness abroad by Land Conquests unnatural things to us. It is true, we have made Excursions, and glorious ones too, which make our Names great in History, but they did not last. Admit the English to be Giants in Courage, yet they must no hope to succeed in Making War against Heaven, which seemeth to have enjoyned them to acquiesce in being happy within their own Circle. It is no Paradox to say that England hath its Root in the Sea, and a deep one too, from whence it sendeth its branches into both the Indies. We may say further in our present Case, That if Allegiance is due to Protection, ours to the Sea is due from that Root since by that and by that alone we are to be protected; and if we have of late suffered Usurpation of other Methods contrary to the Homage we owe to that which must preserve us, it is time now to restore the Sea to its right; and as there is no Repentance effectual without Amendment, so there is not a moment to be lost in the going about it."

Another seventeenth-century writer who understood the meaning of the sea power was Captain George St. Loe, a commissioner of the navy after the Revolution. We have often quoted in these pages from the pamphlet in which he anticipated the policy of Lord Roberts and the National Service League in the matter of universal military training and service. His naval pamphlets are quite as worthy of attention, but unfortunately space will not allow us to cite examples from them here.

Britannia needs no bulwarks,
No towers along the steep;
Her march is o'er the mountain waves,
Her home is on the deep.
With thunder from her native oak
She quells the flood below—
As they roar on the shore
When the stormy winds do blow;
When the battle rages loud and long
And the story winds do blow.

In our own day Tennyson was pre-eminent as the supporter and interpreter among poets of sea power. At a time when the British government had allowed the navy to lose its margin of safety! Tennyson wrote:

You you, if you shall fail to understand
What England is, and what her all-in-all.
On you will come the curse of all the land
Should this old England fall
* * *
Her dauntless army scattered, and so small
Her island—myriads fed from allen lands—
The fleet of England is her all-in-all;
Her fleet is in your hands,
And in her fleet her fate.

Certainly these lines lack all the characteristic music of Tennyson, but they are at all events extremely good leading article. In another poem, Tennyson wrote, like so many poets before him of the narrow sea which keeps England inviolate. The enemy in Tennyson's day was, of course, France.

God bless the narrow sea which keeps her off,
And keeps our Britain whole within herself
A native yet the rulers and the ruled.

In the eighteenth century the great lawyer Blackstone[1] author of the Commentaries was less lyrical, but quite as sound as Coke when he called the navy "the floating bulwark of our island." To the eighteenth century also belongs "Rule Britannia" our national song of sea power rescued from a mediocre opera because of the majesty of the tune and because of the instinct of the people told them that it contained a great truth even if it did contain great poetry. Naturally the French wars inspired many poems of sea power. Campbell supreme in ballads of the sea had the heart of the matter in him. He knew that no coast forts or Martello towers were a substitute for a navy that could go anywhere and do anything. The greatest truth of naval strategy is implicit in the swinging lines of "Ye Mariners of England:"

"Give me the writing of the people's ballads and I care not who makes their laws," might have been said by Fletcher of Saltoun with peculiar authority now. Mr. Kipling, Mr. Newbolt, and others keep alive the tradition that British sea power shall be celebrated and honored in the heart of the nation by stirring verse. So may it always be! It is conceivable that Venice would never have lost her independence had ballad-writers kept fresh for her the great truth that the sea was her element and her only strength. But her last great sea victories over the TTurks in the seventeenth century were forgotten, and when Napoleon entered the city in 1796 he found rotting and leaky vessels worthy of the Turks themselves in the degenerate days of Abd-ul-Hamid.

EXTENDING OUR WHEAT FIELDS

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

One of the most striking illustrations of a benefit derived by a people because those engaged in the administration of its government took intelligent thought, is to be seen in the yield of wheat from certain areas in west that would otherwise have been barren. This has come about through the introduction of Durum wheat from Russia and its planting in certain regions to which it is peculiarly adapted and where it grows more advantageously than does any other variety.

This spring a situation arises that gives Durum wheat, just now thoroughly established, an importance that it would not otherwise have had. This comes about because of the existence of a most unusual world situation, with relation to the wheat supply, that has been developed by the war. Wheat prices were but moderately high last fall when the crop of winter wheat for the coming harvest was being sown. These prices led to the planting of but a moderately increased acreage. But in the middle of the winter, conditions arose that sent wheat soaring to unheard of prices. It was too late for farmers to affect the planting of winter wheat, but the spring wheat was yet to be sown. The time for its planting is the months of March and April. This work is just now getting well under way.

When wheat is bringing 75 cents a bushel there is a profit of but 15 cents in growing it. But when it is bringing $1.50 a bushel, the cost of making the crop remains the same, while the profit on each bushel harvested jumps from 15 cents to 90 cents. With these added possibilities of profit, it is but natural to suppose that every acre of spring wheat that can be crowded into cultivation will be planted. So is a new importance given to the crop that America borrowed from Russia.

It was a decade and a half ago that the department of agriculture began looking about for means of increasing the wheat producing area. Among other things it was worrying about the great stretch of plains that lie between the Missouri river and the Rocky Mountains, and upon which the pioneers had been trying in vain to establish homesteads. While these settlers made occasional good crops, the rainfall had been shown to be so light that the yields were not dependable and on the whole, could not support farms. Yet here was a vast area which, if it could but be made to produce, might maintain an empire.

Mark A. Carleton was an explorer of the department of agriculture whose specialty was cereal. He was sent to Russia, to look over the wheat-producing areas and find out whatever he might that would be of use in America. He traveled over great stretches from the Black sea to frozen Siberia. It was on the borderland of European and Asiatic Russia that he encountered a region where all the conditions were so nearly those of the Great Plains in America that he would have thought he was on those stretches but for one fact. Peopled lived on the Russian steppes and grew crops. These crops were of wheat. He supposed at first that the rainfall here was greater than in America, but, upon an examination into the facts, he found this was not true. Russians were raising wheat under the conditions with which we failed. It looked as though there must be some difference in the wheat itself. It was a clue.

The wheat grown here was a stiffly-bearded, flinty variety such as was not to be found in the United States. Quantities of seed were accumulated and sent on the long journey. Arriving in the United States, experiments were begun to try out the Russian wheat at different points. They were planted at many experiment stations, particularly in the Great Plains regions. Soon it began to develop that these wheats had marked advantages over the old varieties grown in that region which lies along the border of Minnesota and the Dakotas. They would yield crops that in some instances amounted to twice those of the old varieties. In other places, harvests of Russian wheat were gathered where all others failed entirely. In this particular region the farmers soon became enthusiastic.

TECH BOYS SCORE GREAT HIT WITH COLLEGE PLAY

Real Histrionic Ability Displayed in "Electricity" at Atlanta Last Night

There have been college plays and college almost-plays, but for real histrionic ability and finished acting, we would commend you to "Electricity," as presented by the Tech Marionettes at the Atlanta theater last night.

The audience which filled the boxes and the pit came to see a play by college boys, their friends or their friends' friends. A lot of them came to see W. A. Troy and F. B. Fort in dresses, and a few came for the unique experience of hearing Clarence Jordan talk. It was a friendly crowd, good naturedly prepared to take the play in a friendly way.

And instead, they were treated to a real show. We will except George Arliss and a few others, perhaps, but there have been "ligitimate dramas" at the Atlanta which could take pointers from the Marionettes. When the curtain first rose there were the usual giggles on recognition of Messrs. Troy, Fort, Saine and Stanley in wigs and silk stockings. But after a while the audience forgot to guffaw when one "girl" missed another and said "O dear!" in a falsetto voice, and before the first act was over, every person in the house was interested, not in Tech boys, but in the romance of Emiline Twimberly and James Lee Hollendon, in the irate Duncan Twimberly and the suspicious Bill Brockway.

PLAY WELL STAGED.

It was a ripping good comedy, well staged, well acted. Of course one could pick flaws. Yuo can't make embryonic engineers into matinee idols over night. But from the point of view of one who didn't know a soul on the stage and didn't care particularly whether they made good or not, it was entertainment of the first water.

To praise the individual would be to do injustice to the whole, so the bouquets may be presented to the entire caste, which was as follows: Bill Brockway, an electrician, C. L. Jordan; his helper, Paul Yopp; Duncan Twimberly, Murry Werner; Sammy Twimberly, his son, J. H. Moss; Boker, the Twimberly's butler, C. L. Drummond; Peter, another servant, R. Garrett; Emiline Twimberly, Duncan's daughter, W. A. Troy; Ruth, Draycoed, Emiline's friend, F. B. Fort; James Lee Hollendon, Sammy's college chum, F. D. Burge; Mrs. Brockway, L. W. Saine; Jennie Parks, Bill's betrothed, Jean Stanley; Mr. Brockway, railroad engineer, F. C. Sneed.

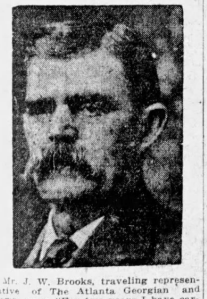
"Electricity" is in three acts, and during the intermissions music was furnished by the Tech orchestra. After the first act, President A. Roberts, of the Marionettes, came before the footlights with two enormous bouquets, one of pink and one of yellow and white. The yellow and white, he announced, had earned the honor which the club conferred on Miss Anne Patterson in electing her 1915 sponsor for the club. Miss Patterson acknowledged this with a gracious "thank you" from one of the boxes, and the audience cheered enthusiastically.

The pink and white bouquet was presented to Miss Carolyn Cobb, the club coach, and in a short speech President Roberts paid her a high tribute, declaring that had it not been for her invaluable old and instruction, the Marionettes could not have advanced to their present high position among college dramatic clubs and "Electricity" would not have been a success—which it undoubtedly was.

HOME-COMING WEEK. COLUMBUS APRIL 14

Columbus, Ga., is going to celebrate "Home Coming Week" on April 14, and the chamber of commerce of that place is making an effort to secure the names of all former residents of Columbus, who are now in Atlanta, in order to send them invitations to visit their old home there.

To that end the Columbus organization has written Mayor Woodward, asking his assistance in getting a list of former Columbus leitizens. The mayor has referred the letter to the local chamber of commerce.



Mr. J. W. Brooks, traveling representative of The Atlanta Georgian and News, says: "For two years I have carried in my grip a bottle of Nuxcara, and would not think of going out on the road without it. I consider it the most wonderful discovery in medicine. The number of people who suffer with indigestion and dyspepsia, the terrible distress they suffer, no one knows but those who have experienced it. When one remedy after another fails, when digestive agents seem to aggravate it, in the face of all this, Nuxcara cures in every case—truly it is a wonderful remedy."

We will accept this advertisement and 25 cents in cash for a 50-cent bottle of the great stomach remedy, Nuxcara—one dose gives instant relief.

C. J. WERNER, FORMER ATLANTIAN, IS DEAD

Popular Secret Order Man Succumbs Soon After Return to Indianapolis

C. J. Werner, for several years a citizen of Atlanta, a member of numerous secret orders, and popular with a host of friends, died yesterday morning at the home of his parents in Indianapolis, where he went a few weeks ago when his health broke down.

Mr. Werner is lovingly remembered in this city by all who knew him and his death will be deeply mourned. He was a member of Piedmont Lodge of Odd Fellows, Piedmont Rebekah Lodge, Piedmont Encampment of the Uniformed Rank of Odd Fellows, Delphi Lodge No. 68 of the Knights of Pythias, Capital City Lodge of Masons, Order of Eastern Star and Atlanta Council No. 5 Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

He was 35 years of age and is survived by his wife and his parents. He will be buried in Indianapolis.

WALRAVEN FINDS REAL GOLD MINE, HE SAYS

Proudly bearing several nuggets of gold, Dan S. Walraven, former city councilman, returned to the city Saturday after a two-weeks' prospecting trip in the mountains above Dahlonega. Mr. Walraven was accompanied by A. H. Malaney, a mining engineer recently from Mexico, and both were enthusiastic about "the strike."

Mr. Walraven declares that Thursday they discovered a big gold vein on the property of Dr. L. P. Stevens on which they have an option. The property is about twenty miles north of the town of Dahlonega.

"We have a real mine," declared the former councilman.

Leaves for Athens

Dr. R. A. Belsham left Saturday for Athens. He will speak all this week at the First Baptist church on "Prophesy."

ORGANIST KRAFT RETURNS; CONCERT THIS AFTERNOON

Liebestad From "Tristan and Isolde" Will Be Played Today

Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, city organist, returned Saturday from New Orleans, where he gave an important organ recital last week. He will preside at the usual free organ concert at the Auditorium-Armory this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

An unusually fine program has been arranged by Dr. Kraft, and special attention is called to the Liebestod from "Tristan and Isolde," a masterpiece among Wagner's compositions.

Dr. Kraft will be glad to play request numbers at any of the concerts provided such requests are presented in writing to an usher or sent to his office at the Auditorium.

There will be no concert on next Sunday, as the auditorium has been engaged for other purposes. Taking advantage of this lapse of time, Dr. Kraft leaves Monday for the north, where he will appear in concert in a number of the large cities.

Quickly Relieves Without Distress

The congestion of waste and refuse from the stomach, fermenting in the bowels, generates poisonous gases that occasion distress and invite serious illness. Health and comfort demand that this congestion be speedily relieved and the foul mass expelled.

The well-founded objection most people have to the violence of cathartic and purgative agents is overcome by using the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A dose at night brings relief next morning, without discomfort or inconvenience. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 52 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.—(Advt.)

FATHER SUES FOR THE POSSESSION OF SON

J. S. Elanmett, of Decatur, swore out a writ of habeas corpus Saturday for the possession of his son, Ralph Hammett, eight years old, who is said to have been in the possession of J. M. Purcell and Dorsey Purcell, his uncles, for some time.

The two uncles brought the boy to Atlanta Saturday to have an oculist examine his eyes, and Deputy Sheriff Roberts served them with the writ. Judge George L. Bell set March 27 for a hearing at which time the uncles are ordered to produce the boy. The uncles claim that Hammett abandoned by contract his right to his son when the boy's mother died.

THOUSANDS DIE EVERY YEAR FROM RESULTS OF A NEGLECTED COLD

And to Neglect a Cold in the Beginning Is to Run a Pretty Big Risk.

Practically every case of pneumonia is antedated by a cold which becomes pneumonia. Sometimes the patient is unfortunate enough to contract fresh cold before he or she has entirely recovered from pneumonia, and consumption results. The death rate for pneumonia has for many years been 25 per cent, and the medical world seems unable to reduce that rate. Every one knows that the death rate for consumption, or the "great white plague," is 100 per cent. Millions of dollars have been spent to find a cure, but a temporary remedy is, so far, the best that can be done. A bad cold is directly traceable to an inactive liver. You get overheated and cool off too suddenly, and the pores of the skin becomes closed, the blood recedes from the surface of the body and a congestion is produced. The same condition exists if one sits in a draft, or gets wet. The liver finds its efforts overcome by pressure of the blood, also the food one has eaten remains in the stomach or bowels, the liver being unable to perform its functions. The head gets hot, the feet cold and the bowels constipated. Right then and there is the danger point. JACOBS' LIVER SALT is needed, and needed badly. The bowels, when such conditions arise, MUST be kept open. The system must be relieved of congestion. JACOBS' LIVER SALT is the greatest known relief. It beats calomel. It will rejuvenate the liver, send the blood racing through the veins, dispel the congestion and make the patient feel as if life is worth living. It is a simple remedy, but like many simple things, important. Try it today. One-half pound jar, 25c. Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta. Insist on Jacobs'.—(Advt.)

HOLLAND'S MINISTER AND BRYAN DISCUSS BLOCKADE

Outlines Note of Protest Netherlands Sent to England and France

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Chevalier Van Rappard, minister from the Netherlands communicated informally to Secretary Bryan today an outline of a note sent by the Netherlands government to Great Britain and France protesting against the embargo on commerce of neutrals with Germany as having no precedent in law or history.

The minister has been discussing the question informally with the United States during the last week, but the representations just made are on behalf of the Netherlands government alone. Inquiry as to the kind of communication to be sent by the United States in the same connection, brought the response from Secretary Bryan today that the question had not finally been decided.

Germans Confiscate Oil Aboard Danish Steamer

LONDON, March 20.—A cargo of oil aboard the Danish steamship Bryssel has been confiscated by German authorities in the Pomeranian seaport of Swinemunde, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company. The vessel was released.

The feeling at Copenhagen, the dispatch adds, is that the fact that Germany needs oil does not justify seizure of the Bryssel's cargo.

The Bryssel, bound from Philadelphia for Stockholm, was stopped in the Baltic, March 11, by a German cruiser and taken to Swinemunde.

The vessel previously had arrived at Kirkwall and had voluntarily submitted to an examination by the British authorities, who permitted her to pass. She also put into Elsinore, Denmark, where she received declarations from the consignees, certified by the Swedish authorities, that the oil was destined for use only in Sweden. A Copenhagen dispatch, March 12, said it was believed at the Danish capital that the Bryssel had been stopped by the Germans because it was suspected that the ship carried cargo other than that which had been declared.

FORCE CHILDREN TO GO TO SCHOOL, SAYS WOMAN

Settlement Home Night School Organizes Parent-Teacher Association

A Parent-Teacher association has been organized at the Settlement Home Night school and at the first meeting held last Friday night there was a large attendance and a very enjoyable program of vocal and instrumental music, readings and story telling.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Mrs. Henry H. Tucker, who for many years has been chairman of the educational committee of Wesley House. Mrs. Tucker declared the main cause of ignorance among working people is indifference on the part of the parents. She urged a more serious interest. Children who object to going to school should be made to go, she said.

The association plans to meet on the third Friday evening in each month and it is believed frequent discussions of timely subjects by parents and teachers will be of great benefit.

SCOTTISH RITE AND SHRINERS WILL SEE "THE MAGIC FLUTE"

Masons to Go in Body to Opera Depicting Egyptian Mysteries--Many Stars to Appear in This Work

Scottish Rite Masons and Nobles of the Mystic Shrine are planning to make a gala occasion of the Saturday matinee at the coming opera season, when Mozart's ancient and famous work, "The Magic Flute" is to be presented, for the opera is filled with Egyptian mysticism which particularly appeals to those versed in the secrets of Freemasonry.

Secretary Joseph C. Greenfield of the Scottish Rite bodies, and Forrest Adair, chairman of the Rite's executive committee and illustrious Potentate of the Shrine in Atlanta, have aroused enthusiasm among members of the two great Masonic orders, and will arrange to have a great block of seats reserved for "The Magic Flute" performance.

The Mozart opera is one whose music and scenic splendor will appeal to every opera-goer, and it introduces an unusual number of stars among the singers, but it has an especial importance to Masonry in its introduction of the temple of the Egyptian gods and its impressive ceremonies, which, Masons of high rank say, is closely akin to the ritual of certain degrees in Masonry.

HIGH PRIEST OF ISIS.

One of the central figures in the opera is Sarastro, high priest of Isis and Osiris. His dwelling on the Nile is half palace, half temple, and he is the grand master of the Mysteries of Isis. The duty of his life, as Mozart wrote, is:

"To encourage virtue, to aid all who seek true wisdom, to watch over and guard them during their periods of probation, and finally, to consecrate them as members of the holy fraternity of which he is the head."

In the same region, in a castle built in the darkest and most gloomy style of Egyptian architecture, dwells the mysterious being, the "Queen of Night." Her dress is black as darkness, but sparkles with bright stars. She has a daughter, the lovely Pamina, and to save her from temptation and the influences of her mother Sarastro has taken her into the temple.

The opera introduces the splendors of the palace of Sarastro and the majestic halls of the temple, with its priests and acolytes. Its settings are among the most ornate known to the Metropolitan.

SOME GREAT SINGERS.

The singers to appear in the Magic Flute include several of the Metropolitan's leading stars. Basil Ruysdael will sing Sarastro; Frieda Hempel, the Queen of the Night; Melanie Kurt, the new German soprano, will sing Pamina, and other woman parts will be taken by Vera Curtis, Rita Fornia, Lila Robeson, Mabel Garrison, Anna Case, Marie Mattfield and Elizabeth Schumann.

Otto Goritz will have the great comedy role of Papageno, the Bird Catcher, who plays a prominent part; Johannes Sembach, the tenor who has created such a sensation in New York, will sing Tamino, the young Egyptian prince; and others will be Carl Schlegel, Max Bloch, Anton Griss, Robert Leonhardt and Albert Reiss. Richard Hageman will conduct.

There are some wonderful airs in the Mozart opera. Goritz is to sing "A Bird Catcher Am I," and Frieda Hempel will give the famous "Queen's Air," a number which makes heavy demands upon the greatest of sopranos. Sembach has the aria, "Thy Magic Tones," and the duet, "The Manly Heart," by Melanie Kurt and Otto Goritz, is one of the gems of Mozart's work. Of particular interest to the Masons will be the air by Ruysdael, as the High Priest, "Within This Hallowed Dwelling," and the great invocation by the chorus of High Priests, "O, Isis and Osiris." The opera sparkles with riotous comedy in contrast to the solemnity of the temple scenes.

The sale of season tickets for the opera will close next Saturday, and after that full prices must be paid and tickets purchased separately. There is a marked economy in purchasing tickets for the season, and opera-goers are hurrying to secure the choicest locations. The number of out-of-town orders indicate large crowds of visitors this year, and the hotels are reserved almost up to their capacity. The sale of tickets for individual operas will begin on April 5.

Johannes Sembach, said to be best German tenor of Europe, who will sing in "The Magic Flute."

BIBLE CONFERENCE TO BE CONDUCTED NEXT YEAR

Executive Committee Already Making Plans--Date Not Yet Fixed

That the Atlanta Bible Conference, which was called off this year on account of the illness of Dr. Len G. Broughton, its founder and president, as well as on account of Chapman-Alexander revival, will be held next year for ten days, is the announcement just issued by the executive committee of the conference, which consists of Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, S. C. Callaway, H. A. Etheridge and John J. Egan.

Friends of the conference are requested in this announcement to reserve ten days for the conference, exact dates not being fixed as yet, and to include the conference in their prayers and plans.

NEW SHOE STORE OPENS ON PEACHTREE

The Rothchild's Shoe store, carrying sample shoes exclusively, opened at 52 Peachtree-street yesterday morning, and throughout the day had a wonderful sale of spring and summer shoes for men and women. Mr. Samuel B. Edelson, a prominent young business man who has been identified in Atlanta business circles for the past ten years, is manager of the store and proposes to make the Atlanta branch a permanent Atlanta institution. The people back of the company of which the Peachtree store is a branch were looking about for a southern location, and Mr. Edison induced them to locate in Atlanta. The pick of the lines of shoes manufactured by half a dozen big shoe factories have been secured for this sample shoe store, and it is to be made an institution unlike anything Atlanta has had heretofore.—(Advt.)

SPEER AND LAMBDIN MAY HOLD A CONFERENCE SOON

Definite Division of Work in South Georgia Dstrct Expected at Early Date

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 20.—That Judge Emory Speer, of Macon, and Judge William Wallace Lambdin, of Waycross, will shortly adjust whatever difference of opinion may exist between them as to the division of the work in the southern district of Georgia is certain, according to friends who are in close touch with the situation.

No definite proposition regarding the district's work has been made either by Judge Speer to Judge Lambdin or by Judge Lambdin to Judge Speer. Several suggestions of a method for handling the work by Judge Speer were met with counter suggestions by Judge Lambdin, and with the two going into the matter thoroughly it is understood from their different views a satisfactory arrangement will be forthcoming.

Friends who are in a position to know deny most emphatically that Judge Lambdin has any axe to grind and is going to seek arbitrarily to oust any officials at any given point. They hold that as a federal judge he is entitled to distribute some of the patronage in the control of a judge, and will no doubt have no opposition from the senior district judge in handling some of the patronage.

It is believed the two judges may decide to hold a conference in Macon shortly to reach a final conclusion over the division of the work. Plans for the division will no doubt be outlined in further correspondence but it is understood no announcement of their final conclusions will be made until they have a conference.

ALSTON SPECIAL COUNSEL IN EMPIRE LIFE CO. CASE

Attorney General Requested Appointment Owing to Rush of Work

Insurance Commissioner Wright has appointed Robert C. Alston, of Atlanta, as special counsel to the commissioner in the case of the Empire Life Insurance company.

Under the terms of the insurance law passed in 1912, the insurance commissioner was empowered to name special counsel in cases where his department was handling the affairs of an insurance company turned over to it by the courts. This has been done by the insurance commissioner in previous cases, one of the most recent being that of the American Life and Annuity company.

Attorney General Grice has represented the state in all of the legal matters connected with the litigation affecting the Empire Life Insurance company, and he continued this service until two or three weeks ago, when the courts turned the affairs of the company over to the insurance commissioner.

The attorney general has had such an extraordinary amount of work placed upon him recently that he found it impossible to look after the detailed legal matters connected with the adjudication of the affairs of the Empire Life company, and for that reason he suggested to the insurance commissioner that he appoint special counsel.

In addition to assisting in preparing the state's argument in the Frank case before the United States supreme court, in assisting in preparing the state's argument in the Western and Atlantic railroad bill before the Tennessee legislature, the attorney general has been called upon to represent the state bank examiner in a number of cases involving receiverships for state banks.

MOUNT AIRY MARSHAL IS STABBED; WOUND SERIOUS

MOUNT AIRY, Ga., March 20.—John Umberhant, a young white man, while resisting arrest on the charge of drunkenness, stabbed and probably fatally wounded the town marshal, Silas Gibson, late this afternoon. Umberhant was turned over to the sheriff.

GOVERNOR MAKES THREE SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS

Will Speak in Macon, Chattanooga and Monroe During April

Governor Slaton has made three speaking engagements for April. On the second of April he and Mrs. Slaton will go to Forsyth, where the governor will be one of the principal speakers at the Founders' day exercises of Bessie Tift college, which is the second oldest woman's college in the United States, next in age only to Wesleyan college, of Macon.

On April 5, Governor Slaton will address the governors of several states at Chattanooga. The governors of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, and perhaps one or two other states, will meet in Chattanooga to lend their indorsement to the movement for a great highway from Illinois and Indiana through to the southernmost part of Florida.

Several weeks ago Governor Slaton accepted an invitation to deliver the Memorial day address on April 26 at Monroe, Madison county.

ATLANTA NEGROES WILL OBSERVE HEALTH WEEK

National negro health week, March 21-27, will be observed in Atlanta. Leading negroes, who have the co-operation of the white citizens, have planned to make the week an important one for the members of their race by inducing them to clean up their premises, give a closer study to sanitation rules, and to learn much concerning the may health and sanitation problems facing them.

The city sanitary department will furnish wagons to haul away the trash cleaned from the premises of the negroes. There will be special sermons dealing with hygenic methods of living in all negro churches today and during the week addresses will be delivered in a number of the negro churches and schools by representatives of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, and by colored physicians and teachers.

HOW "TIZ" GLADDENS TIRED, ACHING FEET

"TIZ" fixed my sore, swollen, burning, calloused feet and corns.

"TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired. Think of it, no more foot misery; no more burning corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug store or department store, and get instant relief. Get a whole year's foot relief for only 25 cents. Think of it!—(Advt.)

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS DEAD IN WASHINGTON

(By Associated Press.)

LINCOLN, Mass., March 20.—Charles Francis Adams died at 2 o'clock this morning at his winter residence in Washington, D. C. He had been ill with grip for a week.

Mr. Adams was born in 1835. Word of his death was received at his home here this forenoon.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—(Advt.)

Blood Risings Begin A Mere Speck

Stop Them From Growing Large and Dangerous.

Nearly everyone who uses S. S. S. for the blood recalls a friend who went through untold suffering as the result of a mere pimple or small blood rising. A host of people did not realize, until too late, what may result from a slight skin abrasion. But time recovered if they used S. S. S. and in almost every village and hamlet, every crossroad and away back off the road is someone who will tell you that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, restored his health.

It is a most interesting fact that this remarkable vegetable medicine overhauls the blood in a manner that excites curious minds.

But it acts in accordance with accepted physiological laws and yet its effect is almost beyond comprehension to those who are wedded to such drugs as mercury, calomel, arsenic, iodide of potash, copper and other baneful influences which all the world bears silent testimony to their destructive tendencies.

S. S. S. is indeed a nature's tribute to what we need and it is worthy of note that in almost any drug store throughout the country you will find it regularly in stock. Get a bottle today. And if you believe yours is a peculiar case, write to the Medical Adviser of the Swift Specific Co., 166 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our word for it, he is one of Georgia's appreciated specialists, retired from active practice, but proud of his name and of his recognized ability.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

25-cent bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair

To be possessed of a head of beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, by the way, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA.

Petrograd, Feb. 4th: As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their suffering are as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their county in Europe.

Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of those weaknesses of their sex, because of his "Favorite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those weaknesses, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription specially causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensation, worry and sleeplessness surly and without loss of time.

What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Get it this very day at any medicine dealer's in either liquid or tablet form.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.—(Advt.)

ARKWRIGHT ADDRESSES PRINCIPALS OF SCHOOLS

Regulation of Public Service Corporations Is Subject of Talk

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company, delivered a highly interesting address Saturday morning to the principals of the Atlanta public schools at their semi-monthly meeting in the Girls' High school.

At the conclusion of the address, which held the close attention of the principals from beginning to finish, Miss Mamie Pitts, principal of State Street school and chairman of the class proposed a rising vote to thank Mr. Arkwright and to show him that the principals felt he had taught them something. The motion was passed with enthusiasm.

The subject of the address was the regulation of public service corporations with particular reference to the Georgia Railway and Power company's street car system in Atlanta. Only incidentally did Mr. Arkwright touch on jitney buses. What he said on this matter came at the close of his address and was prefaced by the remark that he was not going to say anything about jitney buses. Then joining in the smile which greeted this remark, he briefly outlined his views on the jitneys as follows:

BUSINESS MOVE.

"Nobody goes into a business for fun. The object of every business is to make money. The object of the jitney buses is to make money. They propose to haul people back and forth on the streets of Atlanta at a profit to themselves.

"Our position on jitney buses has been misunderstood. We are not opposed to them. We do not ask that they be prohibited from operating. What we ask is that if they share the benefits of a public carrier they assume the obligations of a public carrier. Some people want them to share these benefits without any obligations at all. That would not be right. It would not be right to us, it would not be right to the public.

"As I say, I do not think they should be prohibited. Nothing that is right should or can be prohibited. If jitney buses have the inherent elements of success, if they prove a better means of transportation than street cars, then they will survive, and no artificial obstacle can prevent their survival.

"But we contend that they should be subject to rules. They should be responsible for injuries and damages they may do. We are responsible. They should pay for the right to operate. We pay for the right to operate. They should be required to comply with certain standards of service. We are required to comply with certain standards of service. We are required to meet certain standards.

"It is not a question in Atlanta or in any other city which has or expects to have jitney buses of prohibiting them. It is a question of regulating them. Not prohibitory regulations, but reasonable regulation.

"Don't make them immune from regulation simply because their operation may hurt the street car company. Let them hurt the street car company, if thereby the public will get better service. But don't let them hurt the street car company just for spite, without any benefit to the public.

"How about all jitneys and no street cars? Would the public be willing to depend on them that far?

"Or how about jitney buses for the center of the city and street cars for the suburbs? That would compel us to charge more for car rides to the suburbs, because our losses on suburban service must be borne by our profits on central service. Would that be fair, either to us or to the public?"

A summary of Mr. Arkwright's address proper, in which he discussed regulation of public service corporations is as follows:

"Our democratic theory of government is that the best government is the one which governs the least. This theory has been departed from where my business, the street car business, is concerned.

"In the beginning public service corporations were regulated by legislation. That was found to be unsatisfactory, because such regulation was always unfair, either to the corporations or to the public.

"It was found that the best means of regulation was to have one central body continuously in session with continuous and continuing power over public service corporations. Thus we have our state railroad commission.

"The power of the commission over our company is practically unlimited. It regulates our capitalization, our service, our rates, our earnings. It has practically every power over us except the power to sign our checks. Our business to the commission is an open book. There may be vices in our business, but if so they are not secret vices.

RESPONSIBILITIES.

"Yet, with all this power over our business, the commission shares none of our responsibilities. Do not misunderstand me. I do not say this is wrong; I say it is right.

"Our business, like any other, must be governed by certain rules. But if you don't like our rules, you can complain to the railroad commission, and the commission will require us to show that the rule or rules complained of are reasonable.

"Our company is called a monopoly, sometimes the word being used as a term of opprobrium to create antagonism and prejudice against us. We are not a monopoly in law or in fact. The constitution of Georgia prohibits monopolies.

"We ought to be a monopoly. It is utterly inconsistent to control us by a central body such as the railroad commission and subject us also to the control of unrestricted competition. Competition with us may not be present, but there is never a moment when it is not possible and potential. Numbers of competing franchises have been granted by the city council since we have been in business.

"The public would be better served by a monopoly. You want, in your street car system, a continuous ride to any part of the city for one fare, either direct or on transfer. With competition, you could not get this, for certainly every section of the city could not support two or more street car systems; consequently each system would have to depend upon a particular section or group of sections for its support, and your street car service would therefore be limited to the radius of the particular system on whose line you lived. A good many of the states having a central body like our railroad commission has recognized this and have provided by law that no public service corporation shall enter a field already served by such a corporation unless it be shown that an actual public necessity exists therefor.

ECONOMIC LAWS.

"A street car company is subject to the same general economic laws that govern every other business. We cannot sell services for less than it costs —and stay in business. I have here a diagram showing what becomes of the nickel you pay for a car ride."

Mr. Arkwright then explained the diagram, showing the proportionate part of income spent for salaries, materials and maintenance, damage suits, taxes and the various other items of cost in street car operation.

The most interesting of these items was taxes.

"Our taxes to the city," said Mr. Arkwright, "are more than the taxes of all the other public service corporations holding franchises; plus the taxes on all automobiles, bicycles, live stock and everything else that uses the streets; plus the taxes on all the sheepapers; plus the taxes on the five principal hotels; plus the taxes on the six principal department stores; plus the taxes on all the personal property in the city. Take all of these taxes and put them together and our taxes to the city are more."

The school principals gave vent to exclamations of astonishment.

"Yet we don't pay too much," said Mr. Arkwright; and, smiling, "maybe we don't pay enough," whereupon the principals laughed.

"So there remains out of your nickel, after everything else has been paid .24 of 1 cent, and that (smiling) is our profit. Do you thing we are robbing the public?"

ASK NEW TRIAL FOR ALLEGED MOONSHINER

Attorney Frank Haralson, representing T. J. Henderson, alleged moonshiner, of Union county, appeared in the Federal court Saturday to ask for a new trial for Henderson.

His grounds were that the still was operated by Henderson's sons and that the father knew nothing about it. He served over two months of his three months sentence, when the court, on account of the illness of Henderson's wife, suspended sentence temporarily. The hearing was set for April 10.

LUNATIC REFUSED TO EAT, DECLARES DEPUTY

After an interesting trip with a lunatic who refused to eat and whose one wish was to step off the moving train, Deputy J. W. Stallings, of Judge Wilkinson's court, returned to Atlanta from Athens, O., Saturday, where he placed James E. Lorey, an escaped inmate of the Athens asylum, back in the institution.

Lorey was found in Atlanta in a demented condition some days ago.

Glenn Will Speak

THIS WEEK IN ATLANTA'S MOVIES

SOME OF THE STARS AT THE MOVIES THIS WEEK. 1. John Barrymore, in "Are You a Mason?" Montgomery Monday and Tuesday. 2. Francis X. Bushman, Alamo 2 Friday. 3. Leah Baird, in "The Radium Thieves," Vaudette Wednesday. 4. Scene from "The Greater Barrier," with George Gebhart, Alamo 1 Monday. 5. Anna Little, as Lenora in "The Black Box," Alpha Monday 6. Betty Nanset, in "The Celebrated Scandal," Grand MMonday and Tuesday. 7. Margaret Fischer, in "The Quest," Strand Monday.

"THE BLACK BOX" BEGINS AT ALPHA THEATER MONDAY.

The Black Box" is here,

The wonder serial which has been awaited for weeks past by local movie fans makes its debut Monday at the Alpha theater, and those who wish to see the finest detective drama of them all will not miss the first installment.

This serial by E. Phillips Oppenheim already has broken all records. In New York City alone 600 theaters are showing it, and its popularity increases rather than wanes with the days. One reason for this is the authorship. Phillips Oppenheim is recognized as the master thriller of literature. And the man who wrote "The Prince of Sinners," "The Master Mufmer," "The Great Secret," Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo" and "The Double Traitor," now running in the Post, has turned into "he Black Box" all the lure and romance and climax of which he is king.

Another reason is the all-star Universal caste, long-time favorites of the film world. The names of Herbert Rawlinson and Anna Little, Otis Turner, William Worthington, Frank McQuarril and others all testify to the merit of the production.

Impartial reviews of "The Black Box" in a trade magazine say it is by far the most pleasing serial produced in some time. While it is a mystery story, instead of growing unfathomably complicated as it advances, the plot is followed with ease. At the same time it lacks nothing in romance and suspense.

Monday the Strand theater shows the first of the Mutual Master pictures on which the Mutual company has expended all the art and film-craft for which it is famous.

It is "The Quest," a five-reeler of love, romance and the pursuit of an ideal. John Douglas, hero, weary of society, sees a vision of the "girl of his dreams" and goes away on a yachting cruise. The ship catches afire, John jumps overboard, and swims to an island. There he sees the "girl of his dreams" in the flesh, chases her and is felled by a stone she throws. He comes to in the village of the "lost tribe," where the girl proves to be Nai, daughter of Neto, the chief. John makes love to her, arousing the jealousy of Kairo, the sub-chief, and is banished after a fight. Later John rescues the girl, they are married by the priest and flee. While waiting for a yacht to take them off the island, John guards her slumbers.

He dreams, and in his dreams he has a vision of his return and De Villiers, his friends attempting to steal away his love. Waking, he decides not to return home, but to go back to the village and live there forever with her.

The showing of "The Quest" Monday varies somewhat the program of the Strand, the "Twenty Million Dollar Mystery" being booked for Tuesday, with a Keystone comedy.

JOHN BARRYMORE, DOCKSTADER, OTHER STARS AT MONTGOMERY.

Four big feature films are booked for the Montgomery theater this week: John Barrymore, matinee idol and famous comedian, in "Are You a Mason?" A Paramount production, Monday and Tuesday; Henry Walthal in "Rods of Wrath," Wednesday, Lew Dockstader, the minstrel star you all know, in "Dan," a war time comedy drama, Thursday, and Alice Dovey in "The Commanding Officer," Friday and Saturday.

"Jack" Barrymore long ago won the hearts of his public in various stage comedies and later topped that success with even greater fame as a screen star in "An American Citizen" and "The Man from Mexico;" but it remained for "Are You a Mason?" to place him in his element. Leo Dirichstein's well known scream tells the story of a young married man who is repeatedly urged by his wife to become a Mason. Seeing the chance it gives him to stay out late o'nights," he tells her he has joined the lodge, only to become involved in the wildest tangles of deception and fun when his wife's father, "grand master of the Masons," arrives for a visit. Everybody who sees "Are You a Mason?" at the Montgomery Monday and Tuesday is assured of an hour's laughter.

Lew Dockstades in the movies, in an innovation that will be hailed with joy by thousands of Atlantians. Lew has been seen here time and again as a minstrel star, and has won a place as high favorite in fun-loving hearts. At the Montgomery Thursday, in "Dan," a Civil war drama written by Hal Reid, he takes the part of an old negro servant, and through five acts, 250 scenes, injects sparkling comedy into a play that thrills with melodrama.

ALICE JOYCE MONDAY AT ALAMO NO. 2.

In "The Girl of the Music Hall," the Kalem drama in which Alice Joyce appears at the Alamo No. 2 Monday there is told one of the most gripping stories of modern city life.

When the opera which Fane considers his masterpiece turns out a failure, the man loses all interest in life and in an effort to divert his thoughts accompanies a party of friends to an East Side music hall. To his surprise in this wretched dive he finds one of the singers, Ida, has a glorious voice. He is interested in her, but becomes disgusted when he finds her uneducated, and leaves the place.

Treated cruelly by Hagan, "bouncer," the girl goes to Fane next day for help and interests him again despite her crudeness. He undertakes her vocal training. In the meantime Hagan still threatens her, and one of Fane's friends, Alan Glynn, an artist returned from abroad, falls in love with the girl. Fane, too, loves her, but guards his secret.

For revenge, Hagan informs Glynn of Ida's past life. Glynn then tells her that he is willing to love her, but will never make her his wife. Ida's love for him turns to hate. Sick at heart, she returns to the slums. Glynn and Hagan, following her, quarrel and Glynn shoots Hagan and is arrested as a murderer. Fane finds her and then at last she comes to realize that he and not Glynn is the "one man."

"THE RADIUM THIEVES," BIG VAUDETTE FEATURE.

With Stella Razetto and Gery Oliver in a Selig drama Monday, Walace Beery in comedy; "The Exploits of Elaine" Tuesday; Leah Baird and Leo Delaney in a three-reeler Wednesday; a star drama and comedy Thursday; Cleo Ridgeley and Flora Finch Friday; and G. M. Anderson and Helen Holmes Saturday—the Vaudette offers an attractive bill to movie fans this week.

Especially is Wednesday's drama interesting. It is "The Radium Thieves," in three parts, and tells how Dr. Samuel Rayner, superintendent of the American Skin and Cancer hospital, was sent abroad to purchase half a million dollars' worth of radium. He leaves his son, Robert, behind and takes Betty Watson, a pretty nurse, with him, to treat the radium burns on his hand. Incidentally he hopes to break up the growing intimacy between the two.

A band of international crooks trail them, and in a desperate battle in Berlin, Betty foils their efforts to steal the radium. On the voyage home, one of the crooks gets the radium, but is blinded by its rays. Betty secures the case, but the crooks frame up to have them kidnaped in New York. The arrival of Dr. Rob Rayner to treat one of the crooks for the blindness, results in discovery, the imprisonment of the crooks and the ending of a happy romance.

Donald Brain in Movies

Donald Brian, famed as the prince in "The Merry Widow," and one of Broadway's leading lights, has become a movie star like the rest of 'em. He has signed to pose for his first photo-drama after the present theatrical season is over.

MONDAY

"THE QUEST"

An American Distinctive Creation in Five Reels

Tells a story of romantic beauty with the genuine atmosphere of the South Seas. A great ship is destroyed in the open ocean, merely to provide one scene of thrill. Margarita Fischer, the most beautiful woman in motion pictures; Harry Pollard, Nan Christy, Lucille Ward, Joseph E. Singleton and William Carroll are the chief players in an admirable company.

Great Mutual Masterpiece

Portrays every emotion of the human heart, with scenic effects that are thrilling and startling. The story takes one from the highest of American society to the primeval lost tribe of the South Sea Islands, and the heart throb accompanies every act.

A picture that will make one feel better for having seen it. A true-to-life story with intense interest throughout. You can't afford to miss this great master picture.

AT THEATERS AND THE MOVIES

Joe Jefferson and Other Vaudeville at the Forsyth, Atlanta Has "Lady Luxury" Friday and Saturday

Replete with big feature acts direct from Broadway, the Forsyth bill this week is topped by two national favorites, Joe Jefferson and company in "Poor Old Jim," human-interest comedy, and charles Ahearn's thrilling offering, "The Demon Cyclists."

The remainder of the program includes Kellar Mack and Frank Orth; Baby Helen, the child genius; Eddie Mack and Dot Williams, Madden and Fitzpatrick, and McCloid and Carp.

Joseph Jefferson is the son of the noted actor of "Rip Van Winkle" fame, and is no smaller star of vaudeville than his father was of the legitimate. In "Poor Old Jim" he portrays the fascinating role of Jim the husband, who prefers the club to his wife's company.

Charles Ahearn, producer of the Ahearn company of demon cyclists, is perhaps the most efficient exponent of buffoonery awheel that vaudeville knows. For season after season the Ahearn troupe has set the standard of cycle acts and both in this country and abroad they have left behind them an undying trail of laughter and thrills.

Eddie Mack and Dot Williams come with a series of the newest and most intricate dance creations. Madden and Fitzpatrick, presenting "The Turn of the Tide," are not unknown to Atlanta vaudeville lovers. Their last appearance in this city was at the old Orpheum. Kellar Mack and Frank Orth offer the singing and mondologue novelty, "The Wrong Hero," a veritable "scream" from overture to finish.

The reputation "Little Elsie" gained as a child phenomenon is rapidly being surpassed by Baby Helen, a child genius who is predicted a career equally as brilliant as the noted Miss Janis. Baby Helen is one of the extra-added attractions for the Forsyth.

"LADY LUXURY" AT THE ATLANTA.

The attraction at the Atlanta Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee will be the comedy, "Lady Luxury," which has just closed an engagement at the Casino, New York. It is by Rida Johnson Young and William Schroeder.

The company includes Florence Webber, Leo Stark and Jean Pelltier, Donald MacDonald, Forrest Huff, Emilie Lea, Arthur Albro, Emilly Fitzroy, Sam J. Burton and others.

The dresses, which are said to be unusually expensive and beautiful, were designed and executed by Lady Duff Gordon.

A special orchestra under the direction of Arthur F. Kautzenbach will interpret the twenty-two musical numbers, the most popular being "Pick a Pickaninny," "I'm Longing For You," "Hi There Buddy," "Kiss Me Kiss Once More" and "Dream On, My Princess."

The story concerns Eloise, the niece of Edward Van Cuyler, who has been brought up in the strictest simplicity, and obedience, it being a provision of her father's will that she obey her uncle in everything. Eloise has long nursed secret longings for a gayer life, and on the stroke of 5 on the afternoon that she attained her majority and estates, this modern Cinderella, as though by the touch of a fairy Godmother's wand, transforms the dingy old home into a veritable bower of light and gaiety, filling the place with new servants and numerous guests, much to the dismay of her placid old uncle.

BIGGEST BOOKINGS EVER ANNOUNCED FOR GRAND.

Including D. W. Griffith's marvelous spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation's Liberty," now showing at $2 prices on Broadway, the Grand theater announces the booking of the biggest and most elaborate features produced in the country's most important studios.

Agents in New York wired Saturday that they had obtained the pick of Atlanta releases, thus affiliating the Grand with such concerns as William A. Brady, William Fox, the Alliance, Liebler, Shubert, Dryaden, California and World companies.

Next week's program is an all-star one Belle Nansen, the Danish star, in "The Celebrated Scandal," Monday and Tuesday; "The High Hand," Jacques Futrelle's immortal story, Wednesday and Thursday; "What Happened to Jones," a comedy of comedies, with Fred Mace, Friday and Saturday.

The monster Griffith picture, based upon "The Clansman," a photographic history of the Civil war, including the burning of Atlanta and Sherman's march to the sea, is in twelve reels, two acts, and has been released less than two weeks. It has been hailed by New York as the picture of the age. It will be shown at the Grand within the coming month.

On account of the tremendous cost of the new bookings, the Grand will raise the night performance admission to 10 cents beginning Monday, the matinees remaining 5 cents.

ALAMO 1 OPENS WEEK WITH REX BEACH PLAY.

Following a successful opening last Monday, the Alamo No. 1 has been crowded each day at its new site near Five Points, where the old Elite theater was.

Firstclass pictures are being booked. This week's program opens with "The Greater Barrier" on Monday, a stirring drama of the west. In movie form every detail of this land, where men bulk big, is portrayed faithfully, and the story itself is a vivid drama of life among the red men.

Manager Danforth, of the Alamo 1, is making every effort to place his house among the front rank of theaters the country over. The same arrangements are in vogue that were such attractive features of the Alamo 1 during its existence on Whitehall street, and patrons are assured of the utmost courteous treatment as well as high-class pictures.

Fox Film Corporation to Book "The Nigger" Here

Since the outcry from Augusta, Ga., where the film was produced, Atlanta has become interested in the forthcoming showing here of "The Nigger" or "The New Governor," produced by the Fox Film corporation, William Fox president, W. R. Sheehan, general manager, O. P. Hall, manager of the Atlanta branch through which the film is booked.

The subject of "The Nigger" was a matter of profound study by the author, Edward Sheldon. He delved deeply into its central situation on the very ground where the action of the drama takes place. The result is a play that is big and vibrant with the convincing realism of sincerity and truth "The Nigger" deals with basic things. It touches the highest and the lowest strains in human nature. With masterly power Mr. Sheldon has created an epic on that vexed question "the colored problem." A southerner himself, Mr. Sheldon speaks with authority on what he writes about.

The Greatest Sale of Shoes Atlanta Has Ever Seen

There have been many great Shoe Sales in Atlanta, but never has there been a day of shoe selling that eclipsed the opening day at our store yesterday. We advertised that we had a store filled to overflowing with SAMPLE SHOES—the best to be had at any price—and that we were going to sell them at about half their regular prices. They came, they examined our shoes, they were fitted, they bought and they went away satisfied. This advertisement is published this morning to inform the Atlanta buying public that our big sale of the best values in Shoes for men and women has just really begun. Tomorrow it starts anew. Come and select your new Spring Shoes at half of what you would have to pay somewhere else. We received 30 cases of Ladies' Shoes (36 pairs to the case) Saturday afternoon too late to be placed on display. Come see them tomorrow.

POPULAR PRICE PLAN ADOPTED BY WINECOFF

J. F. Letton Surrenders Ten-Year Lease to Birmingham Man

Following a change of hands Saturday, the Winecoff hotel will be run on a new popular priced plan, with a minimum charge of $1.50 and a maximum of $2 a day, announced Robert R. Meyer, of Birmingham, the new lessee.

J. F. Letton, former lessee, who surrendered his ten year lease from W. F. Winecoff, owner of the hotel, to Mr. Meyer Saturday, said he hoped to remain in Atlanta, but has not yet decided upon another business connection.

The new managment will be known as the Winecoff operating company; F. C. Steele, former manager of the Caw, will be the new manager. The remainder of the official personnel will be unchanged.

Mr. Meyer, a capatilist of Birmingham, is sole lessee of four other large hotels beside the Winecoff, the Seminole, of Jacksonville, the Hermitage and Maxwell, of Nashville, and the Youree, of Shreveport, La.

Mr. Meyer is enthusiastic over the Southeastern fair at Lakewood, and declared it would prove a great benefit for this whole section of the country.

Mr. Meyer said that he expected to spend a large part of his time in Atlanta, and that eventually he would make this his headquarters because of the convenient location.

One of the things that influenced him in the selection of the location, he added, was the convergence of so many thoroughfares into Peachtree street, as well as the contemplated improvements at the "bottle-neck."

GENERAL SCOTT BRINGS IN OUTLAW PIUTE INDIANS

Army Officer, Alone, Succeeds Where Armed Posse Met With Failure

(By Associated Press.)

DENVER, Col., March 20.—General Scott, chief of staff of the army, accompanied by Tse-Ne-Gat, a Piute Indian wanted by the federal authorities for murder; "Old Polk," his father; Chief Posey and the latter's son, arrived in Bluff, Utah, late today, according to a special dispatch from Bluff.

General Scott entered the Indian country two weeks ago to seek to pacify recalcitrant Piutes who were aiding Tse-Ne-Gat in resisting arrest.

A posse of federal deputies under Marshal Nebaker, of Salt Lake City, recently made an unsuccessful attempt to arrest the Indian and in a battle a member of the posse and two Indians were killed and several wounded.

General Scott, accompanied only by his aide, an orderly and Navajo guides, left Bluff ten days ago in an effort to induce the Indians to surrender. Details of how he got the leaders of the band to return with him have not been received.

TWO YOUNG ATLANTIANS ARE HIKING TO FRISCO

Herman Billet and J. T. West Start on Walk to Exposition

Herman Billet, the young son of Judah Billet, lessee of Lakewood Park, and J. T. West, a young friend of Herman living near Lakewood, left Atlanta on a hike to the San Francisco exposition, taking with them letters of identification from Mayor Woodward and others.

They expect to walk 20 to 25 miles a day and reach San Francisco about the first of July. Their plan is to get work on the exposition grounds when they arrive and after living in San Francisco about six month to start on a return hike home, being absent from Atlanta twelve month all told.

On the way they will undertake to defray living expenses by repairing automobiles and doing mechanical jobs picked up from place to place. They carried very little working capital, being determined to pay their way as they went.

We Are Tailors and Haberdashers---

SUB-COMMITTEES WILL PROBE NEEDS OF CITY

Aid of Citizens in Work Is Asked by Alderman Thomson

Five subcommittees to investigate the needs of city departments have been appointed by Alderman Albert Thomson, chairman of the special bond committee of council.

The bond committee is going into a thorough study of the condition of the various municipal departments, and Chairman Thomson urges that citizens who have suggestions for the improvement of the departments call the members of the committee and give them the benefit of their ideas.

In his letter to the committeemen announcing the appointments, Chairman Thomson says:

"As you have an equal responsibility, it is hoped that you will immediately get together, inform yourselves thoroughly and make a written report as to conditions. Let the truth be told the public as to the needs of their city and make such recommendations as seem to you proper. The general committee will be called together again within a week or ten days, so it is necessary that you get busy at once."

The following are the committees named:

Water and parks, Hall and Mason; education, Smith and Wood; police and fire, Owens and Seawright; hospitals and health, White of the Seventh, and McCord; public works and improvements, Maddox and Thomson.

DR. W. STATES JACOBS AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Rev. William States Jacobs, D. D., of Houston, Tex., pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in Texas, son of Dr. William P. Jacobs, the famous Presbyterian divine who was the founder and is still the president of the Thornwell orphanage at Clinton, S. C., will preach at the Central Congregational church this morning at 11 o'clock.

The congregation of this church is congratulating itself because Dr. Jacobs will be able to preach to them for several Sundays. He is a speaker of great eloquence and force, and a large attendance is expected.

Dr. William States Jacobs, although now living in Texas, is very well known in Atlanta, where he has many friends. One of his brothers, Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, lives in Atlanta.

THE DAY'S WORK

Does it sometimes seem that you simply could not get your work done? Do you constantly feel like sitting down? Perhaps you yawn continually. Then you need

Tutt's Pills

Because your liver is sluggish and should be stirred to activity—at your druggist's, sugar coated or plain.

CALOMEL SICKENS! IT'S HORRIBLE! DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

I guarantee "Dodson's Liver Tone" will give you the best Liver and Bowel cleansing you ever had Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work. Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; Calomel injures your liver.

If you are bilious; feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.—(Advt.)

Editor Tells How D. D. D. Prescription Cured His Eczema

Clergyman and Banker Also Write

H. G. Hotchkiss, Editor Echo, Prophettstown, Ill.: Remember, mine was eczema of fifteen years standing. Now I am completely healed, after 4 bottles of D. D. D. I have seen a case of 25 years standing cured. I have seen my own doctor cured of barber's itch, which he could not cure himself.

F. R. Tesar, Banker, Hopkinton, Ia.: I treated with three doctors for six months. They did me no good; my face and scalp were full of the disease. I applied D. D. D. Result—my face is as smooth as a baby's.

Rev. L. I. Downing, Pastor 5th Ave. Presbyterian Church, Roanoke, Va.: For three years I suffered intensely so, have at last found relief in D. D. D. I am no longer tortured—completely cured. I have no hesitancy in acknowledging the great virtues of this specific.

The cures of D. D. D. are past belief. All druggists know and are glad to recommend this soothing, cooling liquid. 8c, 30, $1.00.

Hay and Pasture Grasses for the South

THE day and time has come when our people must plant more grasses, raise more hay and have more permanent pastures. There are so many good grasses that will thrive and do well in the south that we have no excuse whatever for not having permanent pastures winter and summer. We will never have good live stock until we first have pastures and feed in abundance for them. It is absolutely essential.

Our native Bermuda grass that was once cursed has practically kept the southern farmers from being bankrupt. It has furnished feed to keep hundreds of head of cattle from starving, and is at this late day being appreciated and cared for as it should be. The only trouble with it is it is strictly a summer grass and must have hot weather to do well.

Every Bermuda pasture should be substituted with white clover and some blue glass which will grow all winter and thrive well among the Bermuda roots. From three pounds of seed per acre planted now or in August or September on any Bermuda sod will soon give a good stand of clover to last all during the winter. Rye grass and the different lawn mixtures if planted in August and September on Bermuda sod will give fine green pastures through the cold winter months and early spring. For one to look at the Bermuda grass lawns in the different cities at this season of the year would convince and show our farmers that it is possible for them to have it if they will only prepare and plant their pastures at the proper time.

Johnson grass which has also been so much complained of is now making the best of hay, and has made rich records at Alabama and Mississippi farmers. They have learned to cut it at the right time, before it goes to seed, and are selling on the Atlanta market at $18 to $20 per ton a great deal of the splendid hay. Anyone can raise Johnson grass but on any farm in the south, and there are but few crops that will pay better on our land.

Another grass that seems to have a great future is Sudan grass. This is a species of sorghum and very similar to Johnson grass and must be planted every year. It is not like the Johnson grass that comes from the roots and hard to destroy, but comes from seed. It will make an abundance of hay and will grow on any of our soils. It is one of the main feeds for most Texas dairymen, and they have found it to be the cheapest and easiest raised of any hay they can grow. It promises to fill the long felt want for quick feed among all of our dairymen and live stock breeders. The land should be properly prepared and the seed planted as early as possible, the same as you would plant German millet or sorghum. The different seed dealers have this listed in their catalogue and information telling you how and when it should be planted, and can be had from them.

Crimson clover as a fertilizing crop is taking very fast and much has been planted during the past winter. Alfalfa when properly planted and cared for, of course, makes more tons of hay per acre than anything that can be planted, and it gives the best of grazing and is there twelve months of the year, but judgment must be used in how close to graze and at what time. Never allow stock on it while wet.

The past year several farmers have found one of the heaviest yielding and quickly grown crops of hay to have been produced from a mixture of peas and German millet. When this is cut at the proper stage and properly cured it makes an abundance of hay of the highest quality and probably more per acre from one cutting than any crop that we can grow here. If planted early the peas will make a second crop after the cutting of millet is removed.

Another crop that seems to be popular is beardless barley. One south Georgia grower has harvested during the latter part of February at least one ton of hay per acre of land. Several acres of beardless barley as a nurse crop planted among his alfalfa. He is high in his praise of this early food crop for this section of country. There are many other things that we will soon know about that will help our feed proposition in time to come.

Every farmer in this country has some waste acres on the farm that can be converted into permanent pastures and the sooner we study the wants and habits and take care of our pastures that much quicker will we have food for our live stock. The market is here to use thousands of dollars worth of hay. Every extra ton that our southern farmer produces can be harvested and cured in good shape can always be sold and converted into cash any day in the year.

Yours very truly,

Grimpen Bonney

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION.

New Holland, Ga.

Your articles in The Atlanta Journal have been so much help to me that I am turning to you for advice.

I have a fine your heifer who brought her first calf one month ago. She did fruitfully for about eight days when her udder broke out in white blisters. I gave her sulphur on the tongue, and it dried up, but about then she stopped eating her soft feed. She eats fodder and shucks all right. Her milk has a sweet faint taste and smell, and her breath smells the same way. She was living, besides what the calf got, about 1 1-2 gallons per day. She now gives only enough to sustain the calf and is very thin. She has been drenched with salts and I am giving her a regulator. But with no results. Hollow horn has been suggested. What do you think is her trouble and what must I do? I also have calf scours in the hide bound. Can anything be done for this?

Thanking you in advance for any help that you can give me, I am,

A. B. W.

ANSWER.

It would be impossible for me to tell what the trouble is with the heifer unless I could see her. But, from the description given I am confident she has eaten something that has caused indigestion and upset her system.

Give her one-half pint of raw linseed oil, and be sure to ask the druggist for pure oil to be used for medical purposes. The bottle should be placed in warm water so it will become soft and not strangle while drenching her. Repeat this dose in a few days. Two days later give as a drench one ounce of time of turpentine one ounce of sweet oil mixed with one pint of tepid water. Repeat this dose one week later.

Do not feed anything except bran for one week, mixed with some hulls and dampened, also plenty of good hay. Do not give any cotton seed meal, and only feed what she will eat up clean twice a day. See that she has plenty shade and water before her and plenty fresh water. Let her graze on some green food if possible for a short time each day.

If this treatment does not relieve her it would be best for you to get a veterinarian to see and prescribe for her.

QUESTION.

Concord, Ga.

Will you kindly tell me the correct proportions of water and water glass to use in storing eggs, and what kind of vessels to use? Are eggs thus preserved equal to fresh eggs for eating and culinary purposes?

Thanking you, I am,

MRS. J. H.-S.

ANSWER.

The proper proportions of water glass to use are three to five parts water glass mixed with forty-five to ninety-seven parts distilled water. Earthen vessels or good clean kegs are all right to pack these eggs in. A cover should be used to keep them under the fluid at all times. No dirty or bad eggs should be placed in the vessel, as one bad egg will spoil the entire lot. They should be candled and only good sound eggs used.

If washed and dipped in lime water when ready to use they are all right for eating or cooking but of course are not quite so good as a fresh laid egg. If sold they must be stamped or branded as pickled or preserved eggs.

QUESTION.

Elberton, Ga.

Could you give me addresses of anyone wanting to buy eggs for table use, and hens. Also prices and oblige. I read your pieces in The Journal every Sunday and enjoy them.

MRS. T. J. H.

ANSWER.

You can find ready sale for your products by inserting a small ad in The Journal. It would only cost you 25c and I am confident you can get customers for all of your products by so doing. Your inquiry is one among hundreds that come to us every week, and this shows the importance of this state having a market man in each large city to help the people find a profitable market for their products. It is to be hoped that we will be able to maintain in each large city soon to help the farmers dispose of their surplus that should be converted into cash.

AT AUCTION

Tuesday

At 3 P. M.

We will sell at auction, on the premises, that choice real estate, the NORTHEAST CORNER of EDGEWOOD AVENUE and EQUITABLE PLACE (the "OLD COLLEGE" property). This lot is THE HEART OF ATLANTA; is next to and on same side of street with the TRUST COMPANY OF GEORGIA BUILDING; is opposite the HURT BUILDING. It faces THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF ATLANTA.

There is nothing surer of enhancement in value than CENTRAL ATLANTA REAL ESTATE. It is a safe investment. If you buy at the right time, you cannot lose, and the chance for a big return on your money is good. As Atlanta grows, so grows the value of Atlanta Real Estate.

Fireproof office buildings fix the character of this locality. They are the homes of Atlanta's largest Insurance Colony. The Federal Reserve Bank, The Lowry National Bank, the Trust Company of Georgia, the Continental Trust Company and many other corporations are here.

Never before was so valuable Real Estate, near Five Points, offered at public sale. Bidders will fix the price. Don't miss the opportunity.

Atlanta is facing a new era of prosperity. Those who have been out of employment are getting back their jobs. Wages are returning to normal. The future is bright. NEW institutions are coming. Old industries are EXPANDING.

Atlanta is GROWING in all directions. Edgewood Avenue is the MAIN EAST ARTERY.

This opportunity to buy property in the "HEART OF ATLANTA" is one of a lifetime. Information as to future returns on this property will be furnished on inquiry.

Sales will be in three parcels, fronting 85, 40 and 40 feet on Edgewood Avenue. TERMS: Cash, or one-fourth cash, and balance one, two and three years at legal interest. Plats and full information will be furnished upon application to

The Real Estate Field

Improved Parcel on Peachtree Street, Near Currier, Changes Hands--West Peachtree Street Parcel, Near Fifteenth Street, Figures in Transfer--Residence and Other Sales

There was a fair assortment of real estate announcements yesterday, including a transaction on Peachtree street.

The Ryder Realty company, through W. F. Patterson and E. W. C. Reid, sold for Ben J. Massell to William P. Maury, Jr., a parcel on the east side of Peachtree street, 42.8 feet south of Currier street.

The lot is 20x102, and on it there is a two-story and basement building recently completely. The consideration was $43,663, another parcel being taken as part payment.

WEST PEACHTREE TRANSFER.

A warranty deed has gone to record conveying from Mrs. Mary C. Fields to the Traders Company of Atlanta a parcel on the east side of West Peachtree street, 210 feet south of Fifteenth street, the lot being 50x200. The consideration was $13,880.

MORELAND AVENUE SALE.

Papers went to record in DeKalb county yesterday conveying from Frank Redmondson to J. W. Honour the southeast corner of Moreland and North avenues, a residence on a lot 40x150. The consideration was $7,000.

R. F. Bishop on yesterday announced the following residence sales:

For Mrs. Helen J. Williamson to Mrs. Etta J. Johnson, No. 40 Avery drive, in Ansley park, a two story, eight room residence on a lot 55x175, for $6,000 cash.

For J. N. Biddy to an investor, No. 75 Whitehall Terrace, a six room house on a lot 50x140, for $3,000, and for J. H. Whisenant a six room bungalow at 130 Atwood street, in West End, the lot being 40x160, for $4,500.

BUILDING OUTLOOK.

Building promises to be the most active department of real estate during the immediate future.

Announcement has already been made of several new apartment houses whose aggregate cost will be about $400,000, all of which will be started in the next two months.

This is not only a significant condition from a real estate standpoint, but it means also that a great many people will be given employment, and that much building material will be bought.

The thing that is helping building

PROSPECTIVE CUSTOMERS WANTED.

I have only a limited time in which to sell the McLeod-McDowell property and if this catches the eye of any man who wants to make a few dollars on the side, come right to my office and I will equip you so that you can add to your income materially and quickly.

You must know how to talk bargains in lots and tell everybody how doggone cheap we are offering the one hundred lots in this fine property.

If you know the property and are familiar with the situation, and can sell things at prices away down under what they are worth, you will not be called a genius, but a salesman.

Get up your prospects, bring a list of them to the office, and I will put you in line where you can pull off some good deals in this property.

It requires skill and energy to do the work, and if you succeed your compensation will be liberal, and satisfactory in the highest sense. If you fail I will simply charge the time up to experience, call it square and we will part on good terms, and you can scoot for another job.

Here's what we are doing, and it means just what I say: The property is being sacrificed to meet pressing obligations.

FEDERAL MIGRATORY BIRD LAW IS DECLARED INVALID

States Alone Have Power to Enact Game Laws, Says Kansas Judge

(By Associated Press.)

TOPEKA, Kas., March 20.—The federal migratory bird law was declared unconstitutional by Judge Pollock in the United States district court today. He held that the separate states only had power to enact laws for regulation or protection of game.

The decision was in the case of George L. McCullagh, a banker of Galena, Kas., and two companions arrested on complaint of the United States district attorney for shooting ducks out of season.

SOCIALIST CONDEMNS GERMANS' TORCH WAR

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 20.—A wild scene occurred in the German Reichstag today during the second reading of the budget, according to a Berlin Reuter's telegram by way of Amsterdam. The tumult was aroused by a speech delivered by George Ledebour, a socialist deputy, who protested against "the military administration trying to Germanize portions of French territory, from which arises on the part of Alsace-Lorraine, a desire for French rule.

The statement was received with an angry outburst on the part of the deputies, some members shouting: "What about the party of peace?"

Continuing Herr Ledebour said:

"I endorse everything said in praise of our brave troops and their commanders, but in political performances the military authorities are not up to date. I am horrified to learn that for every German village burned by the Russians three Russian villages shall be burned."

"This is barbarism," shouted Dr. Karl Liekanchet, another socialist deputy, while from the right came three indignant protests one member shouting: "We won't permit the supreme military authorities to be thus attacked."

This statement resulted in a renewed disturbance and cries of "finish.' The deputies springing from their seats and excitedly shouting for order. The vice president of the house declared that criticism of the army administration was not permissible.

Encouraged by members of his own party who shouted "speak up in the name of your party," Herr Ledebour continued:

"The German policy must be such that these people will see in Germany a shield to, and a safeguard of, their freedom. As a socialist and as a German patriot I believe I ought to emphasize this. I have done this in the interest of my beloved Fatherland and Europe."

PARTY LEADERS PROTEST.

Leaders of the various parties protested against the remarks by Deputy Ledebour. Major Ernst Bassermann, a national liberal member, said:

"We regret the necessity for such reprisals, but if the Russians burn on all sides and violate women, shall we consider this does not demand such action from our military authorities as will put a stop to the inhuman warfare waged by the Russians?"

Herr Groteber, of the Centre party, said that if the military authorities were compelled, in view of the Russians' actions to take the severest reprisals in the shape of measures which are permissible under international law, they should not be hindered by representatives of the people.

Philipp Scheidemann, a socialist deputy, declared in the name of his party that "Herr Ledebour was invited to speak only on the language of the question; his other remarks were made on his own account and he alone bears the responsibility for them."

Minister of the Interior Del Brueck asserted he could not be worthy in the present situation if he did not reply to Herr Ledebour's speech.

"For everyone present today," declared the minister, "this hour will be among his bitterest memories. Herr Ledebour's criticism is unconstitutional and insulting in form and is directed against the most honored army leader.

"The war has taught us that we are materially and morally richer than we believed and that the German Fatherland is a holy treasure for every German, without consideration of religion or party. Matters which divided us in times of peace now have been set aside in this imperishable success, which offers new proof to the enemy of the economic and moral invincibility of the German people."

The estimates of the ministries of interior, colonies and navy were agreed to.

UNEMPLOYED ARE GIVEN CHANCE TO BE FARMERS

Prominent Atlanta Capitalist Will Advance Funds to Begin Work

Unemployed men in Atlanta and other Georgia cities who wish to take up farming and are able to arrange with responsible farmers as employes or tenants will be advanced money in moderate amounts by a prominent Atlanta manufacturer and capitalist, the advanced money to be repaid in the fall when crops are gathered.

Announcement to this effect was made Saturday by Charles J. Haden, president of the Georgia chamber of commerce, to whom the Atlanta capitalist made known his proposition. Those who wish to avail themselves of this offer should apply to the Georgia chamber of commerce, Atlanta, Ga.

Speaking of this offer, Mr. Haden said: "The main purpose of this highly commendable proposition is to give temporary help to those out of employment in the city who wish to begin farming permanently with the object of eventually becoming independent home owners."

ANGELS OF MERCY.

Vienna. — Everybody does his or her duty for the endangered fatherland. The poor woman on her way to factory contributes her mite to the collection boxes. The rich women open their parlors, bedrooms and kitchens to the wounded officers and soldiers. Not only do the women of Austria, France, England, Germany suffer from war's depredations, but the women in America are everyday suffering from the many ills that women are heir to.

The diseases which weaken and torment women, may in almost all cases be cured by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, heals inflammation and cures weaknesses.

Every woman who has reason to believe that backache, headache, unnatural pains, low spirits, sleepless nights, or a catarrhal condition is caused by a derangement of the womanly functions, owes it to herself and dear ones to speedily overcome the trouble before a general breakdown causes permanent prostration.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a temperance remedy that any ailing woman can safely take because it is prepared from roots and herbs with glycerine containing tonic properties and is not a secret remedy because its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

A woman's nerves are more truly the cause of worry than outside troubles. The nerves are to a woman's body the telegraph system, which surely warns her of any trouble in the feminine make-up.

Get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to-day, either in liquid or tablet form, from any dealer in medicines, if you want to better your physical condition surely and speedily. Every ingredient in "Favorite Prescription" is printed along with the directions. FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Cleanses tender little stomach, liver, bowels without injury

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a thorough "inside cleansing" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good liver and bowel cleaning should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other fig syrup with contempt.—(Advt.)

HURST-CARTER SUIT TO BE TAKEN TO HIGHER COURT

New Chapters Will Be Written Soon in Sensational Bacon County Case

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 20.—Two more chapters in the sensational Hurst-Carter suit will be written early next month, according to present indications. Late Friday a writ of habeas corpus filed by Thomas P. Hurst to secure possession of his young wife, who was before marriage Miss Addie Lee Carter, daughter of W. M. Carter, of Alma, was denied by Ordinary Hugh Taylor, of Bacon county. Attorneys for Hurst today gave notice of an appeal to superior court, and if the decision in this court is not favorable the case may finally end in the supreme court of Georgia.

Hurst and Miss Carter were married in February in Pierce county. It is alleged the young lady is not yet fourteen years old. Returning to her relatives, she remained, and, it is said, did not show any disposition to rejoin her husband. This caused him to issue warrants against the girl's father and seven others,—charging peonage. The defendants were given a preliminary hearing in Waycross March 12 before United States Commissioner Herbert W. Wilkes, only one, W. M. Carter, being bound over to court. His bond was fixed at $500 and was easily arranged.

Mr. Carter, shortly after Hurst and his daughter were married, swore out a warrant against Hurst charging him with kidnaping. Hurst is now under bond in this case and is scheduled for a hearing when Bacon superior court convenes next month. His trial and the hearing in the appeal from the ordinary's decision, whereby the girl remains with her father, are cases that will attract large crowds, owing to the prominence of all parties involved.

OLEOMARGARINE HEADS MUST STAND TRIAL

(By Associated Press.)

COLUMBUS, O., March 20.—Former officials and employes of the old Capital City Dairy company, of this city, must stand trial on charges of defrauding or conspiracy to defraud the government out of millions of dollars by evasion of the tax on colored oleomargarine, United States District Judge John E. Sater decided today by overruling demurrers to indictments against the men.

They are Dennis Kelly, M. Leo Corbett, W. H. Eberst and O. H. Marckworth. It is planned to try them early in April.

Forest Fires

(By Associated Press.)

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 18.—Forest fires have done many thousand dollars' damage in the mountains of Pike county, eastern Kentucky, according to advices reaching here today. The fire is said to have been started by incendiaries and bloodhounds are being used to trail them.

Banks Holding Record Deposits and Loanable Funds Are on the Increase--Northwestern Territory Makes Excellent Showing--New York Banks Carry $130,000,000 in Surplus Reserve--Bankers Cautious Regarding Long-Term Financing--General Business Looking Up

NEW YORK CITY, March 20.—Just now the banks of the country are confronted with that condition known as "easy money," and it is now recognized that the banks as a whole have a plethora of funds which they would be quite willing to pass along to be employed in legitimate and remunerative enterprises. The recent call of the comptroller of the currency for statements of condition of the national banks, for instance, will show an appreciable gain in deposits since the last compilation on December 31, and those statements already tabulated give ample evidence of that fact.

From Chicago comes the statement that the twenty national banks of that city, reporting to the comptroller of the currency under date of March 4, 1915, show deposits aggregating $500,700,000, an increase of $35,168,616 since the last previous reports under date of December 31, 1914. Total loans were $347,994,514, an increase of $16,458,030 and cash resources totaled $208,373,454, a gain of $39,597,361, by similar comparison. Including the state banks' figures of February 18, the total deposits of the city's banks were $1,029,575,501, an increase of $80,183,818, compared with the combined totals on occasion of the calling out of the first call for their own purposes abroad. The war loans will, as a rule, be subscribed by the citizens of those countries calling for the loans, though it is to be noted that in the case of a German government loan, subscriptions were taken in this country by a "German-American" banking house in Chicago.

While money rates are comparatively low for short-term funds, there has been but slight reduction for the commercial borrowers, and the banks seem indisposed to commit themselves to long term financing except on a very close basis of prompt payment at maturity, and in the most favorable terms. They feel that for the present it is safer to have their money within call at short notice, and that it is the wiser policy to accept a lower interest rate rather than to sacrifice the control of the situation which they now have. It is pointed out in authoritative circles that the banking world is unwilling or unable to join the business community in any ventures that involve hazards of the ordinary variety. While there is much current discussion of business, it is well known that such revival cannot become general without the action of individuals and the application of individual capital and effort. Uncertainty regarding the future, however, is so widespread, and the disposition to await action by others is so characteristic that, in spite of general belief or at all events assertion, of recovery in the near future, there has been comparatively little definite action or disposition of a general character to undertake the enterprises really good, except sporadically. The consequence is a surplus of current funds as compared with effective current demand. This naturally results in low interest rates or "easy money" for the restricted class of operations that is considered safe and profitable, and extensive idle balances with those who control the supply of loans. It is thus clear that the prevailing ease of money which has produced a lower bank rate than exists anywhere else in the world is as anomalous as the prevailing high rate for the use of capital. Both grow out of similar conditions, and are the apparent due to the destruction of fixed capital as well as the desire to husband current funds against possible emergency. From one standpoint both conditions, although anamalous as thus pointed out, are wholesome because they represent, when analyzed, the result of an attitude of caution on the part of the financial and banking community.

WAR'S EFFECT ON COMMERCE.

With the opening of April the European war will have been in progress for eight months. This period of time is sufficient to disclose the effect of the present worldwide hostilities on commerce. As far as the United States is concerned, the influence has been stimulating beyond all previous precedence.

Of necessity, Great Britain and France were wholly unable to meet the ordinary peacetime demands of their respective peoples, without speaking of the enormous requirements created by the prosecution of the war. Almost every commodity which can be produced or manufactured in the United States is required in vast quantities by the two belligerents whose ports are not closed by the blockade of hostile vessels or the even more complete isolation of nature. At the opening of the conflict, Great Britain found herself completely without war supplies and particularly without ammunition.

When the first eight months of hostilities have expired, on May first Great Britain will be fairly well supplied with ammunition, thanks to the working day and night of all the manufacturers of arms in the United States. The same is true, although to a less extent, with France, and, with the opening of the Dardanelles by the fleets of the allies, Russia will again have the means of communication with her war world. This fact will also add to the exports of arms and war supplies from the United States to the dominions of the czar.

When figures rise above a certain point it is impossible for the mind to have a clear conception of their significance. It has already been published that during 1915 the favorable American balance of trade will be a billion and a half dollars, but the average reader of newspapers gets but a faint idea of what this bald statement means. To handle this vast volume of exports the existing British and French merchant marine, taken together, is wholly inadequate, and even the maximum of all the available ships this country are called in service to meet the demands of this enormous volume of commerce which has been created by the war.

Arms and other war supplies are only a fraction of the trade which comes to the United States as a result of this tragedy of history. Food supplies of all kinds have reached a point which is making the prices all along the line and threatens to carry the cost of living beyond all previous experience. Of course, when the Black Sea ports are opened by the fall of Constantinople the surplus wheat crop of Russia will be available for export and the drain upon American wheat will be relieved. In the meantime, however, the opening of the Russian ports will mean increased trade for the United States.

With this development there is a natural increase in all the call for small steamers and, if the present pace can be maintained, the day is not far distant when the merchant marine of the United States will reach a magnitude far greater than what has ever been known before.

Under these circumstances it seems strange that there should be so much talk of dullness, depression, hard times or unemployment in any part of the United States; and it is not too much to expect that the coming year will bring universal prosperity to the entire people of this great land.

Aggressive Bull Support and Short Covering Caused Advance

Cotton Advanced Sharply on Buying Which Started With Western Traders but Became General Early in the Session

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 20.—In face of ginning figures that were very close to expectations and pointed to a crop of around 17,000,000 bales, including linters, cotton today showed such pronounced strength that October equalled its previous high record point and January made a new high level for the movement. The close was steady at a net advance of 10 to 13 points.

Liverpool came somewhat lower than due and was responsible for a partial opening decline here of 4 points. After easing off a point or two further on near months, the local market hardened and was under bull control for the balance of the session.

Stock exchange houses covered considerable cotton, and there was rather aggressive support from bull traders at times which showed an absence of any alarm over the indications for a record-breaking crop.

Advices from the south indicated that spot people appeared to be equally unconcerned over the question of supplies, and the feeling here seemed to be that the prospective material reduction in acreage and uncertain weather conditions, as a result of European political news from abroad, would be of more vital concern to the market from now on than the size of the 1914 crop.

Foreign holdings in this market are said to be penned chiefly to July and October cotton. Near the close western houses and local spot interests were good buyers, and southern reports showed no change in spot markets, indicating possibly a steadier tone than yesterday.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—Unexpected strength developed in the cotton market today and prices advanced sharply after the first hour. Buying the week on buying which started with western traders, but which became general before the session was very old. Little attention was paid to the unfavorable features of the morning. At their best the most active months were 12 to 15 points above yesterday's final figures. The close was at a net gain of 11 to 13 points.

Liverpool was well below expectations, and the final ginning returns from the census bureau of 16,645,272 bales, counting cotton and linters together, were larger than most interests expected. Notwithstanding this, the market opened at the advance and stood at the best figures of the morning. Active local buying appeared late in the session, and shorts covered in confusion throughout.

It was generally considered that the support was of a speculative character and offered to avert the reaction which seemed impending.

HAYWARD AND CLARK COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—The census gives a total ginning of 16,645,272 bales as 15,833,062. Previous 13,982,811 last year and 15,553,073 in 1914. Also 1,429,000 bales of cotton 741,453 year versus 631,153 last year.

Average gross weight of bales 507.2 pounds versus 508.2 last year. Round bales included 1,429,000 bales against 741,453 last year. Sea Island is included, 81,589 versus 77,567 last year. Expressed in 500-pound bales the crop is 16,152,636 bales against 15,772,270 this year versus 631,153 last year.

Included in report. Making allowance for additional ginning between the date of report and March 1st, such as may be ginned from held cotted crop is around 16,000,000 running bales. This means a short half a million over government estimate of last December, which was 16,096,000 in 500-pound bales, whereas today's census is in running bales.

Private estimates disappointing with futures and spots 2 points down; southern spots 50. Washington sends the following important information: Hon. Asbury F. Lever, Chairman agricultural committee of the house of representatives at Washington, D. C.

Cotton futures exchange being organized at Rotterdam with rules and regulations in conformity with Liverpool requirements, making transmission of business free of taxation.

London suggests to government with Washington to determine the status of the new bloc-ade in respect to shipping.

Washington—Acting Commissioner Gastes decided that disputes arising between cotton buyers and sellers concerning the right of inspection under the federal future act will not be settled by the interstate commerce bureau. The letter says the rules of a cotton exchange made a part of a future contract may provide that cotton involved be inspected and classified by the exchange for tender is made. Such rules nevertheless must not abrogate the right of either party, if dissatisfied, to tender cotton on the exchange and appeal to the board by secretary of agriculture for determination of grade, quality or classification.

Our markets advanced a little at the start on some Saturday selling and execution of old buying orders timed for the census publication, but trading was narrow and no change in the situation, which is that of hesitation and apprehension on account of the shipping situation. Liverpool was due to 772,270 this year. Continued cold.

New York attributed today's advance to western buying in a more aggressive spirit, on the renewed firmness in wheat, based on a change in views as to the Dardanelles situation.

Further support developed in New York in the second hour and May here advanced to 8.87c, and closed at 8.85c. Bullish weather in Texas was given as an additional basis for the buying.

JAY, BOND & CO. COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Although Liverpool cables were disappointing today, the local spot trade advanced about 10 points owing to the development of a fair demand and an absence of selling power. The south is also being freely yesterday seemed to have exhausted itself. The most important liquidation of the week was taken over by Liverpool new buyers who displayed little interest in their cotton. While liquidation causes declines now and then the market continues to display a firm tone and is in general in demand on setbacks.

NEW YORK COFFEE MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Coffee futures opened steady at a partial advance of 2 points, due to private cables and trade buying. Later on there had reported purchased about 500,000 bags out of the Santos stocks and that the latter would decline below 6c. Sales of 2,000 bags by the end of the month with possibly only half of the quantity suitable for export. May liquidation developed later in the day, however, and prices eased off, closing barely steady to 4 points lower; sales 28,000 bags.

Spot quiet; Rio No. 7 8c; Santos No. 4, 10@10 1-2. Rio exchange was 1-8d lower and a decline of 75 reis was shown in the Rio market, while Santos was unchanged. Brazilian port receipts 33,000; Jundiahy 99,000.

EARLY ADVANCE IN WHEAT MET BY RENEWED SELLING

Wheat Closed 3-8 to 3-4 Cts. Down--Corn, Oats and Lard Off--Sides Steady

CHICAGO, March 20.—Although wheat at first showed some strength, it soon turned weak. Early ralliers were advised to steadiness at Liverpool. Later the quick renewal of the Dardanelles' attack forced the bears. The opening, ⅜@1⅛c higher, was followed by moderate gains, and then by a material reaction.

Unanimity that over-Sunday developments might be adverse to bulls brought further weakness to wheat, the close was strong at ⅜ to ¾ under last night.

Slowness of cash demand acted as a weight on the close, nevertheless was steady at ⅛ to ⅜ to ¾ net decline.

GRAIN MARKET OPINIONS.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co.—Believe long side by far the safer. Corn seems unable to hold material advance. Oats, strong.

Ware & Leland—Higher prices seem logical in wheat. Corn and oats are subject to sharp declines.

Logan, Fitch & Co.—Believe setbacks in wheat will encounter a good demand.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE ESTIMATES CROPS

ROME, March 20.—The international institute of agriculture has published estimates of the world's coming crops of wheat, barley, rye, oats and corn. These will be of special interest in the present time on account of the war.

Compiled from official data supplied by each country, the estimates of the world's production of wheat in the whole world in 1914-15 will be 3,004,000,000 quintals (a quintal is 220.46 pounds) in the same territory as expressed in the scale adopted by the institute, in which 1909-13 = 100.

The figures for rye show 442,000,000 quintals; barley, 350,000,000 quintals; oats, 1,000,000,000 quintals and maize 937,000,000 quintals.

The production of wheat in 1913-14 was exceed by 36,000,000 quintals the average consumption of the years 1909-13, and was also exceed by 2,000,000 quintals, maize will be 41,000,000 quintals in excess, oats will be 60,000,000 quintals less and oats will be 17,000,000 quintals less than the five year average consumption.

INTERNATIONAL ORDERS FOR MONEY DROP A THIRD

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The international money order business of the country has fallen off 33 1-3 per cent during the first quarter of the calendar year 1915, according to a statement issued today by Charles A. Kram, auditor for the post office department. For nine months 354,238 international orders were issued amounting to $15,164,755, the statement shows, a decrease of 249,944 in number and $10,250,753 in amount from the figures for the same period in 1914. The falling off in business of the European countries was discontinued at the outbreak of the war.

Total postoffice expenditures for the same period were $72,576,654 and revenues $65,87,035, an increase of $5,-421,795 in expenditures and $1,456,271 in revenues over 1914 figures for the same period.

TRADING IN STOCKS WAS NARROW DURING THE WEEK

NEW YORK, March 20.—The stock market moved within narrow limits during the greater part of the week, with occasional signs of professional activity, chiefly in the specialties in leading issues, notably Reading and United States Steel, which were lighter than the average daily output of recent weeks but lost none of the professional character.

Foreign influence again dominated the speculative and investment situation, albeit developments in the foreign war showed little change. Exchange markets between New York and the various European money centers continued to favor this country, with resultant rumors of the placing of additional credits or loans. A German loan of $10,000,000 for a short period was reported to have been fully subscribed.

General business reflects the uncertainty expressed by leading merchants and manufacturers, but exports of merchandise and other commodities are piling up to unprecedented proportions. It is known that the United States Steel corporation and some independent manufacturers are negotiating for large foreign sales of finished materials.

Money rates continued to decline, a corollary of the huge reserves shown by financial institutions in all sections—of the country. Many domestic loans and similar financing, chiefly for municipalities, are now under consideration, the success of the recent New York state bond sale having given impetus to such operations.

The Activity and Strength of Bethlehem Steel Being the Most Noteworthy Feature Advanced Almost 10 Points From Friday's Low

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Specialties were again to the fore during the day's two-hour market session, the activity and strength of Bethlehem Steel being the most noteworthy feature. Its sales aggregated about 25,000 shares and its top figure and new record price being 98, representing a maximum advance almost 10 points from yesterday's low price. Profit-taking caused some shading from its high level, with a net gain of 5 points.

Motor shares also participated to a considerable degree in the general rise, their gains extending from 1 to 6 points, despite a revival of criticism in conservative circles. Department stores' issues, National Lead and American Can traded along with those more speculative specialties in the spotlight, sponed dividend stocks and erstwhile market leaders rose only fractionally. In the latter class, Canadian Pacific and New Haven were the only shares to gain a point or more. United States Steel took second place to Bethlehem Steel throughout the session and closed with a material fractional advance.

London's market seemed to ignore the news from the Dardanelles, the various items of which showing but little loss on moderate selling. Canadian Pacific was more inclined to heaviness than any other stock in the international department.

The local bank statement met general expectations, showing an actual cash gain of about $11,000,000 excess reserves increase by about $10,000,000.

Bonds were steady except New York Central 6s, which were extensively sold at concessions. Total sales, par value, aggregated $1,213,000.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

WOMEN are today a recognized factor in the industrial world. The rapidly growing army of wage-earning women, many of them youthful, untrained workers, presents a number of serious problems for the constructive student of social economic conditions. What are the working conditions in the women-employed industries, hours, wages, sanitation and effect on health? What laws protect them from exploitation? What is the standard of living of the woman adrift? What is a living wage for the girl in a large city dependent upon herself for maintenance? How are the schools adjusting themselves to equip girls for the changing conditions of life? Nor are the problems confined to the unskilled workers. Even more marked than woman's invasion of the industries is her entrance into the professions. The colleges and technical schools are each year sending out a throng of earnest-minded young women who demand their part in the world's work. How can their services be best employed? What occupations are open to them? What new lines of employment offer reward for the adventurous? All those who are interested in the solution of these problems will find much valuable information and assistance in the reports of investigations made by the Women's Educational and Industrial union of Boston, through its department of research, and published as studies in the Economic Relations of Women. These studies set forth the results of industrial and educational surveys prepared from data secured by college graduates holding fellowships in research and in several cases in co-operation with other individuals and organizations. They make an important contribution to the movements for legislative protection of working women and for vocational education and vocational guidance.

Washington Seminary Notes

The concert given by the Tech Glee club was a great success financially and socially. After entertaining the audience with mandolin and guitar selections, choruses and vocal quartetes, the seminary girls entertained the members of the glee club with an informal dance.

One of the important events of the school year occurred on Thursday, when the annual, Facts and Fancies, went to press. The annual of this year promises to be one of the handsomest ever gotten out by any senior class.

The basketball team, chaperoned by Miss Stella Martin, left Friday for Gainesville, where they played the High school. After an automobile trip to Dahlonega as the guests of that team a game was played with Dahlonega on Saturday.

Mr. Roberts and Mr. Watson, from the school of technology, presented the merits of the play "Electricity," which will be given by the Marionettes at the Atlanta theater on Saturday evening, and a block of seats will be reserved by the seminary girls.

The piano pupils of Miss Clementine MacGregor were heard in a recital Saturday evening.

Dinner to Basketball Team

Miss Dorothy Louise Knapp entertained the Boys' High school basketball team at an informal dinner party Saturday evening.

The decorations were carried out in the team's colors, purple and white. The house was artistically decorated with the high school pennants and banners. The centerpiece of the table was a silver bowl of purple and white hyacinths and the favors were diminutive basketballs.

The guests included Josephine Davis, Clare Louise Scott, Evelyn Eagan, Martha Louise Cassele, Alfred Scott, Brainerd Adams, Russell White, Lin Adams and Jim Lowry.

Rook Club Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Lyle entertained their rook club Tuesday evening at their home on Moreland avenue in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Atkins, the guests of Dr. and Mrs. I. H. P. Fincher.

The house was decorated with quantities of jonquils and other spring blossoms and the color scheme of yellow and green was carried out in every detail.

The score cards and favors were shamrock caps, painted by the hostess.

Progressive games were played, Miss Gertrude Owens and Mr. Joe Peacock winning top score.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Atkins, Dr. and Mrs. I. H. P. Fincher, Mr. and Mrs. Boatenreiter, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Hill, Miss Frances Minor, Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Pauline Crawford, Miss Nell Owens, Miss Janie Bee Orgain, Miss Gertrude Owens, Miss Katherine Weber, Miss Blanche Orgain, Miss Lucile Minor, Mr. Harold Minor, Mr. Robert Chaffin, Mr. Carl Owens, Mr. Joe Peacock and Mr. Byron Minor.

Plans For the Grand Opera Season

With the approach of April the coming opera season is in every one's mind, and plans for the entertainment of visitors are being broached with enthusiasm. Many of the prominent visitors during the past season have signified their intention of returning for the opera and in addition there will be a bevy of young girls and matrons from every part of the state. Several house parties are being arranged for opera week and every available minute in between the operas will be filled with a series of dinner parties, teas and dances.

Open house at the country clubs will lend an additional interest and the picturesque and beautiful club homes never more attractive than in their springtime surroundings will also present a beautiful setting for several of the very large entertainments already being planned and for which dates have not been set.

A large party will attend from Chattanooga and a congenial group of friends who have been present each season are expected from Nashville, Tenn.

Benefit Opera Readings

The schedule of the dramatic readings with arias, chorus and overtures, to be given for the benefit of the fund for district nursing among the poor children of every denomination will be as follows:

April 10—"Les Huguenots."
April 12—"Tales of Hoffman."
April 14—"Carmen."
April 16—"Rigoletto."
April 19—"L'Amore dei Tre Re.'
April 21—"The Magic Flute."
April 23—"Madame Sans Gene."

Because of the impossibility to secure the music, this last date will be a dramatic reading only.

These concerts fill be given in the convention hall of the Piedmont hotel at 3 o'clock. The names of the musicians who have graciously consented to appear in these presentations and the programs in full will be given at a very early date.

Tickets at $1 for the entire series may be had now of any of the committee or at the store of Cole Book company, on Whitehall street.

Says Bread and Butter Most Nourishing Diet

BOSTON, March 13.—"Although a great many people have expressed surprise that war sufferers are living on 10 cents a day," said Dr Franklin W. White, at the Harvard Medical School, "as a matter of fact, any man can live on that amount by using mainly a bread and butter diet."

Dr. White took a slice of bread and butter as a unit of food and declared it equal in nutritive value to five-eighths of a glass of milk, one egg and a half, a large potato, a saucer and a half of cereal, two slices of lean beef, a plate of baked beans, 12 oysters, 20 cups of beef tea made from extract, or 11 cups of home-made beef tea.—News Dispatch.

Opening the New Wash Goods

Yet priced on the basis of cotton. Beauty plus economy!

ORGANDIES!—Voiles!—Crepes!—gossamer fabrics of fairy elegance. The one theme—embroidered blossoms, dropped at intervals—runs through many of them.

Prices range 25c, 35c, 50c up to $3.48 a yard, and never have we shown such lavish varieties.

Courtauld Suitings of Silk & Cotton Look Like

—all silk, but wear much better. Imported from England—here in all the new black and white checks, Jaspers, taupes and grays from silver to battleship. 40 inches; $1.

Suiting Linens of Many Kinds Are Here at 50c & 75c

—Most of them are French linens—their weight, weave and finish being most satisfactory. White and colors. A French crash suiting (cotton) is very new at $1. See it!

Picture Exhibition to Be Free Today to the Public

The exhibition of paintings which has been held at the Ponce de Leon apartment for the past two weeks, will be open free all day today from 10 o'clock this morning to 6 o'clock this afternoon, so that the lovers of the beautiful whose work has prevented them from visiting the exhibition will be able to see it before it leaves for Nashville tomorrow.

The Atlanta Art association, whose unselfish interest in art makes it possible to hold these exhibitions twice annually, announced yesterday that two of the most beautiful pictures in the exhibition have been bought by Mrs. Edward Inman. One picture is "A Street—Ile aux Moines," and is by Herman H. Wessel, of the Cincinnati Art academy, and the other is "The Shining Gown," by James R. Hopkins. Two pictures could not be more different—the one a very modern canvas, fairly glowing with color, but so harmonious and full of the soft atmosphere of the French land that critics and students as well as the untrained artistically have stood before it in delighted admiration throughout the exhibition. The other picture is perfect in its handling of soft fabrics—the ivory satin of the lovely old-fashioned gown, the lacy little cap and the dark toned silks over which the figure bends. The artistic arrangement and tonal beauty show the same subtle insight evident in most of his work.

The Art association hopes to buy a charming little collection of pictures and has raised, by private subscription, part of the necessary $100.

Yesterday afternoon all the members of the art committee of the exhibition were present. Mrs. E. W. More, the chairman, to whom the success of the exhibition is largely due; Mrs. H. H. Osgood, Mrs. Samuel N. Evins, Mrs. Richard Johnston, Mrs. H. R. Scott, Mrs. J. O. Wynn, Mrs. Louis Moeckel, Mrs. Clarence Blosser, Mrs. Walter Howard, Miss Emily Jekyell and Miss Virginia Wooley. Tea was poured by Mrs. Richard Johnston and during the afternoon Mrs. Carthew-Yorstoun, who is a new but enthusiastic member, sang beautifully a group of songs.

Vapor treatments are best for inflammations of the air passages. The vapors carry the medication direct to the inflamed surfaces without disturbing the stomach, as internal medicines will do. A very convenient vapor treatment is a good application of Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve over the throat and chest, covered with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases vapors that are inhaled with every breath, opening the air passages, loosening the phlegm, and healing the raw surfaces. For deep chest colds, first apply hot wet towels to open the pores. Vick's is then absorbed through the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness. 25c, 50c, or $1.00.

Overworked Women

AMBITIOUS that their homes shall be kept neat and attractive, children well dressed and family well nourished, thousands of women in our homes are sacrificing their health to duty. They cook, wash, iron, dust, mend and sew, until some female trouble fastens itself upon them and their every day life is a continual struggle with weakness and pain.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

is the greatest American Safeguard to woman's health. For three generations it has been relieving women from the worst forms of female ills until there is hardly a town or hamlet where women do not reside who have been restored to health by its use.

How Three Overworked Women Found Help.—Their Own Statements Follow:

CUMMING, GA.—"I tell some suffering woman every day of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it has done for me. I could not eat or sleep, had a bad stomach and was in misery all the time. I could not do my housework or walk any distance without suffering great pain. I tried doctors' medicines and different patent medicines but failed to get relief. My husband brought home your Vegetable Compound and in two weeks I could eat anything, could sleep like a healthy baby, and walk a long distance without feeling tired. I can highly recommend your Vegetable Compound to women who suffer as I did, and you are at liberty to use this letter."—Mrs. CHARLIE BAGLEY, R. 3, Cumming, Ga.

FLORENCE, So. DAKOTA.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSENG, Box 8, Allyn, Wash.

ADRIAN, MICH.—"I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get weak so that I would have to lie down before I did my dusting. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' I did, and after taking 2 bottles I felt better, and after 3 months use I am well."—Mrs. A. E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Every sick woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, for it cannot harm her, and there are a hundred chances to one that it will completely restore her health.

The Week in Retrospect

DURING the early part of the week Mr. and Mrs. DeLancy Kountze, of New York, were delightfully entertained as the guests of Mrs. Richard Johnston, at her home on Peachtree street. Mr. and Mrs. Kountze were en route to their home after an extended stay in Florida, and a visit to Mrs. Kountze's mother, Mrs. Marshall Johnston, in Macon. On Monday evening, Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton gave a beautiful dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kountze, at the Capital City club. Delicate pink roses and valley lilies formed the artistic centerpiece of the table on which covers were laid for twelve. Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Kountze were honored guests at the dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodruff at the Piedmont club when the guests included Mr. and Mrs. Kountze, Mrs. Richard Johnston, Governor and Mrs. Slaton, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McGehee, Mr. James H. Nunnally, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine.

Mrs. William G. McMillan, of Maryland, who with her father, Mr. William Gorman, has been the guest for a week of Mrs. T. T. Ballenger and Dr. E. G. Ballenger, was honor guest at several very informal affairs. She was Mrs. Clarence May's guest at the tea dance Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont club, and on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Joseph Raine entertained at two tables of bridge at the club. Friday afternoon, Mrs. McMillan was honor guest at the informal luncheon given by Mrs. Kemp Slaughter, at her home on Eleventh street, and Saturday evening, Dr. Ballenger gave a small dinner party at the Piedmont club in her honor.

Miss Harriet Calhoun had as her guest for the week end, Mrs. Crosby, of Washington City, the charming wife of Lieutenant Commander Crosby, U. S. N. Saturday afternoon Mr. Stuart Witham entertained a group of friends at the tea dance at the Druid Hills Golf club in honor of the attractive visitor, and Saturday evening she was honor guest in a party entertained by Miss Calhoun at the dinner dance at the Piedmont club.

Miss Mae Scott, of Milwaukee and Perdido Beach, Ala., has been an attractive visitor of the week, sharing her stay with Mrs. George Kent Varden and Mrs. Ernest Dallas. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Varden entertained at the tea dance at the Piedmont club in her honor and several other small affairs were also given for her.

AN event of the week among the college set was "Electricity," the annual performance of the Tech Marionettes, given Saturday evening at the Atlanta theater. Box parties were given by the Sigma Nu, the Kappa Alpha, the A. T. O., the Sigma Phi Epsilon and the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternities. The guests of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity were Miss Edith Hildreth, Miss Elizabeth Hudson, of Brenau college; Miss Gladys Byrd, Miss Nell Walker, Miss Jessie Thompson, Mr. Ed Carman, Mr. Irwin Fife, Mr. Tom Hancock, Mr. Ralph Lewis and Mr. Barnard Boyken.

TWO pretty luncheons given for April brides-elect broke the social quietude of the week and were the occasion of artistic, unique decorative details on the part of the charming hostesses who were Mrs. Marshall Clarke McKenzie and Mrs. Charles B. Sheldon. Mrs. McKenzie's Luncheon was given in honor of Miss Harriet Calhoun, whose wedding to Mr. Stuart Witham will take place April 7. Quantities of jonquils, effectively arranged, adorned the entire home and the score cards were hand painted in flower design. Dainty crepe de chine handkerchiefs were awarded as prizes for top score at each table and the honor guest was presented with a dainty trousseau gift.

Mrs. Sheldon entertained in honor of Miss Lula Dean Jones, whose wedding to Mr. Beverly DuBose will be an event of April 9. Bright yellow daffodils were used in the reception hall and parlor and the luncheon table held a silver basket filled with a variety of spring blossoms including peach blossoms, valley lilies, pansies and snapdragons. The place cards were miniture trunks directed to "Love Inn," and had a tiny Cupid peeping from the half-raised lid.

A number of other parties were given during the week including the bridge party given by Miss Essie Jordan in compliment to Miss Royston and Mrs. Ward Wright, two recent attractive brides. Jonquils and tulips adorned the mantels and cabinets in the rooms where the card tables were arranged and following the game dainty refreshments were served. A delightful informal event of Thursday evening was the Dutch supper and dance given by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Speer at their home on Peachtree street. This was the first of a series of similar affairs to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Speer, and the occasion of uniting hospitality. A lovely event of Thursday afternoon was the reception at which Mrs. George A. Wight entertained in honor of her sister, Miss Elsie McKendree, of Mississippi, and Mrs. Ward Wight. The home was beautifully decorated in spring flowers and tea was served from a table adorned with bright yellow blossoms. Mrs. Hilliard Spalding received with the hostess and assisting in entertaining were Miss Marsteret Rushton, Miss Dorothy Arkwright, Miss Marian Lowell, Miss Mary Stewart, Miss Irene King and Mrs. Paul Baker.

CORDIAL interest centers in the recent announcement of the engagement of Miss Katherine Stuart Cramer, of Charlotte, N. C., to Mr. Paul Woodman, of San Francisco, Cal. Miss Cramer is pleasantly remembered as the guest of Miss Hildreth Burton Smith winter before last, when she shared honors with Miss Smith at a series of parties. The wedding will be a brilliant event of the spring at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Warren Cramer, in Charlotte. Mr. Woodman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woodman of Portland Maine, a graduate of Harvard and associated in business with his uncle, Mr. William Bowers in the Bowers Rubber Company of San Francisco.

LITERARY GOSSIP OF BOOKS AND AUTHORS

The honey bee is the new type of American woman; she is essentially the product of present social and economic conditions. She has not long existed in American society. The feminist movement has been her creator. For the honey bee may be said to be the only growth of that movement, or better, her estate may be called the climax of it.

The honey bee type of woman has been developing during the last ten or fifteen years, unbeknownst to most of us. In fact, Samuel Merwin, the author, has been the first to recognize her existence, and so fascinated was he at his discovery that he has written a story about her life.

But where does the likeness to the honey bee come in? The answer, as pointed out by Mr. Merwin, in the Honey Bee, lies in the resemblance between modern American society and the civilization within the bee hive. They are like as two peas in a pod.

Thus it is that through his analogy Mr. Merwin gives a clever analysis of the modern unmarried woman, the woman who works eight hours a day, six days a week; who wins her way to real business success; who has independence and opportunity to see the great world, but who has not love.

She realizes, when his attention is called to it, that there are thousands—hundreds of thousands—of just such women in the world today, a vast, new social group. Ideal wives to whom the right man never comes, potential mothers whose life itself, perhaps, prevents a husband's coming, they must go with empty arms to the grave.

Our Latest Great Visitor.

It has been just 110 years since the first great Irishman of letters came to the United States as a pilgrim from across the Atlantic.

Thomas Moore, enshrined forever in the hearts of Irishmen and men of lesser nations, came to America in 1803, the leader of the long line of literary lions who have since been made welcome here. Now comes another great Irishman, a man whose genial novels have preceded him to our shores and paved the way for a right royal reception to their author—Canon J. O. Hannay, known to the reading public under his pen name of "G. A. Birmingham." He sailed for America on February 18, to lecture in a number of American cities.

What a long list is made by the names of these British men of letters who have come to shake Brother Jonathan's hand: Dickens, Trackeray, Moore, Charles Lover, Captain Marryat, beloved of boys; Anthony Trollope, Charles Kingsley, Wilkie Collins, Robert Louis Stevenson, Rider Haggard, Rudyard Kipling, Conan Doyle—these and fifty others have crossed the sea to meet their American friends. And America has been glad to honor them, for there are no national boundaries in literature, and the men who have given us golden books are sure of our sincerest hospitality.

The Feminist War.

Will Levington Comfort, who is nearly as famous a war correspondent as he is an author, asserts that the present war is the first in which women have taken any part at all comparable to that taken by men. Not only as nurses but in all sorts of capacities, from leading Belgian relief enterprises to shouldering the musket in Poland, they have borne their part in a way which strangely justifies many of the recent claims of the feminist movement. And consequently in his new novel of the Russian Advance in the Great War, called "Red Fleece," Mr. Comfort uses for central character a girl of the Russian revolution, nursing the sick and urging the soldiers to cease firing.

This is the way to determine:
Are you a woman?
Are you unmarried?
Are you past twenty-eight?
Do you earn your own living?
Do you contribute to the support of others?
Have you ever longed to give up your independence?
Have you failed to find the "right man"—one you really love?
If you can answer all of these questions in the affirmative, then you are a honey bee. It is estimated that there 200,000 of them in the great hive of American society today. Are you one of the 200,000?

Afternoon Party

Mrs. W. S. Hendon, Jr., entertained at a 5 o'clock tea at her home in Inman Park Monday afternoon. Assisting Mrs. Hendon were her sisters, the Misses Minnye, Louise and Elise Hendon.

In the party were Mrs. Weston Bruner, Miss Lenna Stewart, of Baltimore; Misses Alice, Daisy and Annie Richards, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Hogue, Miss Mazie Robbins, Miss Mary Kate Davidson, Miss Harriett Wilkerson, Misses Belle and Libbie Long and Mrs. Baxter Patterson.

Suffrage Notes

SUFFRAGE CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK.

Executive committee meeting, Georgia Woman's Suffrage association, Tuesday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

Meeting of the Atlanta Young People's association, Wednesday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

Meeting of the DeKalb County Equal Suffrage association, courthouse, Decatur, Ga., Friday afternoon.

Ways and means committee, Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, Saturday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

A large audience filled the two parlors of the Hotel Ansley on Wednesday at the session of the Suffrage school, which is held bi-monthly by the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association.

Mrs. Ashby explained the suffrage map showing that the west had more suffrage states than all the other parts of our country put together.

The president introduced the city attorney, Mr. Mayson, who spoke on "City Government."

In his address, "The Legal Status of Teachers in Georgia," Mr. V. B. Moore explained fully the rights of parents and teachers under the law as regards the training of the child.

Many questions were asked the speakers, and much interest shown in the subjects, the speakers receiving a rising vote of thanks.

The president, Mrs. A. R. Woodall, said it was the aim of the association to get the best city talent possible to address the Suffrage school. That they wished to create a sentiment in the community to respect the laws and to understand the reason of them.

The next Suffrage school session will be held April 7, to which every one interested is invited.

Georgia has the distinction of being one of the states having an organized body of voters who favor and work for equal suffrage. Attorney Leonard J. Grossman, of Atlanta, is president of the Men's league for Woman's Suffrage in Georgia. This league numbers among its members some of the most influential men in the state. A number of strong suffrage articles from the pen of Mrs. E. L. Martin, vice president of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage in Georgia, have recently appeared in the Macon Telegraph, the Journal of Labor and other newspapers in Georgia.

WEEKLY SUFFRAGE PROGRAM.

The room at 217 Peachtree every afternoon.

SUFFRAGE TEAS ON WEDNESDAYS.

A change has been recently made in the day on which the suffrage teas of the Fulton and DeKalb counties branch take place. Up to this time they have been held on Monday but beginning this week they will take place on Wednesday. This change was made to suit the large number of women who are interested in church work and who have to attend church meetings on Monday.

Interesting Weddings

Scott-Gregory

The marriage of Miss Lleurine Margaret Gregory and Mr. George W. Scott, Jr., was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gregory, in Decatur. Rev. J. G. Patton officiated in the presence of only the members of the immediate family connection. The bride's only attendants were little Dorris Thurman and Mary Frances Gregory, who were flower girls and wore dainty costumes of white and carried baskets of roses. The bride made a charming picture in her going-away gown of blue cloth, the short coat opened over a blouse of rare lace, and her hat was a becoming spring model to match. She wore a corsage of orchids and valley lillies.

The marriage was of cordial interest to many friends, the bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gregory, is a great social favorite and is the center of a wide circle of friends. Mr. Scott is the son of Mr. Bucner Scott and is a grandson of the late Mr. George W. Scott, and is prominent in business and club circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott left during the evening for a trip to Florida and Cuba, and upon their return will be at home with the bride's parents in Decatur.

Hurst-Hadden

An interesting event of Sunday, March 14, was the marriage of Miss Grace Hadden and Mr. Nymrod E. Hurst, which took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Holst Buttingham, in Inman Park, Rev. W. Lee Cutts performing the ceremony.

Summers-Smith

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Ruth Smith and Mr. William Summers, both of Barnesville. The ceremony was solemnized at the Hotel Ansley and was performed by Dr. Barton.

The pretty bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith and Mr. Summers is the son of Mr. G. L. Summers.

Carstarphen-Newton

Mr. W. S. Carstarphen, of Macon, announces the engagement of his daughter, Julia, to Mr. Louie De Votie Newton.

Stein-Sinkowitz

Mr. and Mrs. I. Sinkowitz announce the marriage of their daughter, Sarah, to Mr. Lee Earnest Stein, of West Point, which was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of the bride on South Pryor street.

Armstrong-Williams

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Williams, of Lawrenceville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Sallye Cleo, to Mr. Jack Edward Armstrong, which was solemnized Saturday evening, March 20, at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. A. D. Williams, on Chestnut street.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will remain in the city during the summer and will leave in the autumn for Boston, to make their future home.

Baker-Chappell

A pretty event of Saturday evening was the wedding of Miss Eva Baker and Mr. Frederic Guy Chappell, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Baker on East avenue.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles H. Jones, of Trinity Methodist church, and the only attendant was the bride's niece, little Lucille Baker, who was ring bearer. Those present were the immediate family of the bride and groom and the aged grandmother of the bride, Mrs. N. J. Baker.

Custer-Akerman

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Akerman announce the marriage of their daughter, Mabel Olde, to Mr. Thomas Lee Custer. The wedding took place Sunday, March 14, at St. Paul's parsonage in Columbus, the Rev. V. M. Chester officiating.

Doyle-Gathright

The marriage of Miss Grace Doyle and Mr. Reatham Gathright was quietly solemnized at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Garnett W. Quillian on yesterday afternoon. Dr. J. W. Quillian officiated.

This announcement will be of interest to a host of friends of both Miss Doyle and Mrs. Gathright.

After two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Gathright will be at home in their new bungalow in West End.

Drama League

The Drama league will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 oclock at the Georgian Terrace. The play, "As a Man Thinks," a powerful drama by Augustus Thomas, will be read by Miss Carolyn Cobb, the state organizer.

Ball at Imperial Hotel

An informal ball at the Imperial hotel will be given Monday, April 5.

A special feature of the evening will be the dance contest between the Vesper, Hyperion, Terpsichorean and the Argentine clubs. A loving cup donated by the Imperial hotel.

At a meeting of the various clubs held recently at the Imperial it was agreed to select three judges, and the following three prominent Atlantians, that four couples should represent each club and the dance to be a one-step and hesitation or canter.

Five hundred invitations have been issued.

Opera Reading

The reading given at the Georgian Terrace Thursday afternoon was under the auspices of the Ways and Means committee of the Sacred Heart church and was entitled "The Rules of Hedges," was read in an interesting and beautiful manner by Miss Helen Stewart and a program of operatic music given by leading artists in the musical circles of the city was greatly enjoyed.

Boy Scouts Play

The Boy Scouts of College Park presented the three-act play, "The Boy Scout," at Belton on Friday evening. This little play has been so well presented and well received that several encarements for other places have been made. The play will be presented in Fayetteville April 3, under the auspices of the Scouts in that place.

Benefit of College Park Library

The Junior Civic League of College Park will have an entertainment at the high school auditorium on the evening of March 26 for the benefit of the College Park library.

The library committee of the league will present two comedies, "The Saigle Family" and "Dr. Cure All."

Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, of Atlanta will give a reading and music will be furnished by Mr. Childs and Miss Smith of College Park.

News of Women and Society

Organ Recital

Those taking part on the program were Miss Alma Garrett, Miss Pauline Lindley, Miss Nita Belle Coleman, Miss Bertha Mae Owen, Miss Irma Toland, Miss Stella Fordon, Miss Gretel Mueller, Miss Bamie Hood, Miss Annice Miller, Miss May Beth Johnson, Miss Ethel Rice, Miss Rose Lichtenstein and Mr. Herbert Goode.

Announcements of the enlarging of the university will be made at the next public concert.

Sunshine Fancy Work Club

The Sunshine Fancy Work club, of Lakewood Heights, met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. John Watts on Lakewood avenue.

After the business meeting, Mrs. S. A. Sims rendered piano solos.

The members present were Mrs. W. I. Beard, Mrs. Carl Armstrong, Mrs. G. L. Armstrong, Mrs. H. T. Waters, Mrs. W. J. Milam, Mrs. S. A. Sims, Mrs. Emmett Plunkett, Miss Kathaleen Beard, Miss Lucile Milam, Miss Elsie Sims and Miss Aurelia Plunkett.

Mrs. W. B. Stringfellow and Mrs. C. C. Jorden were unable to be present.

The next meeting will be Wednesday with Mrs. S. A. Sims, on Lakewood avenue.

Farewell Concert

The farewell concert arranged by Miss Sylvia Spritz under the auspices of the Jewish Educational Alliance will be an event of the evening. An interesting program has been arranged and moving pictures will be shown.

This concert will be in the nature of a farewell to Miss Spritz, whose marriage to Rabbi Charles Latz, of Fort Smith, Ark., will be solemnized on the 28th of April, in Cincinnati.

As singer, teacher, violinist; as conductor of the Alliance orchestra, and in arranging concerts for the Alliance, Miss Spritz has shown wonderful ability and has won a place in the hearts of all music lovers, and her departure from the city will mean a distinct loss.

Cox College Notes

The Dramatic club will present "Breezy Point," a comedy in three acts by Belle Marshall Locke, in the college auditorium on the evening of March 27 for the benefit of the college annual. The members of the club have shown great ability in the presentation of modern plays and farces and it is certain that they will uphold their reputation in "Breezy Point." Mrs. Curtis Arnall North, the director of the expression department, has the play in charge, and Miss Florine Gentry is the stage manager.

Miss Sara Mardre, Miss Emily Arnall, Miss Julia Purser and Miss Zhyrza Ware, chaperoned by Miss Bessie Lane, formed a party who left Tuesday for a concert tour through the northern part of the state. Mr. Z. J. Edge, accompanied the party and will give his stereopticon lectures at the college. The first concert was given to a large audience at Toccoa, and the students will appear on programs in Commerce, Hartwell, Lavonia and other towns.

A feature of the music at the College Park Baptist church next will be selections by the college string orchestra composed of the following young women: Miss Miriam Madden, Miss Marguerite Walker, Miss Marjorie Cooper, Miss Helen Orr, Miss Mildred Kelley, Miss Mary Lee Robertson, Miss Louise Walker.

"The Japanese Girl," an operetta by Vincent, will be presented by students in the vocal department at an early date, the principal roles to be sung by Miss Louise Walker, Miss Milda Holloway, Miss Helen Reeves, Miss Verner Ingram, Miss Laura Murphy, Miss Mary Harper and Miss Miriam Madden.

To Present Play

The Junior league of the Calvary M. E. church will have charge of the Epworth league service Sunday night at 7 o'clock. The "Changed Cross" will be given.

The following is the cast of characters:

Angel, Lillian Collier; Poverty, Tullie Flshback; Wealth, Thelma Clyburn; Beauty, Grace Gattis; Talent, Kate Key; Fame, Elizabeth Strickland; Pleasure, Mary Fincher; Pride, Pauline Dobbs; Sin, Viola Peurifoy; reading, Lillian Collier. Song impersonation: Youth, Hal Dobbs; Young Man, Wiley Wilson; Middle Age, J. M. Walker; Old Age, J. W. Chambers.

Everyone is cordially invited.

Address at Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher club of Calhoun school will be on Thursday, March 25, at 3 o'clock. Dr. Robert G. Stephens will address the mothers and teachers on the welfare of the child. This is an opportunity which every mother should avail herself of. Every one is cordially invited to attend these meetings, whether members or not.

Opera Reading

The reading of "Rigoletto" Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Miss Helen Stewart, at the Georgian Terrace, will be the third of a series of opera readings to be given under the auspices of the ways and means committee of the Sacred Heart church.

Miss Mildred Parks will sing "Caro Nome," and Mrs. Mary M. O'Brien, Mrs. Peyton Todd, Mr. Wilfred Rogers and Mrs. Frank Candell will sing the quartette. The accompanist will be Miss Eva Bartholomew.

Admission will be 35 cents and all are cordially invited.

Matinee Party

Thirteen guests were present, including Miss Hanna, Miss Nell Morris, Miss Cecil Harwell, Miss Lenoir Lewis, Miss Mary Ralston, Miss Luella Jordan, Miss Ruth Reed, Miss Willie Bell Key, Miss Mary Padgett, Miss Eloise Mott, Miss Ruby Martin, Miss Stella Warfield and Miss Mary Chitwood.

Browning Reading

The Browning reading which will be given Monday at 3:30 o'clock at the Winecoff is under the auspices of the floral committee of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, and consists of Mrs. B. M. Boykin, chairman; Mrs. George P. Moore, Mrs. W. E. Lambright, Mrs. Jason Cannon and Mrs. Richard Battle.

"The Pied Piper of Hamelin" will be read by Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson, who is a most delightful reader and who was Miss Dora Hood. This reading was given last month by David Bispham, with Arthur Bergh, who composed the music which accompanied it, at the piano. Miss Bartholomew, who needs no introduction to music lovers of this city, will assist Mrs. Jackson. A delightful one-act play, "The Day of Dupes," by J. Hartley Manners, will also be read by Mrs. Jackson.

Admission, 25 cents.

Club Entertained

The members of the D. A. Y. P. club, met with Mrs. Spears at her home on Royston street Friday afternoon.

Among those present were Mrs. Anthony, Mrs. Antilotti, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Seaborn, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Spenser, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Parham. The next meeting will be with Miss Nell Wilson at her home, 91 McLendon street, on Wednesday, March 31.

Play by Cox College Girls

One of the events of the college year at Cox college will be the spring term theatricals next Saturday night.

The play to be given this year is the three act comedy entitled "Breezy Point," by Belle Marshall Locke, and much enthusiasm has been aroused by the announcement that the proceeds will go to the college annual fund.

The cast is taken from the Dramatic club, and the entertainment will be given under the direction of Mrs. Curtis Arnall North, with Miss Edna Walters as coach, and Miss Florine Gentry as stage manager.

The young ladies in the cast are Miss Myrtle Flanigan, Miss Ethyl Pringle, Miss Florence Stevinson, Miss Florine Gentry, Miss Thelma Norris, Miss Wyolene Nance, Miss Sobye Humphrey, Miss Edna Walters, Miss Jess Pringle, Miss Mary Epps, Miss Zip Hule, Miss Betty Belle and Miss Sarah Gay.

An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged.

Emergency Association Plan to Establish Saturday Market

A direct and practical way to look after the needs of Atlanta's unemployed women has been met in the establishment of a workshop and employment bureau by the large body of club and resident women who recently organized the Emergency Association for Unemployed Women.

At a meeting of the executive board Saturday morning at the Constitution office encouraging and highly gratifying reports were given from different working committees in regard to the success with which the plan has met. Mrs. Beaumont Davison, who is president of the association and has charge of the work in St. Luke's parish house, announced the number of employed women under her direction as twenty-two at present. They are making children's dresses in sizes four, six, eight, ten and twelve for prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.25; also costume covers, for which attractive and useful garment a large market is being solicited.

In order to place the finished work before the public, it is the intention of the association to have a regular Saturday market, to be held at a place whose central location will be easily accessible for all purchasers. These garments can also be obtained through Mrs. Robert Wessells, at the Georgian Terrace, and from Mrs. Davison.

Mrs. Walker P. Brooks placed an order for dresses amounting to $10 from the Home for the Friendless, and other generous orders were recorded. All mothers of Atlanta are urged to buy these garments from the shop.

Forty-one women, who represent mothers of ninety-two children, have been given employment since the institution of the workshop, and twenty-two of the number have secured permanent positions.

One of the most important branches of the association is the employment bureau at 19 Auburn avenue, in charge of the following committee: Mrs. Walker P. Brooks, chairman; Mrs. Porter King, Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, Mrs. Rulow Campbell, Mrs. Emily McDougald, Mrs. Eugene Black, Mrs. William Campbell, Mrs. Haynes McFadden, Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith and Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin.

In Mrs. King's report Saturday morning, she stated that from March 4 to the opening of headquarters on Auburn avenue, March 9, that immediately about two dozen applications were received, and since that time 125 applications, covering every imaginable work from companion to cobbler. During the past few weeks forty-two positions have been filled and fourteen canvassers employed.

The classified list kept open at the bureau includes places of boarding, typists, tailors, stenographers, shirt-waist makers, plain sewing out of the home, sewing at home, nurses, fine needlework, curtain repairing, housekeepers, dressmaking, canvassers, home-made candies and cakes, cooks, bread-makers, companions, waitresses, clerks, cashiers, governesses, embroidery, women cobbler, seamstresses, millinery, and telephone operators.

All possible information is given as applicant, and every means is made to either give or find employment.

Childrens' Soiree a Beautiful Event

Unusual interest centered in the soiree given by a number of little folks at the Ansley hotel Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Atlanta Child's home.

The ballroom was effectively adorned for the occasion with poppies interspersed among the bamboo which interwined the trellis work of the walls.

A grand march opened the soiree and was followed by several charming solo dances. Among the most attractive of these was the butterfly dance by Miss Pauline DeGive, the bow and arrow dance by Miss Anne Grant, the fairy Pan dance by Miss Marjorie Sweet, of Chicago, the Pierrot dance by Miss Douglas Paine and Miss Wilma Eisenman.

An attractive feature in which a large number of the children took part was the balloon dance and contest.

Swastika Club Entertained

Bowls of jonquils formed the decoration.

Mrs. J. E. Alexander won first prize in the contest, which was enjoyed. Those present were Mrs. J. W. Maddox, Mrs. J. D. Witt, Mrs. L. E. Misenhaimer, Mrs. A. F. Collier, Mrs. Robert G. Hooks, Mrs. Leonard Bell, Mrs. T. A. Drye, Mrs. Rothwell Gann, Mrs. R. H. Carpenter, Mrs. J. E. Alexander, Mrs. H. C. Newton, Mrs. E. E. Watson, Mrs. J. A. Stamps and Mrs. Henry Bell.

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. R. H. Carpenter, 194 Rawson street.

Leola Fancy Work Club

The members present were Mrs. Rooks, Miss Maning, Mrs. Mashburn, Miss Smith, Miss Nannie Mae Howell, Miss Nellie Hering and the invited guests included Mrs. G. E. Crockett and Mrs. W. E. Howell.

Refreshments were served and the club discussed the business of entertaining the Red Men.

The club will meet Thursday with Mrs. Mashburn on Gould street.

The Quick Secret of a Lily-Like Complexion And Other Beauty Formulas

Secrets of Beauty that No Woman Should Be Without, Made Public by Valeska Suratt, the Brilliant Actress, Famed for Her Self-Made Beauty.

By VALESKA SURATT

THERE is a garden in every woman's face, where roses and lilies can grow in all their purity and loveliness. The trouble is most of us do not realize how marvelously beautiful the skin may become by the proper method pursued, and how quickly it may become so. Years of time and effort are spent with low-powered creams so extensively advertised, and with only one result, hope constantly deferred.

The simplicity and ease of the proper method of beautifying the skin are really astonishing. There are no half dozen things, steaming and rubbing and the wearing of masks, and what not, to be done. An example of what may be done to the skin is shown by the results of the following formula. This quickly turns a skin, previously muddy, sallow or spotty into one of exquisite loveliness, pure in its tint, spotless as a lily, soft as velvet, and soft-ening but the generous use of this formula is necessary.

"The Skin Quickly Assumes a Purity Which Rivals the Immaculate Lily."

Simply mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in half a pint of hot water and add one ounce of sinlene. Stir until cooled. It is then ready to apply. This should be used on the hands, arms, face and shoulders, liberally every day.

MISS F. G. S.—There is no wrinkle eradicator ever known that has such prompt, visible results as the formula given below. It makes the skin youthful and plump, and all lines of age, wrinkles and crow's feet disappear in a very remarkable way. Add two teaspoonfuls of gilverine and two ounces of eptol to a half pint of hot water. Stir constantly until cold. Use very liberally. The eptol you can obtain at any drug store. Mix the formula yourself at home and you will have a quantity of wrinkle cream which would cost a good many dollars were you to be able to buy it in the stores.

MISS HEADY—You will be surprised to see how vastly superior eggol is to soap, as a shampoo. It removes the scurf, grit and greasy film from the scalp and hair as nothing else can, and leaves the hair glossy and ultimately as no soap could do. Dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of hot water. This makes a shampoo that cannot be excelled, for its lather and cleansing properties. For small cost you can get enough eggol at the drug store to last you several months.

* * *

MRS. M. V. L.—With all face powders there is a chalkiness which makes the powder visible. That's why I use my own face powder made after my own formula. No one can detect its use, yet it gives an extraordinary tint, and smoothness to the skin. I would be lost without it. This "Valeska Suratt Face Powder" can now be obtained at drug stores.

* * *

MISS FANNY T.—Your hair will very soon stop coming out on your comb or brush, and you will notice a tremendous difference in the quality of your hair, in its fast increasing length, and its fluffiness, if you will make up the following formula yourself and use it liberally. Mix half a pint of water with half a pint of alcohol, or take a full pint of imported bay rum, if you prefer it; and add to this one ounce of betaquinol, which you can obtain at any drug store. This makes up over a pint of the best hair grower ever known, and a quantity which would cost you many dollars if you could buy it at the stores.

MISS SPECKLED—Few realize that it is possible to rid the face of blackheads in a few minutes' time by simply sprinkling some powdered neroin on a sponge, made wet with hot water, and rubbing this on the face on the parts affected with blackheads. There is no use pinching out these persistent blemishes, as this spots the skin.

* * *

MISS R. G. M.—By using many of the superfluous hair burners advertised, one can easily detect the fact that you are afflicted with wild hair. They leave a red spot or burn, or irritate the skin, and sometimes remove the hair unevenly. Use instead, simple sulfo solution, which almost magically dissolves the hair, leaving no mark or injury. If you cannot get the simple sulfo solution at the drug store, then get the sulfo powder, which is the same thing, except that you wet it with a little water before applying.

* * *

MRS. B. L. R.—Am sorry you couldn't get the simple sulfo solution at the drug store. In such a case, my secretary will get it and send it to you if you will address "Secretary to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Bldg., Chicago," and enclosing the price, which is one dollar.

FRIENDLESS—Try this for developing the bust. It is admitted to be the most effective for the purpose, though you understand it is at best a difficult matter to produce such development. Avoid mechanical instruments. Mix together two ounces of rantone, half a cup of sugar and half a pint of cold water. This makes a safe mixture, of which take 2 teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime.

* * *

MRS. T. R. W.—You certainly can get rid of pimples in a hurry. I would not advise you to continue the blood tonic you mention, but the following which is a powerful blood cleaner. Dissolve twelve ounces of sugar and one ounce of sarsene in a pint of water. Of this, take one or two teaspoonfuls after meals. Get the sarsene in the original package, by the ounce at any drug store.—(Adv.)

Bisland Named Field Captain Of the Crackers

Cold Wind Does Not Keep Team From Playing Exhibition Game--Agogas Beaten by Score of 10 to 0--Neiderkorn Hits Triple

By Innis Brown

Shortstop E. Rivington Bisland will be the field leaders of the Crackers for the 1915 season. Manager Smith announced the appointment of Bisland as captain Saturday afternoon. Bisland succeeds Harry Welchonce, who was forced to retire from the game for the season on account of ill-health.

The selection of Bisland should prove a wise move for Manager Smith. Bisland is a cool-headed player, quick to size up a situation and take advantage of mistakes by the opposition. Furthermore, he is well liked by the players on the club, who have confidence in his ability in his position, as well as directing the maneuvers of the rest of the force.

A stiff gale of wind that bore a striking relationship with Baffin Bay and points north failed to distract Manager Smith and his Cracker hosts from their well-laid plans, conceived and formulated several days since before the icy blasts reached this vicinity, of playing an exhibition game at Ponce de Leon Saturday afternoon. The Agogas, a local amateur aggregation, was the opposing line-up, and to their credit it may be stated that they furnished some very fair opposition until along about the sixth inning, when they "cracked under the strain" and fragments littered the park thereafter. The final count stood 10 to 0.

The game afforded one privilege which was abundantly enjoyed. Reference is made to battery changes. Manager Smith used no less than six men in the points--making it an even split between pitchers and catchers. The amateurs were unable to keep pace with the Crackers in the matter of receivers, but, not to be outdone, proceeded to go Bill one or two better in the matter of hurlers. We got mixed in the count, what with the rapid-fire order in which they were shifted and the chilling blasts that were whipping about the park, calculated to make one forget even more notable things.

The Crackers began with Joseph Jenkins stationed back of the willow and young Sells, a local product, wheeling 'em up from the slab. This pair held forth through three innings when Big Bill Rumler waltzed out with Frank Robertson as his running mate. Three innings finished Rumler, Robertson & Co., and then Doc Neiderkorn took the job, with "Lefty" Terry, another local lad, doing the flinging. There was little to choose between the three combinations, seeing that the Agogas were never able to negotiate the route on either outset.

The amateurs began with a young fightling by Sasnett by name, on the slab, and Weaver an elongated youth back of the wood. This pair worked in very good form. The Crackers scored only one run on them in six innings, and they really opened no heavy bombardment on Sasnett. In the sixth, the Sunday school boys switched their main defensive works, and introduced a left-hander, Millican, with a new battery partner working back of the timber. Millican was royally, not to say roughly received. The Crackers took kindly to his shoots, when he got them in reach, and by the time the customary three batters had been retired a total of five runs had been chalked up. Exit Millican.

Beginning the seventh, Thirdbaseman Byers sat in as the flinger, while a new hand was called to the third. Sasnett dropped a thrown ball on a force out at that bag, and he was removed. Shortstop Sells joined the ranks of the shirking. He managed to stick for the rest of the bill.

The game could hardly be called a contest, and produced but few thrills. Don Flynn grabbed hold of two or three good safe blows, and in the sixth round, Neiderkorn was sent up in Rumler's place with the bags crowded. He smashed one of Millican's offerings almost to the scoring board for three bags. Other than these there were no real features.

Following the game, Manager Smith notified the boys to prepare for the trip to Macon, where they meet the Braves in two games on Monday and Tuesday. The following men will make the trip: Pitchers Terry, Rumler, Williams, Dent, Allen, and Pearson; catchers Rumler, Jenkins and Neiderkorn; infielders Eibel, Potts, Bisland, Manning, Tullos, and Waldron; outfielders Moran, Flynn and Bowden.

With the exception of Manning, the boys are all in very good shape. Ed has a slightly strained muscle in one leg. He was excused from participation in Saturday's game, and is expected to be all right by Monday. He will doubtless be used in one of the two games against the Braves, while Potts is expected to work in the other.

The entire bunch believe that they carry an excellent chance of giving the Braves a run for their money. At least three of the local hurlers are in condition to deliver the goods, and if they can furnish a good brand of hurling to puzzle the Braves' batters, the gang believes that it can make the Braves hustle to trim them.

Jackets Find Gordon Cadets Easy Picking

Local Collegians Swamp Coach Moore's Team by Score of 18 to 1--Senter Was Hitting Star--Spence Wrenched Ankle Sliding Home

After being trounced in two straight games by the Buffeds, Tech, in a measure, recovered themselves Saturday afternoon, and downed Jim Moore's Gordon nine in great style, the final count being 18 to 1 with the Jackets holding the long end of the count.

The game was played on Grant field, in the face of a stiff wind, that made playing difficult. The Jackets led from the first inning, when they made seven tallies, until the final Gordon man had been thrown out in the eighth.

Tech connected for a total of fifteen bingles, and made four miscues, one of which was responsible for Gordon's only tally, while the Barnesville lads rapped Tech's hurlers for only four safeties, and eight errors were chalked up against them.

Tech went after Gordon strong in the opening round, and drove Simms off the mound, making seven tallies. Four more were annexed in the fourth and fifth rounds, and Montgomery, who did the pitching after Simms had retired, gave up to "Rusty" Cornelius, who finished the game. Tech also added three more runs in the eighth inning.

Gordon's only tally came in the third round. With runners on first and second, Morrison attempted to catch the runner off first. His peg was wide and Amis, who was on second scored.

Senter, playing in the outfield, while Jim Press was hurling, led the Jackets' attack, getting three safe swats, one of which was a three-base clout. Each of his bingles scored a man. Spence annexed two safe bingles,that were instrumental in scoring part of the eighteen runs Tech made. In the fourth inning, he was forced to retire from the game on account of a sprained ankle. However, the injury is not thought severe, as he is expected to be able to play in next Friday's game with Georgetown. The hurling of Jim Press and the playing of "Red" Smith and Morrison were features of the game from a Tech angle.

For Gordon, Bankston and Amis played good ball. "Rusty" Cornelius, who was at Tech last fall, and who gave promise of developing into a corking good football player, pitched the final four innings for Tech, and acquitted himself nicely. Bankston and Amis got two of the Gordon safeties. Newsom, another ex-Tech man was behind the plate, and caught good ball.

INFIELD MAKES RED SOX CLASS OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 20.—Baseball managers, writers and magnates, in making their annual predictions, almost unanimously have given the Boston Red Sox the preferred position for honors in the American league. The ripping up of the athletics is largely responsible for this, but not wholly so. A feeling that has spread over this camp and an incident that is about to be related will best explain. A year ago, drifted into Hot Springs and was placed at a restaurant table usually occupied by of an athletic-looking young man eating his dinner slowly, waiting between bites for a friend to cut his meat for him. His right hand was practically useless. In a few minutes I shook hands with him and apologized for not having recognized him. At one time he trained with the Giants at Marlin. But wait—

Yesterday afternoon the Red Sox were in the midst of a red-hot practice, and the moment we arrived my attention was attracted to the wonderful throwing of a young fellow at short. He was scooping the ball up and shooting it over to Dutch Leonard at first base as true as a rifle shot, and, according to Dutch, with almost as much speed.

"One of your recruits?" I asked of Joe Lannin, whose face had broken into a broad smile.

Sure enough, it was Heinie Wagner, the young man I had seen a year ago having some one chop up his steak for him! By some miraculous trick of surgery, massage treatment, or whatever it may be called, Heinie Wagner's useless arm has returned to its catapult form that wrought such havoc with the Giants in the world's series of 1912. If it can maintain that state of efficiency the Red Sox can afford to remain fixed in their firm belief that they will win the pennant. At any rate that alone would make it a good bet.

Without Heinie Wagner, who McGraw classed with the best shortstops that ever lived, the Red Sox gave the Athletics quite a chase for the flag toward the end of last season. With him in the line-up and with the Athletics wrecked by Connie Mack's blowing up of that $100,000 infield, they most certainly are entitled to figure as the American league's one best bet.

But the rejuvenation of Heinie Wagner is not all on which the Red Sox can bank. Whether Wagner plays or not they have in Scott one of the best young shortstops the league has ever seen. When Heinie's stiffened arm kept him out of a uniform last spring this young man, fresh from Saginaw, slid into his shoes without the aid of a horn, and filled them so perfectly that nobody ever heard a murmur. It will be a difficult job for even Wagner to put him on the bench now.

Then to further bolster up the infield the Red Sox quietly sent an agent out to Chicago a few weeks ago and signed up Bill Sweeney, the one-time famous second sacker of the Braves, given to the Cubs in exchange for Johnny Evers and then given an unconditional release by Chicago. It is passing strange that no club in the National thought to pick up Sweeney, but the fact remains that they didn't. After they had permitted the chance to slip by Joe Lannin signed Sweeney to a contract without having to pay out one nickel of purchase price. At one time Sweeney was one of the most reliable hitters in the National league. Whether he is ever able to do it again or not it is well worth while to have a ball player like that around for pinch purposes, especially when he comes free. Judging from the way he tore into the ball yesterday it isn't much of a gamble.

If Sweeney proves as good an investment as did Hoblitzell, of Cincinnati, Bill Carrigan will have to wear the laurel wreath as the crack David Harum of the diamond. Hoblitzell was a worse player for the Reds than was Sweeney for the Cubs. And yet, Hoblitzell, the moment he received a transfer to the Red Sox last summer became the sensation of the American league at the bat and in the field.

So well fixed is Carrigan in first basemen that he is forced to choose between Hoblitzell and Del Gainor, the former star of the Tigers. Can you imagine what Captain Huston and Colonel Ruppert would give to be in a position like that? Bill Donovan would gladly pay $10,000 for either of them and send the money by telegraph to make sure. Carrigan says, however, that he will start Hoblitzell in as the regular first sacker and hold Gainor in reserve.

Of the Red Rox recruits the most promising appear to be Carl Mays, a pitcher; Michael McNally, an infielder (give you one guess as to why Carrigan and Lannin picked that boy—the Mikes are getting mighty scarce in baseball these days), and Patsy Haley, a catcher (you may also take a guess on that selection.)

McNally has all the earmarks of a good shortstop as well as a third baseman, and there is little doubt, according to Carrigan, that he will be kept on the pay roll. This retention of McNally, you will see, gives the Red Sox two good men for every position in the infield, and under the twenty-five player limit rule in the American league they will be able to keep them all. This would be impossible in the National on account of the limit having been cut to twenty-one.

Waycross Club Names Secretary

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 20.—Fred Brewer, president of the Waycross Baseball association, today announced the appointment of E. A. Stubbs, cashier of the Citizens' bank, as secretary of the association. When officers were elected at a meeting Wednesday, the position of secretary was left open, subject to the president's appointment. Mr. Stubbs is one of the most ardent fans of the city and his election will be a pleasing one.

Lookouts Winners

Athletic Meets Are Postponed

Contests Planned for Sunday Schools Are Set for March 27 and April 3

The first Sunday school athletic meets of the Sunday schools of Atlanta have been postponed one week. The postponement of these meets has made it possible for more Sunday schools to enter and for them to complete the organization of their teams. Boys from twelve to fourteen and from fourteen to sixteen years of age will hold their meet Saturday, March 27. The second division meet will be conducted Saturday, April 3, and embraces athletes ranging in age from sixteen to eighteen and over.

This is strictly a Sunday school affair, and boys must be members in good standing of the Sunday school they represent. The superintendents of the respective schools must sign and vouch for the standing of each boy, and all competitors must have a physical examination.

The following is the definition of an amateur, which all must support: "An amateur athlete, is one who participates in competitive gymnastic sports or athletics for pleasure only and for the physical, mental, moral and social benefits directly derived therefrom. A professional in athletics is a person who promotes or participates in gymnastics or athletics for any other purpose than the above."

An entry fee of 10 cents must accompany the entry blank. This fee is to defray the expenses of the meet. The entry blank, together with the fee, must be handed to the registration committee of the Sunday school." The committee will in turn forward same to the committee at the Young Men's Christian Association. All contestants must report not later than 6:45 the night of the meet and will at that time receive final instructions and a number for the meet.

A handsome shield will be awarded to the school scoring the largest total number of points in both meets. The total number of points scored by the five leading boys from a school will be divided by five and the winning average obtained. The 50-yard potato race will count 20 points for the winning team.

Following is the classification of divisions, with the events for each class:

Division I, Class A—Boys over twelve and under fourteen years of age: Standing broad jump, 50-yard dash, 75-yard dash and pull up.

Division I, Class B—Boys over fourteen and under sixteen years of age: Running high jump, two standing broad jumps 75-yard dash and 00-yard dash.

Division II, Class C—All over sixteen and under eighteen years of age: Running high jump, standing broad jump, shot put (81 pounds), 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash.

Division II, Class D—All over eighteen years of age: Running high jump, standing hop, step and jump, shot put (12 pounds) 100-yard dash and 220-yard dash.

In the 60-yard potato relay race, two men will be picked from each class in each division, that is, two from A and two from B the first nighgt and two from C and D the second meet. The teams are to be picked by the Sunday school athletic committee or the superintendent.

TRAINER TUTHILL TELLS GOOD ONE ON RUBE EVANS

GULFPORT, Miss., March 20.—Every few days, Harry Tuthill breaks out in conversation with a new anecdote.

One of his latest concerns "Rube" Evans, the erratic southpaw who sometimes hurled for the New Orleans club of the Southern league and once or twice slipped the Tigers a nice beating.

Whipping the big league clubs in the spring was one of the best things Evans did, by the way. He used to get his curve ball working along about Washington's birthday when a better-balanced man would not have attempted to throw anything but a little speed. Usually the large league hitters got their first look at the "hook" in the exhibition games with the Pelicans and naturally it bothered them a heap.

Hence Mr. Evans' record of successes. Later along in the season when he had run out of curves and the sluggers were all primed up, he wasn't so fortunate and even in the Southern league they used to hop him now and then with great enthusiasm.

According to Tuthill, Evans was pitching a close game one day when his catcher suspected that the opponents were about to pull off the squeeze play. Walking down toward the mound, the backstop told Evans of his suspicions and said:

"If they try the squeeze play, bean him," meaning, of course, for the left-hander to throw right at the batter's head, so that young man would have to duck and would not be able to get in the catcher's way.

On the first ball pitched after the receiver went back to his position, the enemy tried to go through with the anticipated piece of strategy. The runner on third dashed for home and had a tremendous start when Evans, who had started to wind up to pitch, suddenly let fly with all his speed and caught the base runner squarely back of the ear with the ball. It knocked him cold and completely broke up the squeeze.

The fans went up into the air like a skyrocket when they saw Evans deliberately hit the runner in the head and started out of the stands after the pitcher (this game being in a city where "Rube" was none too popular anyhow).

Mr. Evans did not wait to see why he was disliked, but took it on the run and succeeded in getting such a start that he distanced his pursuers. That night at the hotel the catcher asked him what he meant by such a crazy stunt as deliberately wounding an opposing player.

"Well," said the southpaw in self-defense, "you told me to bean him if they tried the squeeze play, and I guess I carried out your orders. Why didn't you tell me that you wanted the batter and not the base runner beaned? You should be more explicit. The batter wasn't in on the play anyhow, and I hit the guy who was about to score the run. I don't seem to get no credit for nothing on this club."

Aquatic Meet at "Y" Wednesday

Wednesday, March 24 at 8 p. m. is the date set for the third and final classified aquatic meet for the first quarter in connection with the physical department of the local Young Men's Christian association.

These classified aquatic meets have aroused a great deal of interest among the local swimmers since the date of the first meet in January. This is the close of the first quarter, January, February and March. These meets have all been run on a classified scheme; that is, men were classified according to their ability in three classes: A, B and C. At the close of this meet the total score of all three meets will be taken and the three men receiving the highest number of points during the three meets in either A, B or C class, will be presented with a gold, silver and bronze button for first, second or third place.

The swimming committee of which George Bonnell is chairman, is very much encouraged over the interest aroused in the swimming game. These meets will be continued on through a second quarter, April, May and June. The scoring will be on the same basis as the first meet and buttons will be awarded for first, second and third places in each class.

The following order of events will obtain: 20-yard breast stroke, 60-yard swim. Plunge for distance.

Wrights Lead Bowling League

After a period of three weeks of play, the Wrights are leading the field in the Atlanta Bowling league, with the high average of .832 having won ten games and lost but two. This team also leads in high scores for three games, with a total of 2,666 pins and in high single game with 945. Kishler of the Wilsons leads in high total for three games with 595. Southard, of the L. & N. five, tops the field for a high single game, with a record of 233.

Following are the averages of the twelve leading bowlers in the league:

Rubien Turns Protest Down

Pacific Association of A. A. U. Makes Kick on Swimming Events in the East but Objection Is Overruled

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—John Elliott, president of the Pacific association of the Amateur Athletic union, telegraphed today to Frederick W. Rubien, of New York, chairman of the National championship committee, asking cancellation of the swimming championships to begin at Pittsburg Wednesday, and those to take place at Brookline, Mass., Chicago and other cities.

Elliott and others here protested, at a meeting Thursday night, against the transfer of several championships to eastern cities after they were awarded to San Francisco.

Elliott characterized Rubien's explanation, made last night, that the rules prevented the holding of all the championships in the five days allotted them at the Panama Pacific exposition, as "a subterfuge and a rank alibi." He said if the Pacific association's demands were not satisfied, he would take "drastic action."

NEW YORK, March 20.—Chairman F. W. Rubien of the Amateur Athletic union national championship committee today declared that the national indoor swimming championships would be decided this year by the Pittsburg, Brookline, New York and other eastern clubs to which they were awarded by the committee.

Mr. Rubien received a telegram from Secretary Hamer of the Pacific association asking by whose authority the indoor swimming championships had been awarded elsewhere than San Francisco to which place, he said, they had been promised. Chairman Rubien's reply was in part:

"Indoor championships have never been held in summer. Your association was invited to apply for these championships early in January and no reply received."

Yankees Smother Savannah Indians

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 20.—The New York Yankees defeated the Savannah South Atlantic leaguers today, 14 to 1, in a game marked by ragged fielding on the part of the locals, who only reported a few days ago. Manager Donovan loaned Manager Lipe several players to complete his team, all of the Savannah players not having yet reported. Nunamaker made a home run and Pipp and Cree hit for triples. Pipp also secured a double.

Pitcher Harmon Will Introduce New Curve Ball

Pirate Hurler Has Novel "Hook" to Baffle National League Hurlers Next Season, After Three Years' Practice He Has Mastered Control Over It

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 20.—Three years of experimenting has resulted in Pitcher Bob Harmon developing one of the most peculiar balls in the history of the national pastime. It will be in use much this summer by "Old Hickory," as he used it with success during the closing days of last season. Only for a lack of control the new ball would have been used earlier, but Harmon has mastered the art of controlling the ball and is banking on it as one of his most valuable assets during the coming season.

The ball floats up to the plate, hesitates for an instant and then wobbles sometimes fading away. According to the catchers and a number of the players who have hit at this new ball, it is one of the most difficult balls to hit.

The ball is held between the thumb and third finger with pressure on the sides. When it leaves the pitcher's hand it rolls off the tips of the first two fingers. Without a revolution it floats up to the plate, looking as big as a balloon, but right here is where it is deceptive. The batter is usually ready to murder such a beauty of a floater, but when it arrives at the plate it wobbles and nine times out of ten the batsman smites the air. The catcher, too, is mighty puzzled if he can determine the course of the ball. Many of them have frequently caught the ball on the wrist.

The ball is more effective than the spitter and in a measure acts similarly to the knuckle ball. Numerous pitchers in the league have watched Harmon in practice, using the ball, and he has demonstrated to them how it is thrown, but none can master the intricate part of the throwing.

The discovery was made by Harmon during the Cardinals' training season of 1912. It was useless because he could not control it. Since then in practice periods Harmon has been working on it almost daily and late last season succeeded in being able to control it. This year he began working with it early and already he is able to control the new ball.

The ball is not either a real fast one nor a slow one. It is faster than the ordinary slow ball and not quite so fast as the fast ball, but the more speed used in hurling the ball, the better the effect.

Some of the players have nicknamed the new ball "the sniff ball." Others call it "the hesitation," but it is almost certain that the fans will prefer to know it by its shorter name.

Harmon's outdoor work during the winter season on his plantation, two miles from Homer, La., put him in fine physical condition for the baseball season. He had to experience aches and pains in the work here, but he claims the stiffness and soreness did not appear from his arm as soon as he gets thoroughly warmed up to his work. Walking in from the ball grounds a few days ago, Rob said that when he went to the park that morning his arm was so stiff that he thought it would break instead of bend. A few tosses and the arm began limbering up. By the time he was called upon to go into the box and pitch to the batters, the soreness had disappeared and a twenty-minute session in the box put him in fine condition. Of course after the day's work was over he felt the soreness and stiffness, but not so severely as the day before. He says the arm is rapidly getting better.

Pirates Release Mensor to Columbus

PITTSBURG, March 20.—Eddie Mensor, Pirate outfielder since July, 1912, has been released to the Columbus club of the American association. The release was the first of the training season.

Mensor was purchased from Portland, Ore., in the Northwestern league, and he played parts of the 1912, 1913 and 1914 seasons. His release was purchased by E. M. Schoenborn of the Columbus club, who is here for the present. Mensor has played the bench during the majority of his Pittsburg career, but will be given the opportunity of getting into the game regularly at Columbus. It is probable he will play in the place of Bill Hinchman, who is now a member of the Pirates.

Clarke to Lead Fight for Race Bill

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 20.—Defense of the Sawyer racing bill legalizing pari-mutuel machines and creating a state racing commission will be conducted by United States Senator James P. Clarke, according to announcement today of George R. Belding, of Hot Springs, secretary of the state fair association. Senator Clarke said he probably would accept the offer next week.

Suit to sustain the validity of the governor's signature of the Sawyer bill, alleged to have been placed there and then erased, will be filed probably Monday, Mr. Belding said.

Some Errors Here

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 20.—The St. Louis Nationals mixed ten hits with thirteen Fort Worth errors and defeated the local Texas league team, 12 to 6, here today. Score:

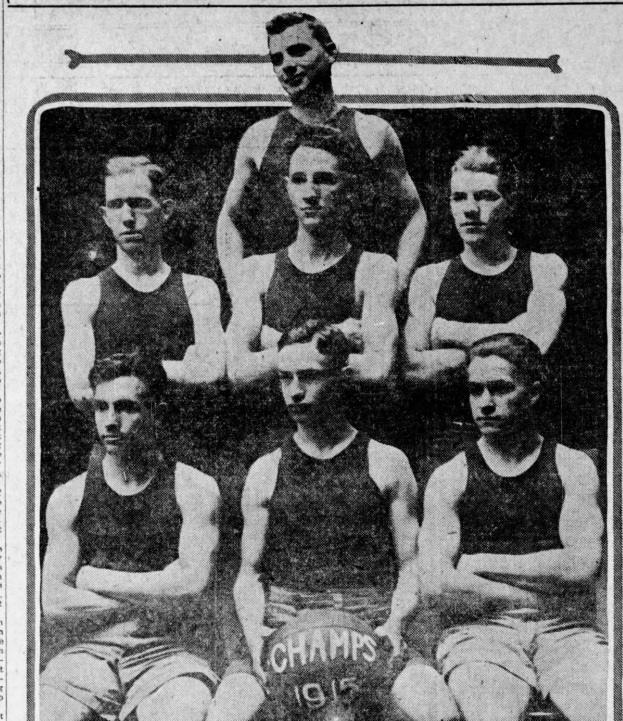
	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	12	10	1
Fort Worth	6	2	13

Perdue, North and Snyder, Roach; Kerr, Harrahand, McMurray, Crittenden.

HE DESERVES IT

WICHITA, Kas., March 6.—The management of the local club of the Western league is offering a season pass to the person who originates a new nickname for the club. There is one fan in Wichita who wants this pass and wants it bad if his list means anything. The following are his suggestions: Warlocks, Skanaks, (he admits he got this from spelling Kansas backward and adding an "s"), Aspirants, Southwesterns, Swastikas, Sunflowers, Pyohis, Newdeals, Neutrals, Getthers, Traders, Combacks, Princes, Phoenixes, Kansans, Peers, Plainsmen, Prairiettes, Hitawics, (shuffled Wichita to get this), Comers, Strategists, Billikins, Progressives, Travelers, Wizards, Riversides, Cyclones, Sunbursts, Witches, Rangers, Invincibles, Invulnerables, Irresistibles, Tornadoes, Thunderbolts, Santatrails, Automatics, Edgewicks, Vanquishers, Conquerors and Bronchos.

THEY WON PENNANT



This team represented the S. V. D. fraternity in the Marion basketball league, which ended its season a short time since. Following the close of their season they challenged the Boys' High school five for the city championship, but the latter team had disbanded and started baseball practice, and the challenge was passed up. Players shown are, top, Maurice Sullivan; second row, left to right, Allen Callahan, Fred Huckaby, George Edmondson, manager; bottom row, Vernon Frank, Mendel Homm, captain, and William Beres.

Alabama Plans Gridiron Work

Coach Graves Expects to Get Moleskin Warriors Out for Spring Practice--New Stunt for Team

UNIVERSITY, Ala., March 20.—Alabama will have spring football practice this year, unless something unexpected happens, according to Coach Graves. No date has been set for the men to go out, but it will probably be April 5, just after the Easter dances have been held, and at a time when the baseball team will have rounded into good enough form to allow the coach to get away.

This will be a decided departure from the old Alabama method of doing things—not worrying about the season in any branch of sport until the days of practice come. Although there are still about thirty men who survived the cut of the baseball squad, it is likely that ten or twelve of them will be cut in time to allow plenty of room on the campus for the pigskin athletes. That part of the campus known as the freshmen football field will be utilized.

The athletic authorities have been so busy of late deciding the matter of coaches that it has had but little chance to discuss any plans, while Coach Graves has had two teams on his hands for the last month, so that he, too, has had no time to work the matter out. However, it is unlikely that the general plan of early fall workouts will be departed from widely. Booting the ball will form a large part of the work, and "Billy" Vandergraaf will be given a double chance of making himself the greatest punter the south ever saw. He will have plenty of assistance, for Wilson and Branson, of the freshman team, are boys who can boot the ball with the best of the younger generation.

Light signal work and perhaps blackboard instruction will complete the work. All the varsity men of the 1914 squad will be on the field with the exception of Bates and Captain "Tubby" Long, who have left school, and Jimmie Hicks, who has played out his four years and will not return next fall. Members of the freshman and scrub squads will also be on hand.

Billiard Challenge

CLEVELAND, O., March 20.—E. M. Helm, secretary of the Interstate Three Cushion Billiard league, has issued a challenge to the winner of the world's championship tournament in Chicago to play the winner of the Interstate race.

Huggins Peeved Over Treatment

Cardinal Manager Irate Because Club Has Gotten No Returns for Perritt and Wingo

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 20.—A Mount Vesuvius explosion will be only a dim echo in comparison to the racket Miller Huggins will start in the National league within the next week if he does not hear from John McGraw and Charley Herzog.

Hug wants to know why the Cardinals haven't received their price for Pol Perritt [illegible] Wingo.

Polly is [illegible]ey in Marlin, a member of [illegible] Ivy is working with the [illegible] in Alexandria, La. And the [illegible]ds have nothing to show for presenting Pol to McGraw and Ivy to Herzog. But Hug is going to get something pretty soon, or he's going to start a rumpus in the National league.

There is a suspicion that the Reds are trying to crawl out of their original agreement, and that instead of handing over players to the Cardinals they are trying to pay a cash price. But a cash price has been refused by Huggins, who made this statement this morning:

"I am not in the market for cash. I want players, and I am going to get the players agreed upon in the first movements of these deals or the deals are not going through."

When Huggins failed to land Marsans down in Havana a new swap was agreed upon by Herzog. It was Benton and Gonzales for Wingo and Cruise. This transaction was O. K'd by both parties during the National league meeting in New York last January.

Since coming south, though, Hug has not heard from Herrmann or Herzog, and today he tore off several sizzling communications to the Redleg officials.

McGraw was given permission by Hug to dicker with Perritt, and if successful in bringing the right-hander back to the National league the Cardinals were to receive some one or something. Their end has not arrived. Hug visited McGraw in Marlin Springs, and he came back single-handed—without his price.

Hug's answer was: "McGraw doesn't want to close anything until President Hempstead arrives."

But Hug added: "Where do I come in? I was fair enough to allow McGraw to get Perritt, but I haven't any man."

Jones Will Try Stallings' Plan

Leader of St. Louis Feds Expects to Work Quick Shifts Among Outfielders Next Season

HAVANA, March 20.—Fielder Jones will use George Stallings' shift this season, provided it proves successful in the present series with the Cuban nines. The system of shifting batters so that right handers will be in the majority against lefthanded pitchers, and visa versa, is by no means a new one, but the wonderful results it produced for Stallings brought it to the attention of Jones.

The Federal leader will carry a flock of gardeners this year and can make the necessary substitutions. Jones has Kirby, Marsans, Miller, Tobin, Drake and Fritz, all outfielders of more or less ability. It is with these players that Fielder will endeavor to gain the results that made Stallings famous.

Both Johnny Tobin and Ward Miller are good hitters, but they show a weakness when facing southpaws, and Jones has decided to use them only against right-handers.

If the court's ruling makes it possible for Marsans to appear in the Terrier lineup during the coming season Fielder Jones will possess an outfield trio which will rival anything in baseball. The Cuban covers as much ground as any outfielder in the business, and he conducts himself creditably at bat.

Ward Miller proved himself a better batter than fielder last year, but he is by no means a poor gardener. He hit at .295 last season. Tobin, who looked so promising in 1914 that he drew an offer from organized ball, is a comine star.

If early spring form counts for anything at all the 1915 Terriers are going to play at least 75 per cent better ball than their predecessors of last year.

Tiger Recruits There Strong on Heft and Brawn

Catcher Peters Is Real Giant Among Detroit Rookies, but Baby Doll Jacobsen Is Not Far Behind Him--Smithson Another Husky Chap

GULFPORT, Miss., March 20.—It is just as well for President Navin that he does not have to purchase his recruits either by the pound or the yard, for either one of these methods would have ruined him this season.

Judging by the looks of the flock of recruits gathered in by Detroit scouts last fall for 1915 delivery the Tigers' agents wanted just as much as possible for their money. Of the nine newcomers who will get their first trials at Gulfport, four are 6 feet 1 inch in height, or better, and the same number tip the beam at 190 pounds or more.

Any football coach would scream with delight if he could land some of the raw material now in the Tiger camp. The four big men mentioned, for instance, are not fat, but are of the rangy, large-boned build that makes the ideal athlete in almost any line; barring heavyweight wrestling, which seems to demand mere avoidupois, plus an unlimited amount of confidence in the public's willingness to stand for the "work."

John Peters is the monster of the Jungaleers, both young and old. He is 6 feet 4 inches in height and weighs 205 pounds in condition. John is just naturally a giant and they do say that, when he cuts loose a throw to second, the infielder who covers that sack has to wear an iron glove.

Next to the big catcher comes William C. (Baby Doll) Jacobson, the sole recruit in the outfield department. Jake cannot very well be overlooked when naming the behemoths for he is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 195 pounds in shape—a figure that probably is less than his actual poundage as ball players do not like to confess to the double-century mark.

J. F. Smithson, the only new southpaw pitcher, is the third of the mastodons. He is 6 feet 1 inch in height and tips the beam at a mere 190, so he hardly is in Jacobson's class. The fourth member of the "Big Four" is L. O. Ledbetter, the hurler from the mountains of North Carolina. He is the tallest man on the entire squad, standing 6 feet 4 inches in his unshined feet, but he is not so solid as the other three, weighing but 185.

Ledbetter is likely to be the biggest of the whole bunch when once he fills out, however, for he has only begun to put on weight. He is the youngest man of the party, having passed his nineteenth birthday only last December. When he fills out that big frame of his there will be few huskier young men extant.

The 1915 Tigers are not only a big bunch, but a young one as well. Only three of the nine have reached their twenty-second birthdays. One is twenty-five, one twenty-four and one twenty-three. Four confess to twenty-one summers, one admits twenty and the baby, Ledbetter, is just nineteen.

"Pep" Young is the oldest of the recruits. He first saw the light of day back in 1885, which gives him twenty-five years at the present time. This, of course, makes him old only by comparison. Few men are actually decrepit or feeble at twenty-five, and if Young comes up to expectations in the matter of fielding and batting, his antiquity will not be held against him. Even if he had to go to the old men's home after ten years of service in the majors he would be well worth picking up.

Eddie Plank, it will be remembered, did not start his major league career until he was twenty-seven, yet managed to last fourteen seasons in the big show before hopping into the Federal circuit.

Dalton High Holds Track Meet

DALTON, Ga., March 20.—Field day for the purpose of selecting a track team to represent the Dalton High school at the district high school meet in Rome April 9-10, was held here Friday afternoon. The athletes took it easy in the trials, and Coach Watson believes his team will make a creditable showing. The men selected together with the events in which they will be entered is as follows:

Wyly King, 100 and 220-yard dashes; Arthur Hill, 440-yard dash; Latimer Hollingsworth, high and broad jumps and shot put; Barrett White, hurdles; Wyly King, Arthur Hill, Jene Hudson and Jack Copeland, relay team.

Cardinals Establish "Farm" in Canada

HAMILTON, Ont., March 20.—Manager Bill Cristall of the Hamilton ball team has entered into an agreement with Miller Huggins, manager of the St. Louis National league team, whereby the Hams will secure the services of a good young catcher at present with the St. Louis team.

The youngster has been taken south to the training camp by Huggins, and is to be turned over to Hamilton in April. Cristall also has an opptrunity oo secure a good infielder from Huggins, and may avail himself of the opportunity.

The St. Louis manager has asked for the privilege of first choice of any likely youngsters on the Hamilton team.

"Mary" Calhoun Signs With Gulls

MOBILE, Ala., March 20.—William Calhoun, first baseman last year for the Mobile Southern association team, signed his contract today for the fourth coming season and reported for practice. Calhoun had been withholding his signature, demanding a higher salary than was offered, according to club officials.

Washington Riflemen Leading in Shoot

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Washington State, with 993 out of a possible 1,000 turned in the highest score this week in the Intercollegiate Rifle competition.

Eames and Huey Win at Billiards

CHICAGO, March 20.—Fred Eames, Denver, defeated Lloyd Jerves, Salt Lake City, 50 to 45 in the first of today's matches in the world's three cushion billiard championship tournament.

In the second afternoon game William Huey, of Chicago, won his seventh straight game by defeating Joe Capron, of St. Paul, 50 to 43 in 68 innings.

Pirates Will Land Places on Team by Merit

Fred Clark Makes Talk to His Squad and Tells Them That No Man Has a Place Cinched--Selection of Regulars to Be Made on Showing in Practice

DAWSON SPRINGS, Ky., March 20.—A 20-minute session of the Clarke school was held shortly after the arrival of the Pirates here, during which time the leader of the Pirate crew unloaded himself of much information which he thought the players should know. He explained the case for the club selecting watering places preparatory to moving farther south. Explained to the rookies the customs of the club and players while on the training trip and then told them that he wanted each player to take the best of care of himself in that physical condition while in Dawson, that he would be able to stand the rigorous work which comes at Hot Springs. He told the players that it was impossible for one man to watch the movements of so big a squad and the players would be on their honor in regard to training rules.

Clarke explained to his cases that individually the members were all nice fellows, that he would like to keep them all on the team, but that he has a duty to perform, picking a team which will give Pittsburg a first-class ball team. The rule makes it necessary for him to let go of some of the players, but each man released should have made an effort to obtain a place on the Pittsburg club and he will be better-off for so doing.

"I want to say to you all that no man is sure of a place on the team. Every position is open and the man showing the most ability will be selected for that position. Don't get disheartened. Don't think somebody else has beaten you out for a certain place. When the time comes I will make the selection and it will be made wholly on the basis of what you show me here and in Hot Springs."

"It's work all the time. We expect the players to deliver the goods. There will be no outside business this year. If any is attempted the players will get on the outside. We expect them to produce just the same as they expect the club to produce on the first and fifteenth of each month."

Clarke announced there would be no practice games here, the first Yanigan-Regular game would be played in Hot Springs on St. Patrick's Day.

Pitchers and catchers work from 9:30 until 10:30 each morning and the fun and out fielders the rest of the morning. A like program has been mapped out for the afternoon until the weather permits outdoor work.

While the squad is not any larger than Clarke has led south in former years, there are so many new faces and names that the chieftain had to take a copy of the names from the hotel register to be sure he had all of them. It was suggested that he number the players the same as in football, but he declined.

"LET HIM BUNT," WAS LONG'S RETORT.

Among the choice anecdotes that Joe Tinker is fond of telling is one that concerns Larry Schnally, manager of the Buffeds. Larry at one time was a utility man with the Cubs. One day Bobby Lowe, the third baseman, was hurt, and Larry had to cover the bag. Up came Hans Wagner to bat, and Larry lay so far back that he was even with Tinker at short. "Hey, Larry, where are you playing? He'll bunt on you," yelled Joe, and Larry came in just in time to get a hot liner on a hinger. The ball went to the stands and Hans made two bases. Again Wagner came up, and this time Larry never even further back than Tinker. "Gosh, Larry, he'll bunt sure on you," exclaimed Tinker. "I'll stay right here," said Larry. "Let the big Dutchman bunt until he gets said." And the Dutchman did—didn't.

Care With Tires Cuts Down Bills

Firestone Expert Tells How Attention in Time to Minor Inquires Proves Profitable in Long Run

"A little attention to tires right now, when motorists are getting their cars into shape for the spring and summer, will save considerable money on the season's tire bills," says Mr. R. J. Firestone, sales manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company. "The service of tires will be abbreviated to a considerable extent if cuts, punctures and snags are neglected. The cost of fixing such injuries is small, but if neglected, the difference in the tire bills is mighty big."

"New macadam roads, especially when wet, are apt to damage the rubber cover. If rear wheels lose traction and spin around on wet pavements or ice, or in mud or sand, the cover may receive numerous small snags or cuts. Then again, in the ordinary course of touring, sharp stones, tacks, glass and other objects injure the tread.

"A cut or injury in the tread has a tendency to expand. This is due to the elasticity of the rubber, and the weight of the machine in contact with the road pressing down upon the tire. In this way such foreign matter as dust, grit, sand and pebbles is forced into the cut. With each revolution of the wheel when the injured part is relieved of the weight of the car, the accumulation of foreign matter acts as a wedge. With each successive revolution of the wheel it forces itself farther in between the outer an dthe fabric of the tire. It is not unusual for complete separation of the tread to occur. When this happens, it is often necessary to either apply an entirely new cover or buy a new tire."

COLUMBUS GOES AFTER WATERWAYS CONVENTION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 20.—The Mississippi to Atlantic inland waterway convention may be held in Columbus during home-coming week. Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, who is head of the organization, has taken up the matter with Secretary Henderson in this city and asked that he sound the board of directors on the subject. Mr. Henderson, who is heartily in favor of the idea, has written all of the directors, and he expects early replies. Should they be favorable, the convention will be called for April 15 in Columbus.

AUGUSTA AGENTS NAMED IN EMPIRE LIFE CASE

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—C. H. Moorman and William Gill have been designated as agents of Captain J. W. English, temporary receiver of the Empire Life Insurance company building at Augusta. Callaway & Howard, attorneys for the receiver, made the appointment.

Judge Hammond, of the Richmond superior court, has under advisement the question of naming a receiver for the Empire building. A receiver is asked for by the Augusta stockholders.

Cord Type Tires Proves Popular

Goodyear Finds That Tire Originally Used Only by Electrics Is Also Suited to Gas Cars

"Reports from all sections of the country indicate that the popularity Goodyear cord tires have enjoyed for many years as electric car equipment has been communicated strongly to the gasoline type car field in the past few years," says Jas. E. Taylor, local branch manager.

"The first Goodyear cord tires, made in 1904, were intended for electric vehicle use, and for nearly ten years Goodyear sales activity in cord tires was confined to electrics. Latterly, however, the market for cord tires for gasoline cars has been opening up, and Goodyear experts have applier their years of experience to the newer work.

"In these days men rate their car performances more accurately than formerly. High mileage per gallon of gasoline, quick "get away" to speed from a standstill, additional comfort and smooth riding from large tires, all these are important to the modern motorist.

"Part of the phenomenal success of Goodyear cord tires comes from the fact that they are the only straight-side cord tires marketed—the only no-rim-cuts in cord type.

"During the past two years Goodyear has added a comfortable stack of contracts with gasoline car manufacturers to the electric car contracts already running for cord tires.

"The addition of the regular Goodyear all-weather tread in this type, giving the advantage of the famous bulldog grip on slippery roads, has also been an important factor. Goodyear experts declare that cord tire business will grow rapidly year by year as the number of particular motorists continues to increase."

FACES TRIAL FOR CRIME COMMITTED YEARS AGO

Sheriff T. B. Hightower, of Hancock county, came to Atlanta Saturday for Brookin Brown, who has been in the Fulton county tower several weeks for safe keeping and who will go on trial at Sparta this week for complicity in the murder of a man named Boyer, who was killed in Hancock county more than twelve years ago.

Tom Allen, alleged to be an accomplice of Brown in the murder, was convicted and given a life sentence. Brown escaped before his trial and was located in Texas several weeks ago, where he was living under an assumed name.

PHYSICIAN WITNESS FOR CHINESE HERB DOCTOR

Accused Will Probably Take Stand When Case Is Resumed Monday

The hearing in the federal court of case of Dr. T. Y. Young, the Chinese herb doctor charged with fraudulent use of the mails, has gone over until Monday, when Young himself will probably take the stand. Dr. George F. Payne, a witness for the defense, was on the stand Friday at adjournment.

Young is the head of the Oriental Herb company, and the government post-office inspectors wrote decoy letters to him purporting to come from young men requesting treatment.

Weight, 150 pounds; color good; color of tongue and throat, red; sleepp eight hours out of the twent-four; has no cough except with cold; doesn't perspire under normal or slight exertion; pulse 78; has good appetite; drinks water about half a dozen times a day; hasn't any pains in the back of his head or elsewhere.

The government contended, and the defense didn't altogether deny, that the symptoms, were those of the average healthy man.

Albert Howell, Jr., of counsel for the doctor, argued that the very fact that a patient came to a doctor warranted the doctor in supecting some sort of ailment. He also argued that doctors often prescribed for people they knew were well, either because they hoped to get good results from suggestion, or were afarid of offending the patient and losing him.

PET CAT GOES MAD AND CHASES FAMILY UPSTAIRS

Policeman Kills Frenzied Feline at Home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Shaw

Psyche, the pet cat of little Idelle Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Shaw, of 179 East Pine street, was sick Saturday morning. Idelle petted Psyche and gave her some water to drink. A moment later the cat began foaming at the mouth, and the little girl screamed.

Mrs. Shaw, Idelle and Miss Robena Shaw, twenty years old, fled upstairs, the cat pursuing them. When they dashed into one room, Psyche ran into another and Mrs. Shaw, rushing out, closed the door on the frenzied animal.

Then Policeman Camp came and shot Psyche four times until she was dead. No one was bitten.

Paige Winner Over Big Field

Rochester Street Railway Corporation Buys Nine Cars After Hard Test on Many Makes

The Rochester Railway and Light company, a large railway and power corporation in Rochester, New York, has just closed contracts with the Seneca Motor Car company, Paige distributors in that city, for the purchase of nine Paige cars, eight Glenwood Fours and one Paige "Six-46," which will be used by this company for various purposes in the transaction of its business.

The sale was consummated only after a prolonged and exhaustive investigation and series of tests in which cars of nearly every standard make were represented. The Rochester Railway and Light company is no novice in the field of motor transportation, as it has used automobiles for a number of years. Its selection had to be based largely on the question of economy of operation and repair maintenance, and for some time it had been using a car that is famous for these virtues and sells more than five to one beyond the production of any other make.

To determine, therefore, its selection for its new fleet the company put all competitors to the severest tests it could devise to bring out economy of operation and maintenance, using its own machines for this purpose and finally turning over each competing car to an engineer, a well-known member of the Society of Automobile Engineers. Questions of fuel consumption, tire wear, weight in relation to durability and economy, power, reliability—in fact all the big and little points that are involved in such a matter were brought out in a thoroughly practical manner.

And the result was that the Paige won—won out over all others on economy and durability—and got the order for the nine cars, a victory which Paige executives feel is a peculiarly telling indorsement of their assertions that Paige cars have a value represented in economy, power and durability that is exceptional.

ORDUNA CARRIES TWO BIG GUNS TO ALLIES

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Cunarder Orduna left for Liverpool via Halifax today with two big guns, consigned to the British government, lashed to her forward deck. Each was 55 feet long. In the ship's holds were other pieces of ordnance. At Halifax the Orduna will take aboard some reservists.

How much per——DELIVERED Mile?

THAT'S the Tire Question in a Nutshell!

Not—"how much does the Tire Cost"—"how much Rubber is in it"—"how many layers of Cotton fabric"—or "how many different Vulcanizings does it go through."

Because,—Results have shown that some of the Tires which have most Cotton, Rubber, Weight and stiffness, give much less MILEAGE and Resilience than other tires made lighter by more expert workmen, through more direct and precise Methods.

Such "Guarantee" would be impracticable with the best Tire ever made, or that ever will be made.

—This, unless the Tire User could, in turn, guarantee the kind of roads over which he would always drive, the kind of driving his Chauffeur would always do, and the air pressure he would always carry on each Tire.

THE "Mileage Guarantee" is therefore a deceptive Misnomer.

It does not guarantee given Mileage but is only a figure arbitrarily named "as a Basis for Adjustment" on Claims made for defective Workmanship or Materials.

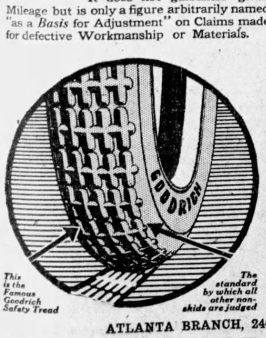
Read any of these "Guarantees" that are printed (or have the verbal ones defined) and you will see that they don't guarantee anything except that the Maker alone shall decide everything such "Guarantee" is supposed to cover.

The larger the Milage "Guarantee" the higher the price must the Maker charge, to cover (as with Life Insurance) the increased "risk" of replacing Tires that are reasonably sure to wear out, in considerable numbers, before they have given the "Guaranteed" Mileage.

The Careful Driver, over good roads and streets, would thus pay more than the Tire is worth, so that the Reckless Driver, or he who must continually drive over bad roads and streets, might get Mileage he is not entitled to, at the Careful Driver's expense.

THE Goodrich Safety Tread is the fairest-priced Tire, of similar Quality, in the field.—Ten to 30% lower than other Tires that give less Mileage on average performance, less effective Traction, with more Vibration, and greater tendency to separate the layers of Fabric and of Tread.

Compare the "Goodrich Safety" Mileage Cost with that of any other Tire in the field, and ACT on what the Comparison shows you.



This is the Famous Goodrich Safety Tread

The standard by which all other non-skids are judged

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES "A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	$ 9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

GOODRICH FAIR-LISTED TIRES

Costs more to build—but less to run

And the extra expense that Studebaker goes to in the building of this FOUR, expense that some makers of cars might think unnecessary, is the very reason that this car is famed as the LOW UP-KEEP Four.

The matter of drop forgings, for example. You'll find 187 of them in this FOUR. Many might have been malleable castings at a fraction of the cost. But drop forgings are stronger—and LIGHTER, too. They cut down the weight and lighter weight, as, of course, you know, means lighter upkeep.

Or in the motor design, for example—little refinements have been made—improvements here and there that get MORE power without increasing the size of the cylinders or the gasoline bills. And so in every detail, you find the same policy of sparing no effort, no expense to make a Studebaker car stronger and lighter and easier to drive and MORE ECONOMICAL of tires and gasoline.

But see this FOUR—or better, let us take you for a drive in it. That's the way to tell and we'll gladly put it to any test

Novel Service Plan Launched By Studebaker

Branches and Dealers Adopt Scheme for Periodical Inspection of All Cars Sold. Blanks for Reports of Work Done Furnished--Move Fast Proving Popular

Something new has happened in the automobile world. It is a boon to the owners of new machines, according to the man who is operating his first car. Studebaker dealers in Chicago, Detroit and several other large cities are instituting a periodical inspection of cars they sell. Working according to this systematic service plan, it has been proved in the places where it has been given a thorough trial, that not only does the car receive adequate attention, but the new owner receives his motor education without damaging the machine.

The Studebaker systematic service plan has been rapidly taken up by Studebaker dealers in these opulous automobile centers. While local conditions cause certain variations in it, in the main the plan is everywhere the same. The car is brought to the dealer on the appointed day and gone over carefully. It comes in twice the first month and every thirty days thereafter for five months.

On an inspection sheet which gives at a glance what is done on each visit there are 61 operations to be checked off by the inspector. Thus both dealer and owner know that the car has been gone over thoroughly. The vital parts of the motor are inspected and adjusted, valves, carburetor and ignition system. Wheel bearings, the steering system and the springs are greased and adjusted. Then there is a careful scrutiny of the electrical system, starter, motor generator, lights and wiring.

Where the owner has been neglected, the fact is called to his attention. Thus he is educated to give his automobile proper care. When he buys his machine a card is given him on which appear the dates upon which he should bring it in. Several days before each of these, some dealers send post card reminders. The owner must adhere to the dates. Otherwise there would be congestion in the garage and delays annoying to owners. If a date is missed, a special engagement must be made.

In practice it is working out that owners who have enjoyed the Studebaker systematic service plan are anxious to continue its benefits, something one can do by the payment of a monthly fee. A number of men who purchased Studebakers before the plan went into effect, with cars in use longer than six months, are also paying for service.

Studebaker was led to the development of its systematic service plan by observation of dealers, both men handling Studebakers and men handling other machines, who felt they should give service but were so spasmodic and indefinite that results were never satisfactory. Too much was done for one owner; not enough for another. By the Studebaker plan, the man who buys a machine knows just what he is going to get—it is all set forth in a book. He knows the days on which the free inspections are given. Of course, if anything goes wrong, he does not wait for inspection day but drives at once to the dealer's garage.

The great expense in car repairs is from neglect. An adjustment made today, a slight repair tomorrow, and the expense of an entire over-hauling later is saved. Therefore, the Studebaker dealer with this service is doing the work of a pioneer, developing a new field—that of systematic service.

Balance, Not Weight, Makes Tires Go Far

What makes a tire give big mileage? This question is always the go-ahead signal for warm discussion among motorists and tire men. Users of tires are beginning to ask themselves this question and are looking for the correct answer with increasing insistence because they realize that it is possible to pay for needless materials in a tire.

As a matter of fact, mere extra weight of rubber will not give extra mileage. Neither will added layers of fabric necessarily add more miles of service. If an over balance of rubber is used, the carcass of the tire will give out long before the tread is worn down, and the motorist finds several pounds of rubber on his hands which he cannot use—and which he paid many dollars for.

On the other hand, if extra plies of fabric are used in a tire, they have to be paid for, but the tread will be gone long before the carcass, and the money for extra carcass is wasted.

The real, long mileage tire is the tire with perfect balance between carcass and tread so that as much or more mileage is given as any extra thick tire could give, without costing the motorist so much.

Along these lines an official of the B. F. Goodrich company makes these interesting remarks:

"Nobody picks a fat man to win a long-distance race. It is the lithe, sinewy athlete who leads the bunch. Goodrich tires are a flawless example of this principle worked out scientifically. They are the tires in which the strength of the fabric and the toughness and resilience of the rubber tread are the factors in big mileage getting. Their stripped-down, athlete qualities conserve materials and save the motorist money, both on first cost and ultimate cost, because of mileage delivered.

"In fact, extra rubber tread or extra fabric, or both, will not give you extra mileage because the extra weight makes the tire wear itself out before it gets to the long mileage goal. This is not theory, but road-tested fact.

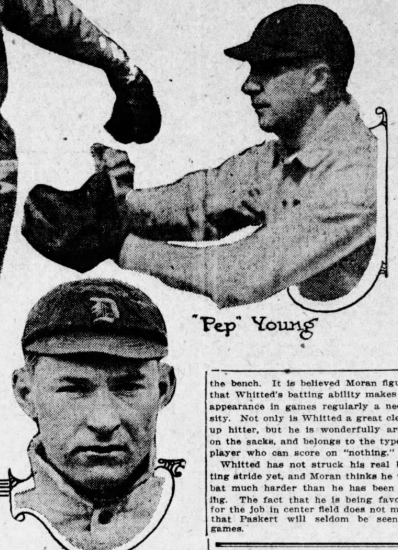
"The Goodrich factory has for years adhered to the perfect balance principle in tire building, which accounts for the mileage plus economy found in those tires."

Atlanta Boy Leads Gordon Track Team

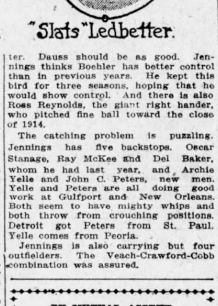
BARNESVILLE, Ga., March 20.—Miller Case, of Atlanta, has been elected to lead Gordon's track and field team this spring. He has issued the call for candidates and a number have responded. The squad looks exceedingly promising. It is especially strong in the dashes and jumps. Gillican, the baseball star, shows up splendidly in the broad jump. Warren Watrous, the acquisition from Hargrove institute, is expected to render valuable service in the high jump. He is already clearing the bar at a five four clip. The dashes will be taken care of by Captain Case, Prentiss, Stokes, Sims and Teasley. Brewster, an Atlanta boy, promises to do well in the long distance. Much is also expected of Newsome in that event. The shot put will be contested by Montogmery, Beasley, McMichael and Friar.

FULLERTON THINKS DETROIT TIGERS ARE DUE FOR COMEBACK THIS YEAR

Geo. Cunningham



"Pep" Young



"Slats" Ledbetter.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Detroit looks good.

Oh you of little faith in March promises of teams, remember this: that with Cobb in the game all last season and with one more capable pitcher the Tigers probably would have won the American league pennant. For two separate periods of from twenty to forty days last year Detroit played the best ball on the circuit.

Jennings has three great problems: a second baseman, a catcher who can hit, and another competent pitcher.

He thinks he has them all. "Pep" Young, the star infielder from the coast, is making good down at Gulfport; two young pitchers promise to supply the missing strength, and Jennings is confident he at last has picked up a hitting catcher in Archie Yelle.

Undoubtedly Jennings has picked up more good material than any major league team in the country, and this team is due to come back with a rush.

Last year the Tigers showed more promise than any team I saw in training camp, and the report this spring is that the revival that then threatened is due.

If a squad of eighteen pitchers and catchers at Gulfport, Miss., produces half that many capable performers, and if the most highly touted infielder from the Pacific coast makes good half the boasts made in his behalf, Detroit will be there or thereabouts when October starts.

Of the recruit pitchers George H. Cunningham and Ben J. Karr, both right handers, give the most promise.

But the greatest promise of the pitching staff consists of the improvement of Veteran Harry Coveleskie, the southpaw who pitched great ball for Detroit after being a failure in the National league, is curving them as well as at any time last year and is due for a big year, having gained the confidence that he lacked. Dubuc's knee that troubled him all last year has entirely mended, and the Frenchman is bound to do better. Dauss should be as good. Jennings thinks Boehler has better control than in previous years. He kept this bird for three seasons, hoping that he would show control. And there is also Ross Reynolds, the giant right hander, who pitched fine ball toward the close of 1914.

The catching problem is puzzling. Jennings has five backstops. Oscar Stanage, Ray McKee and Del Baker, whom he had last year, and Archie Yelle and John C. Peters, new men. Yelle and Peters are all doing good work at Gulfport and New Orleans. Both seem to have mighty whips and both throw from crouching positions. Detroit got Peters from St. Paul. Yelle comes from Peoria.

Jennings is also carrying but four outfielders. The Veach-Crawford-Cobb combination was assured.

Whitted After Paskert's Job

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20.—George Whitted looks good to Pat Moran for centerfield position. It may be the ex-Brave will displace Dode Paskert, who has held that position ever since Clark Griffith traded him to the Phillies in 1911.

In nearly all the games last week Whitted was in center, with Paskert on the bench. It is believed Moran figures that Whitted's batting ability makes his appearance in games regularly a necessity. Not only is Whitted a great clean-up hitter, but he is wonderfully artful on the sacks, and belongs to the type of player who can score on "nothing."

Whitted has not struck his real batting stride yet, and Moran thinks he will bat much harder than he has been doing. The fact that he is being favored for the job in center field does not mean that Paskert will seldom be seen in games.

BY MUTUAL ASSENT.

MARLIN, Texas, March 20.—Poll Perritt came here a stranger, but already he has been able to make common cause with one of the Giants. Some well wisher sent Poll a clipping from a St. Louis paper today, in which Schuyler Britton, owner of the Cardinals, was quoted as saying:

"I would not have Perritt on my team again under any circumstances. He made more trouble for me than any player I ever owned. Moreover, I wish to deny the rumor that the St. Louis club has made an offer for Rube Marquard. We do not want Marquard. He is a 'nut.'"

Perritt and Marquard, on reading the clipping, framed a set of resolutions concerning the life of Schuyler Britton, past, present and future, his character, ability and disposition and passed it unanimously.

Reo Is Finding Business Good

Company Daily Besieged by Orders Far in Advance of Output of Plant--Increases Force

"We have seen some big days at Lansing, but never days like these," writes Sales Manager R. C. Rueschaw, of the Reo Motor Car company, in a letter to Reo dealers.

"To say that we are swamped with orders is putting it mildly. We have heard from every Reo dealer in the last two weeks, and everyone has asked for at least four times as many automobiles as we can possibly supply him.

"It takes us back to the time when there were about twenty buyers for every one car that was produced, and when a man who owned a car was envied. The morning's bunch of grief smashed all previous order records. One of our distributors sent in orders for twenty-five carloads of cars, all to be shipped direct to his subdealers at once. Bear in mind, the orders were all signed-up specifications from the subdealers, and this is only the third day of the month. You can imagine what this dealer will want before we get to the 31st. Added to that, his contract calls for the delivery of sixty cars this month, which we thought when he made out his estimate was just about right and that if we gave him that many he would be a happy man. I am satisfied that this same dealer would take 300 if he could get them.

"I received a wire from Boston this morning telling us to ship whatever we could and all we could. Our Kansas City friends burned up the wires, and the day isn't half over. From now on it looks like a case of side-stepping and sparring for wind. We're doing everything we can to increase the production and have men on the job in the warehouse cleaning that up so we can assemble some cars in that building. We don't believe it is wise to put on a night and day shift because cars may go out here that are not up to the standard, so we rather keep to the factory schedule and make every car that goes out of here sell another.

"I didn't think we could beat the demand we had last year, but you can take it from me that there is absolutely no comparison between the demand now and the demand at any time last year. Total orders today, 405—some orders. And we're only just heading into what is called the rush season."

One thing is certain, Clarence Rowland got the start on the other American league teams—and probably will hold it until April 14, anyhow.

SCRIPPS-BOOTH NAMES NEW BUSINESS MANAGER

R. H. SPEAR.

With the advent of the new Scripps-Booth car a new personality has been introduced into the motor car manufacturers' world—Mr. R. H. Spear, general manager of the Scripps-Booth company.

Mr. Spear is unusually fitted for the managment of a manufacturing plant. The fact that he was never connected with the automobile industry before makes no difference.

Though still a young man, he is an authority on factory organization and managment, which has been his life study.

In one trip of 10 months' duration, Mr. Spear covered 15,000 miles and investigated over 400 factory organizations in 28 different states.

Every morning Mr. Spear knows the exact condition of the business to that day. The factory makes a report showing daily costs. If it costs more to make 500 cars this week than it did last week he knows it and finds out the reason at once.

Mr. Spear says his material cost is greater in proportion to the price of the car than any other. This is possible because of the high efficiency and the perfect co-operation throughout the entire organization.

The efficiency of co-operation is one of Mr. Spear's fundamental principles in factory management. He says that a man's ability to produce is dependent largely upon the men under his control. This applies from the president down to the foreman. Each man's value, therefore, is increased through perfect co-operation.

The highest grade of men are hired—men who are big enough to realize they are part of the organization, no matter how humble their positions, and work with the organization for mutual success.

The remarkable part of the success of Mr. R. H. Spear is the far-reaching knowledge and experience he has acquired in the short period of 15 years. Fifteen years ago he started as stenographer to a judge of the Probate court. His next step was to chief accountant for a large concern. Then he jumped to general manager for one of the Hygeia ice plants.

From that point in his career he became a system and organization expert.

The Scripps-Booth car, designed by Mr. Wm. B. Stout, is a car of great luxury and comfort in light weight. Deliveries have begun and it is significant that a majority of sales are being made to owners of high priced touring cars and limousines who want a light car that equals their big cars in appearance, comfort and performance.

Western Teams Enter Big Relay

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 20.—Western colleges will be better represented at the relay races at the University of Pennsylvania from Chicago, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Coe, Oregon, Colorado, Michigan Agricultural college, Ohio Wesleyan, Grinnell and the University of Southern California that they will send either relay teams of star athleter for the special events.

The four mile relay race promises to be a struggle between the east and west. Cornell will probably represent the east, while Michigan, Chicago, Kansas and perhaps Illinois will all have teams in this event. Pennsylvania will also compete in the four-mile championship, but having lost six of their best mile runners last year through graduation, the Red and Blue is not expected to be a very strong contender for the honors.

The number of teams already entered in the races which will be held April 23 and 24, are approaching the 200 mark. More than 300 schools and colleges will be represented, and it is expected that about 2,500 athletes will compete.

BARNEY OLDFIELD, IN A MAXWELL

Finishes First, Traveling Three Hundred One Miles at Sixty-Eight and One-Half Miles Per Hour Without a Stop

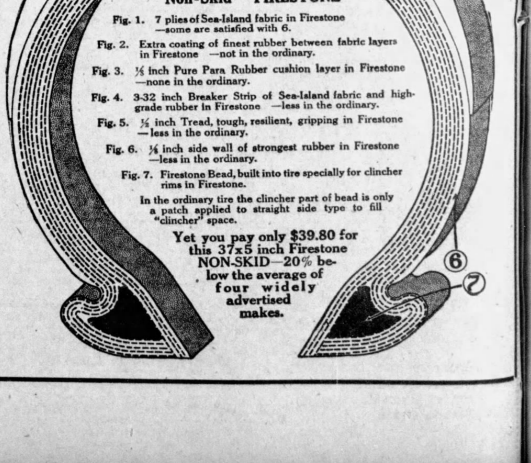
OVER this hot macadam road, which ground down tires like a giant emery wheel, Firestone tires again achieved an international victory March seventeenth.

Ninety-seven laps were covered in this race which meant that each of three right-angled turns were rounded ninety-seven times, an additional terrific tire test. Out of nineteen entrants only six finished the race, so severe was the test of men, machines and tires

This is only one of the many drastic tests through which Firestones have come victorious in recent months. In the Los Angeles-Phoenix road race, the celebrated "Cactus Derby" Firestone tires finished first, second and third, and in the El Paso-Phoenix road race, run at the same time, Firestones won first.

These two gruelling races, over twelve hundred miles of unfrequented mountain and desert roads, also put tires to unprecedented tests.

Study the reasons for this service in the illustration and compare Firestone prices with the prices of ordinary tires. Then you will always use the tire of most miles per dollar.



Actual Size 5-inch "Non-Skid" FIRESTONE

Fig. 1. 7 plies of Sea-Island fabric in Firestone —some are satisfied with 6.

Fig. 2. Extra coating of finest rubber between fabric layers in Firestone —not in the ordinary.

Fig. 3. ½ inch Pure Para Rubber cushion layer in Firestone —none in the ordinary.

Fig. 4. 3-32 inch Breaker Strip of Sea-Island fabric and high-grade rubber in Firestone —less in the ordinary.

Fig. 5. ½ inch Tread, tough, resilient, gripping in Firestone —less in the ordinary.

Fig. 6. ½ inch side wall of strongest rubber in Firestone —less in the ordinary.

Fig. 7. Firestone Bead, built into tire specially for clincher rims in Firestone.

THE ATLANTA JOURNAL. SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 21, 1915.

PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR STATE T. P. A. CONVENTION HERE

There Will Be Something Doing Every Minute of Visitors' Stay in Atlanta--Many Entertainments Provided

A tentative program has been outlined for the entertainment of the delegates and visiting ladies who will attend the state T. P. A. convention, which meets in Atlanta April 8 and 9. The program was arranged at a meeting of the general entertainment committee and the subcommittees held at the Ansley hotel on Saturday, March 13. It is planned to have something doing for the visitors every minute of their stay here. While the delegates are in session, the visiting ladies will be tendered receptions and be taken for automobile rides about the city.

The opening exercises will be held on Thursday, April 8, at 10 o'clock, in the assembly hall of the Ansley hotel, following which there will be a business session that will run well through the afternoon. On Thursday evening there will be a theater party at the Forsyth. On Friday morning at 9 o'clock there will be memorial services conducted by Rev. S. R. Belk, state chaplain. At 10 o'clock the business session will be resumed and will last until the afternoon, when the convention will formally adjourn. An automobile ride for the delegates will follow which will include a visit to the federal prison and the Ford automobile plant.

On Thursday afternoon at 12:30, while the delegates are holding the business session, the ladies will be tendered a reception in the parlors of the Ansley hotel and on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock they will be given an automobile ride about the city.

The convention will come to a close Friday night when an informal dance at the Ansley hotel will be held beginning at 8:30.

J. C. Harrison, chairman of the committee, is enthusiastic over the prospect of giving the delegates the biggest time they have ever had at any state convention. A large number of visiting T. P. A. ladies are expected than ever before, and in order to insure a big attendance the Ansley hotel, which will be convention headquarters, will give free lodging to all visiting T. P. A. ladies.

The following is the program so far as arranged:

THURSDAY, APRIL 8.

Convention called to order at 10 a. m. in the assembly hall of the Ansley hotel by J. C. Harrison, president of Post B.

Overture by the orchestra.

Convention joins in singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," standing.

Prayer by post chaplain, Dr. L. G. Johnson.

Address of welcome on behalf of the state by Governor John M. Slaton.

Address of welcome in behalf of the city by Mayor J. G. Woodward.

Address on behalf of Post B, to be supplied.

Address on behalf of the United Commercial Travelers, to be supplied.

Address on behalf of the ladies, W. O. Stamps.

Response to address of welcome by state president, J. M. Giddens.

Business session.

Appointment of committees on rules and credentials.

Recess.

2 p. m., business session.

12:30 p. m., reception to ladies in the parlors of the Ansley hotel.

Thursday evening, theater party at the Forsyth.

FRIDAY, APRIL 9.

9 to 10 a. m., memorial service conducted by Rev. S. R. Belk, state chaplain.

10 a. m., business session.

10:30 a. m., automobile ride for ladies.

The business session Friday will close with the delegates singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and it will be dismissed with the benediction by Rev. S. R. Belk, state chaplain, following which will be an automobile ride for the delegates to federal prison and Ford automobile plant.

8:30 p. m., informal dance at Ansley hotel.

THEMELIS DISTRIBUTING HANDSOME DISPLAY CARDS

Themelis Bros. company, makers of Themelis cigarettes, are distributing to the retail and jobbers a handsome display card, setting forth the merits of Themelis cigarettes. The card is of a high art design, and the harmony of its colors is really a remarkable achievement. The design shows the sphinx with a rose-tipped cigarette in its mouth.

MARCH BEAT FEBRUARY AT LAMAR & RANKIN'S

"March business up to the present time shows a good improvement over the months of February," said Lynn Fort, of Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. "In fact, our February business was better than our January business, and it looks now like business is on the steady uptrend."

Sams Grows Enthusiastic Over Serv-us Line Goods

J. R. Sams and an Armful of Serv-Us Products.

Says They Meet With Big Favor From the People in His Territory

J. R. Sams, otherwise known as Jake Sams, traveler for Kelley Bros. Co., with headquarters at Jackson, Ga., is an enthusiastic booster of the Serv-Us line of pure food products handled by his company. This line includes a wide variety of articles, not only for food, but for household use, such as spices, castor oil, pepper, salad dressing, milk and the like. Only recently cigars have been added to the Serv-Us line. The company was exhibiting last week the first samples of the new Serv-Us cigars, which are a splendid five-cent smoke.

"Our company has been handling the Serv-Us line now for about a year," said Mr. Sams, "I find their products growing in popularity all the time. They are the kind of goods that bring repeat orders and this is the real test of the lasting value of any commodity put upon the market. The people in my territory say, 'Give us the Serv-Us Line.'"

DEERE CO. INTRODUCES NEW FARM IMPLEMENT

The John Deere Plow company are now introducing to the trade the Culti-Packer, a new agricultural implement manufactured by the Dunham company of Berea, O. The Deere company are exclusive agents for the new machine.

The Culti-packer is a new device for pulverizing clods and putting rough soil into smooth condition. It has double gang rolls and what soil the first roll does not pulverize, the second roll is sure to reach and crush. The Deere company reports that the farmers in this territory are very much interested in the new implement. A large number of booklets explaining the use of the new machine is now being mailed out by the company.

WILLIAMSON PRAISES NEW PATTERN VOILES

C. J. Williamson, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, last week was opening up some new voiles which had just reached his firm. They were beauties, indeed, and it was no wonder that he smiled in gratification as he examined them.

"Cluster pattern voiles are proving one of the hits of the season in the dry goods line," said Mr. Williamson. "Not only are the cluster patterns popular, but the black and white checks are also in high favor. The selling season for voiles is just now on and promises to prove a big one."

HIGH T. P. A. OFFICIAL WAS HERE ON VISIT

C. F. Tomlinson, Chairman of Nat. Membership Committee Enthusiastic

C. F. Tomlinson, of High Point, N. C., national director of the Travelers' Protective association and chairman of the national membership committee, was in Atlanta a few hours last week on a personal business trip. While he was here he was met by R. A. Broyles and other prominent T. P. A.'s. Mr. Tomlinson stated that the condition of the organization throughout the country was very flattering indeed, that, in fact, it was in the very best condition it had ever been, both in finances and membership. He declared that the prospects were bright for a big convention in Omaha in June, when the national association holds its annual meeting. It is current comment in Travelers' Protective association circles that Mr. Tomlinson will be the next national president of the order.

W. C. BARNWELL NOTES RETURN OF PROSPERITY

"The return of prosperity seems to be making good," said W. C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone company. "During the past week we have had a good business, and a fine house trade was especially noticeable, which we attribute in a measure to the visitors who were here for fashion week. Not only has our house trade been good, but orde s from the road men have also held up well."

EDWARDS TO MAKE ROAD TRIPS ON MONDAYS

Allen Edwards of the out-of-town shipping department of Pain & Stamps, will on next Monday make the road trip that has usually been made by W. O. Stamps. Hereafter Mr. Stamps will devote all his attention to his duties at the office, and Mr. Edwards will regularly make the Monday trip.

W. D. HART NOW HEADS ATLANTA COUNCIL, U. C. T.

Other Officers Chosen--Council Looks Forward to Memorial Service

Atlanta Council No. 18, United Commercial Travelers, held its annual election and installation of officers on Saturday evening, March 13. The following were the new officers chosen: W. D. Hart, senior counsellor; H. D. Shackelford, junior counsellor; U. L. Cox, past counsellor; H. M. Ashe, secretary and treasurer; J. P. Armstrong, conductor; A. O. Patterson, page; F. C. Hudnall, sentinel. The executive committee is composed of C. K. Ayer, J. A. Farnsworth, W. J. Elliott and A. L. Brooke. U. L. Cox and W. A. Webb were named delegates to the grand council meeting at Gainesville, with W. Montgomery and R. N. Pickett, Jr., alternatives.

Under the administration of Past Counsellor U. L. Cox during the past year, Atlanta Council No. 18 showed growth both in membership and prestige, and it is predicted that under the direction of W. D. Hart, the present senior counselor, the council will go forward with its present work and attain still greater achievements. All the council is looking forward with a great deal of interest to the meeting of the grand council at Gainesville. It being nearby Atlanta, it is thought that a great many U. C. T.'s who are not delegates will be on hand to swell the attendance and make the meeting one of the biggest successes in the history of this grand jurisdiction.

Members of Council 18 as well as all the U. C. T.'s in Atlanta are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the annual memorial service which will be held jointly by Council 18 and Council 505, in the council chamber on Sunday night, April 4. An appropriate program of music and speaking has been arranged and it will be of interest and benefit to every member of the organization to be present.

GA. PRODUCTS COMPANY OPENS NEW SEED STORE

Will Handle Georgia Grown Seed as Far as Is Possible

The Georgia Products company, recently organized for the purpose of handling exclusively Georgia-grown food products, announce the opening of a seed store next to their present retail store on South Forsyth street. R. O. Cochran, head of the company, states that the new store will handle as nearly as possible Georgia-grown seed, though, of course, in the case of a seed store it will be impossible to confine it strictly to Georgia products. "We are having increasing business," said Mr. Cochran. "Our Georgia-made sorghum has had a very fine demand within the past week. One gentleman was in our store the other day from New York and bought five gallons of Georgia syrup which he had shipped to him. Another man who is a resident of Kentucky was also here and bought a supply of our Georgia sorghum."

FIRING LINE AD BRINGS TRADE TO HIRSHBERG CO.

Ike Hirshberg of the Hirshberg company is a busy man these days. He is devoting all of his time and attention just now to getting ready the general school supply line for next fall.

"While I am thinking now about the fall trade," said Mr. Hirshberg, I nevertheless note that we are having a fine demand now for our spring stationery line. You can rate that our ad in the Firing Line advising merchants to keep their stock fresh for the spring trade has been having a very fine effect. In fact, so profitable has it been that we have decided to have this freshen-up-your stock ad run as it is for several weeks."

ANOTHER BIG MEETING OF GROCERS THURSDAY NIGHT

Atlanta's Grocerydom Will Hold Get-Together Meeting--Splendid Program

There will be another get together meeting of Atlanta's grocerydom on next Thursday at the Chamber of Commerce building, held under the auspices of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association. There will be refreshments, music, speeches and social pleasures and business combined. The addresses will be by J. K. Orr, president of the J. K. Orr Shoe company; A. K. Franklin, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., and J. C. Harrison, city salesman.

"Our get together meetings of everybody interested in the grocery line have proven a success in the past," said J. P. Eve, secretary of the association, "and we certainly look forward to a big time on next Thursday night, when we are sure a pleasant surprise will await everyone who attends. All the wholesale grocers, commission men, city salesmen, retail grocers and their employes are invited. W. T. Aiken will be toastmaster. The meeting begins promptly at 7:30."

BURGLAR SPURNED MONEY; TOOK MORNING GLORY HAM

"Evidence continues to accumulate," said J. J. Simmons, of Simmons & Snead, "as to the popularity of Morning Glory Hams, bacon and lard. I know nothing that will illustrate the desirability of these products more than an incident which happened to R. E. Gardner, one of Atlanta's live retail grocers, located at 184 Davis street. Some days ago Mr. Gardner's store was broken into by a burglar. There was no money in the store which the burglar could have found if he had looked for it with any degree of care, but the money was unmolested. A case of Morning Glory hams, however, which I had sold Mr. Gardner only the day previous was taken. It shows that even a burglar preferred Morning Glory hams to real money. I say that is some tribute to the unusually delicious flavor of these famous hams."

FULTON COUNCIL 505 INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

Editor Firing Line:

U. C. T. Council 505 installed officers Saturday night for the ensuing year. There was much enthusiasm, as usual, and it was especially evidenced in the many good resolutions by each member to co-operate with the officers to make the coming year the best yet for this live council.

The meeting last night was the close of the fiscal year, and all our members were very free in congratulating each other on the fine showing the council made during the past twelve months, notwithstanding we have, as commercial travelers, had to exert greater efforts and more powerful energies to prosecute our profession than perhaps at any time during our existence. It is with great pride to all U. C. T.'s throughout America to note that our order has increased this past year over the previous year.

The officers were installed by Past Grand Counsellor T. B. Lewis in an able manner. The officers were as follows: W. H. Arnold, senior counsellor; S. E. McConnell, Jr., junior counsellor; W. G. Moore, past counsellor; R. L. Wallace, secretary and treasurer; W. R. Pierce, conductor; J. G. Moffett, page, and D. A. Horne, sentinel. Executive committeemen: E. W. E. Bunschoe and J. J. Baker; Grand Representatives W. G. Moore and W. H. Arnold; alternates, S. E. McConnell, Jr., and W. R. Pierce.

The center of attraction with the U. C. T.'s of Atlanta, and especially with Fulton council and its officers, is the beautiful memorial service to be held two weeks from today. Everything is in readiness and the committee are now making arrangements for seating a very large crowd. On next Sunday I will give the program for the memorial service as prepared by the joint committee from both councils.

Sincerely,
W. G. MOORE,

ALL STAR'S CUSTOMERS COME BACK FOR MORE

"As evidence of the lasting customers that All Star suspenders make," said W. O. Steele, of the All-Star Manufacturing company, "I have only to cite the case of a former resident of Atlanta who now lives in Cincinnati. Ever since I have been connected with the company, which is now more than four years, this former resident sents an order once a year for All Star suspenders. While he was here he became acquainted with the All Star products and though he has moved to another city, his liking for our product continues and he has never been weaned away from it or from patronizing the Atlanta market."

STANLEY PRAISED FOR QUICK DELIVERY SERVICE

Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. Gets Letter From Pleased Customers

J. M. Frix and P. G. Stanley, traveling salesmen of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., have been competing with each other some time to see who will be able to secure for their merchant friends the quickest possible delivery of goods, and a good race they are running. First one will receive some evidence of the excellency of the service which he renders, and then the other competitor will receive testimony of his good work. Last week, however, Mr. Stanley scored. The company received a letter from the Carmichael Drug company, of Monroe, Ga., complimenting the delivery service given the orders taken by Mr. Stanley. The letter from C. P. Carmichael, of the Carmichael Drug company, dated at Monroe, March 15, is as follows:

"We gave your Mr. Stanley order for goods yesterday at 10 o'clock a. m. As I am writing today at 9:15 a. m., the goods are in the house, less than twenty-four hours from the time the order was taken. We consider this worthy of congratulation and certainly think such service remarkable."

J. R. KELLY MAKES SALES BEYOND EXPECTATION

Is Now Taking Orders for a Second Car of "Grape Smash".

J. R. Kelly, representing the Tropical Fruit Juice company, is taking orders for his second carload of "Grape Smash." Mr. Kelly has been in Atlanta for several weeks working the trade with the city and out-of-town salesmen of the H. L. Singer company, who are exclusive distributors in the territory for "Grape Smash." When Mr. Kelly first arrived he set his mark at one carload of his product in this market, but so heavy has been the demand that he found a second car necessary.

ATWOOD DINES HOUSE FORCE OF M'CORD CO.

H. J. Atwood, traveler for McCord-Stewart company, with headquarters at Tate, Ga., was in at headquarters last Saturday, March 13, and entertained a delightful dinner at the Winecoff hotel to the members of the office and shipping forces of the McCord-Stewart company. Everybody reported having a big time and went away voting Mr. Atwood the prince of good fellows.

Thinking

"I've been thinking." This is the opening phrase of a score of interviews we have had in the last month from visiting merchants in our office.

Isn't it true, there's been more hard thinking in the last six months than in that many years?

"I've been thinking," usually continues the visitor, "that we made more money in the shoe business in the old days when we bought most of our shoes from some reliable house, kept our stock sized up weekly, and had our profits at the end of the season in money instead of on our shelves."

Many of them have been kind enough to say, "We are coming back home."

The merchant who is planning his fall campaign will make no mistake to consider the advantages to him of a connection with a nearby factory.

The best illustration we have is that over seventy per cent of our customers met their bills through this fall, just as if there was no war.

That's fair evidence that their business was in good shape. This may have been helped by the Red Seal system.

If you are thinking of any change in your shoe buying plans, we'd like to refer you to a few of our 5,000 satisfied customers.

ON THE FIRING LINE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

All the Firing Line circle extend to E. F. Malone, of the Capital City Tobacco company, sympathy in his bereavement at the death of his mother, Mrs. Alberta Malone, which occurred last Wednesday morning in Atlanta.

O. P. Bennett, of the Brower Candy company, last week opened up new territory in the state of North Carolina. Mr. Bennett regularly covers north Georgia for his firm, but he occasionally drops over into North Carolina, and on his recent visit had a most successful trip.

Nathan H. Saltzman, of the Hirshberg company, returned last week from a pleasant vacation trip to Norfolk, Va.

G. A. Cochran, the new city salesman of the H. L. Singer company force, continues to have an enlarging trade. Pretty soon Mr. Cochran will have to procure a race horse of the speed of Dan Patch or a very swift automobile in order to keep up with his trade, his customers call for him so often," said Donald McKle, of this firm.

S. T. Maushon, of Winder, Ga., one of the leading retail grocers of the state, was a visitor last week at the H. L. Singer company. He states that business in his section of the state is showing a marked and rapid improvement.

W. L. Hardin, city salesman for McCord-Stewart company, has been ill, but is now himself again and ready to go out on his usual sales rounds. It is stated at the office that one cause of Mr. Hardin's rapid recovery was the fact that his son, who is known as the "Farm Bell Oat Boy," had been feeding his parent with that product, thus restoring him to robust health and his normal activity.

W. E. Rumph, of Culloden, Ga., was a visitor at the All Steel Manufacturing company last week. Mr. Rumph was formerly traveling salesman for this company and occasionally comes back to make the firm a visit, where he is always a welcome guest. He is now representing the International Agricultural company.

A. C. Barnes, otherwise known as "Farmer" Barnes, North Carolina salesman of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, led the sales force last week. His sales were nearly double those of any other salesman. "Farmer" has been among the top liners now for the past three weeks.

E. C. Everett, traveling representative for C. H. S. cigars, returned last week from a successful trip through south Georgia. He states that business is rapidly improving in that section and that jobbers are all busy but not too busy to talk about and order C. H. S. cigars. He says all the farmers in that section are going in for diversified crops in earnest.

The following travelers of the M. C. Kiser company are to be mentioned for especially good sales during the past week: W. W. Benson, otherwise known as "Uncle Walt," who travels the W. & A. road; A. L. Dedll, who travels the Central and Southern railroads south of Atlanta, and J. K. Dixon and Tom Yon, Florida travelers for the company.

H. T. Bell, the genial manager of the Atlanta branch of the John Deere Plow company, is the father of a fine girl born last Monday at Dunaldsonville, Ga. Mr. Bell last week was receiving the congratulations at the office over the event. He has many friends in Georgia as well as in Mississippi and Texas where he was in business before coming to Atlanta.

J. Geda Addy, who travels the West Point road for the M. C. Kiser company, is enjoying specially good business these spring days.

Among the visitors and patrons at the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. during the past week were Dr. J. D. Middlebrooks, Powder Springs, Ga.; F. M. Rodgers, Villa Rica, Ga.; Dr. J. B. Weldon, Woolsey, Ga.; Dr. F. F. Hudson, Loganville, Ga.; L. C. Waldrop, Tallapoosa, Ga.; O. E. Upshaw, Loganville, Ga.; F. L. McMahan, Tallapoosa, Ga.; Dr. J. R. DeVore, Suwanee, Ga.; Dr. W. L. Orr, Riverdale, Ga.; T. J. Hewell, Dewy Rose, Ga.; Dr. B. F. Alkeh, Jenkinsburg, Ga.

J. C. Mason, president of the Dixie Paper company, was ill with grippe for two days last week at his home at Cuthbert, Ga. He hopes, however, to be back on his sales rounds again on Monday.

R. U. Ivey, of the Grand Lake Paper company, was at headquarters Saturday for the first time in four weeks. Mr. Ivey has just finished a successful trip through the state of South Carolina.

Among the travelers of the Dixie Paper company who may be mentioned for especially active trade during the past week were C. C. McCall, who covers middle Georgia, J. B. Smith, who travels western Georgia and eastern Alabama, and F. H. Glasgow, city salesman, who had quite a fine run of sales on paper bags.

J. T. Cook, city salesman for Kelley Bros. company, reports an active trade on all his company's goods, especially in their Serv-Us line of pure food products.

While week before last was described as "Ross' week" at the A. M. Robinson company, the past week is known at their office as "K" week. This is in view of the splendid business that has been sent in to the house by J. W. Kea, who travels Florida, and W. A. Kay, who travels Alabama, with headquarters at Birmingham.

BEAUTIFUL TWIN DAUGHTERS OF SALESMAN B. F SAMUEL

THEMELIS BROS. OPEN ELABORATE N. Y. OFFICE

An elaborately handsome office is now being opened at 233 Fifth avenue, New York, by Themelis Bros. company, of Athnta, makers of the famous Themelis cigarettes. George F. Themelis is now in the metropolis looking after the fitting out of the new store.

L. L. Barnes, special representative of the company, declares that the New York store will be fitted out in all the Oriental elegance possible. "It is the purpose of our company to have all its surroundings and everything connected with it in keeping with the high quality of goods which we manufacture," said Mr. Barnes.

PATTERSON SETTING PACE WITH C. H. S. IN NEW YORK

R. H. Patterson, exclusive representative in the United States for the C. H. S. cigars, is now in New York City and reports that reach Atlanta are to the effect that he is setting a lively pace with his sales of C. H. S. cigars in the metropolis. Mr. Patterson is known as the Human Dynamo of the tobacco world. L. L. Barnes, special representative of the company, states that all indications are that nothing can stop the rapid increase of C. H. S. cigars in New York—not even a 42-centimeter Krupp gun.

M. G. Lummus, of Cumming, Ga., was a visitor last week at the Brower Candy company. Mr. Lummus was formerly sheriff of Forsyth county and is one of the leading citizens of his community.

CULPEPPER, CHAMPION "THREE-DAY" SALESMAN

W. T. Culpepper, of Fain & Stamps, though comparatively new to the road, is proving a top line salesman. He spends three days of the week on the road and three i nthe office; nevertheless in the three days that he is out he is doing even better than some of the other salesmen who are on the road throughout the entire week. In fact, just now he is a close second to the leading salesman on the entire force.

BABY CART CUSTOMERS AT ROSENFELD CO.'S

"The season for the sale of baby carriages is now on," said A. W. Rosenfeld of the Rosenfeld company. "We are beginning to handle a great many baby carriages these days. They are being ordered out now by the retailers for the spring and summer when they are in greatest demand. The reed carriages and the wooden side collapsible carts seem to be the favorites for the present season."

INTEREST SHOWN IN SO. GROCERS' MEETING HERE

"As the time draws nigh, considerable interest is being manifested in the annual convention of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association which will be held in Atlanta May 12 to 14," said E. L. Adams, a member of the association. "The attendance will be large and the proceedings will be a great benefit to every one who is interested in the wholesale grocery line. We expect a big time and a big crowd for the meeting.

NEW DELIVERY WAGON AND AUTO FOR STONE'S CAKES

In Line With Policy of Getting Cakes Fresh to Dealers

That their cakes may get to the dealers and through the dealers to the consumers in the shortest possible time after they leave the baking ovens, the F. O. Stone Baking company has added to its delivery service another automobile truck and another wagon. This addition is necessitated by the ever-growing popularity of Stone's cakes and by the desire of the company to make its delivery facilities as nearly perfect as possible. The company's delivery wagons leave in the morning with two hours' supply of cakes. When these have been exhausted, the automobile trucks are sent from the bakery with cakes just out of the oven to meet the wagons. The fresh cakes are transferred from the autos to the wagons and get out quickly to the retail stores, whence they may be had by the consumer.

"The aim toward which we are striving," said F. O. Stone, president of the company, "is that consumers shall be able to get today the cakes that are baked today. It is to further this aim that we have added an additional wagon and an additional auto to our service."

BETTER FEELING EXISTS OVER FLOUR SITUATION

The McCord-Stewart company reports that there is a better feeling over the flour situation since the price of wheat has returned to its old level following the sharp drop in price due to the news of the action of the allies' fleet against the Dardanelles. This company states that opinion seems to be crystallizing that until the next harvest at least purchasers of wheat will take no very great risk of sustaining unusual loss on account of another decline in the price of wheat. On account of this steady tone of the wheat market now there is a great deal of flour being bought and sold at present.

SULLIVAN SELLS BIG SHOE BILL AT KISER'S

C. J. Sullivan, the always popular secretary of the M. C. Kiser company, last week sold a $3,500 bill of shoes to a Florida merchant for the latter's three stores. Mr. Sullivan is being congratulated around headquarters for the handsome order which made up a part of his week's work, especially in view of the fact that the merchant was a new customer for the firm.

COLLINGSWORTH REPORTS GOOD MARCH TRADE

"We have had the best business since the first of March that we have had since the beginning of the war," said H. S. Collingsworth, of Gramling-Spalding company. "We are having an active trade on immediate shipments of spring and summer shoes. While business has not yet returned to normal, still we have had a good March and expect to have a better April."

J. S. DAVIS CO. ENTER PRODUCE BUSINESS

Will Handle Full Line of Fruits, Vegetables, Poultry, Eggs, Etc.

J. S. Davis & Co., wholesale commission merchants at 61 East Alabama street, announce that they have entered the produce business and will handle a full line of fruits, vegetables, poultry, eggs, butter, and the like. The company will sell to merchants on a weekly basis on a close margin of profit and will co-operate with dealers in selling their chickens, eggs and other like produce. The company is composed of progressive business men and a large success in their new undertaking will undoubtedly be theirs.

Our Hats Are Off to These Retailers

We haven't been so heartened and helped in a long time.

We hand you our felicitations, Brethren of the Retail Merchants' Association.

We're much pleased with what you've been saying on certain subjects. We like the sound of it.

You've been telling them in great shape, too.

You have been laying it off to the fellows who think they can come in here, to Atlanta, and do some noisy merchandising stunts and then pack the profits in their bag and get away with it.

Incidentally you lay splendid stress on the value of the permanent HOME MERCHANT to the community.

You're right.

You say he's the man that pays wages to ATLANTA people. He contributes to ATLANTA enterprises. He pays ATLANTA taxes. He helps ATLANTA grow.

You're entirely logical, gentlemen.

We quote from you (Friday's Journal) just as an instance of how fair and sound your reasoning is:

"The Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars paid Atlanta Newspapers every year for Advertising by the members of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association is NECESSARY to furnish your daily news.

"ATLANTA Merchants, during the past ten years, have paid ATLANTA Newspapers over $3,000,000.

"Atlanta Merchants are working every day for YOU and ATLANTA.

"ATLANTA Merchants should have your Support."

We like this sort of talk. We're just as glad as we can be to hear you come out in the public prints with it. It ought to do the people good---it WILL.

Maybe there's another reason we like your argument.

IT IS PRECISELY THE ARGUMENT WE'VE BEEN PUTTING UP TO YOU ALL THE TIME.

You are asking the cooperation of the Consumer. We are asking YOUR cooperation.

We help the town. We pay wages to our factory hands and they spend these wages with YOU. We pay taxes. We contribute to ATLANTA enterprises. We're strong for the town.

We think ATLANTA RETAIL MERCHANTS should handle our goods. We ask of YOU just what you are asking of the people.

Nothing but reasonable---eh?

We put it up to you. If you are in earnest, now's a fine time to prove it to the people while you've got their ear on this other matter.

You are educating the people. TEACH BY EXAMPLE!

Atlanta Boy, Now In France, Hasn't Glimpsed the War

Paul Rockwell and His Brother, Serving in the French Army, Have Known Only Barracks Life and Drills, But no Fighting.

FOLLOWING is the first of several articles written at Camp de Mailly for The Journal's Sunday magazine by Paul Rockwell, formerly an Atlanta newspaper man, who, with his brother, is serving in the French army.

By Paul Rockwell

(Copyright, 1915.)

MY brother and I sailed August 7 from New York on the mail steamer St. Paul. We thought we were going to see the war. At present writing we are two months older, and much wiser about war, but of what most people mean when they say war we have yet to get our first glimpse.

Our first destination had been Southampton, but we changed our plans and decided to stop a few days in London.

News was to be had there, but accounts of the war were very brief and bare of detail. So remote did London seem from the actual fighting that, after a week or so, we decided to cross over to France to see if we couldn't get nearer the events.

We took a channel boat to Folkstone, enjoying a mild crossing, and landed at Bologne. Then followed a memorable journey, where we began to see another phase of the war—its results. At every station women and children, and sometimes whole families, crowded into the compartments. For the most part the picture was of a fine farming country, with crops even now ripe for harvest, but bare of harvesters, ruining for want of men to gather them. Occasionally we would see a woman gleaning, patient, stolid, understanding nothing of war save its effect on her and hers. There would be children, too, and a few old men. We were soon to see what had become of the sons, husbands and fathers that usually worked these fields, for we were drawing close to Amiens, near which city heavy fighting was in progress.

Only one thing we saw, however, remains with me. In a little cafe was a group of Belgian refugees, one of whom sat with his head bowed, sobbing audibly. He had seen his wife and children shot down before his eyes, and now he alone was left of his family, and of his regiment.

By the next noon we were formally enrolled in the French army and had received our first day's wages, 1 franc. A group of volunteers was leaving for Rouen to join an American company.

Even Parisian Apaches Were Included in The American Corps

At Rouen, where we were scheduled to drill for a month, we found a mixed gathering of volunteers from several countries. The so-called American corps had filled up with all recruits who offered, since not enough Americans volunteered. Some of the volunteers were Parisian Apaches, notoriously the lowest types of thugs and gunmen. These and a few others, adventurers of various nationalities, were sent back to Paris, after a two weeks' trial, as unfit for service.

The drilling and routine of barrack life seemed hard and tedious enough then, but I look back on those days at Rouen as a period of leisure and comfort. Six hours a day was spent in drill, three hours was absolutely free, and the rest of the time was filled up with odd chores and loafing around the barracks, which was an old school building, and very comfortable. From a physical point of view, we were well cared for. The early hours, retiring at 8 or 9 and rising at 5, were very irksome at first to one who had been accustomed to keeping what hours he chose, but they proved a boon. The time soon came when I could fall asleep at 8 o'clock, or, for that matter, the first minute I got the chance, as easily and unconcernedly as an animal that is fed and warm. At 5 I would wake, completely renewed in body, ready for the exhausting routine of another day.

In those early army days, however, I was unbroken to real camp life, and was still fresh enough when our three hours of freedom came to roam about the picturesque and interesting streets of Rouen, and long for days, instead of hours, for exploration and study. We were getting quite accustomed to our duties, and beginning to feel at home in Rouen, when word came that the Germans were near. Immediately we were packed into horse cars, thirty-six men to a car, and sent south, out of the way of danger, France judging that we would be more useful to her after we had learned more of the science of warfare than at the present. After fifty-eight hours of such discomfort we welcomed our quarters in Toulouse almost as eagerly as a devout Mohammedan might welcome Paradise.

Now our real training began, making all our previous drill seem like a child's game, something akin to the military maneuvers at my brother's school. To rise at 5 o'clock was luxury now, since oftener our day's work began at 4, and continue for twelve or fourteen hours. By work I mean constant drill in the open, with interruptions only for meals, running over hills and valleys, charging, retreating, going through all the forms of battle. Towards the latter part of the time we drilled in full equipment, including sixty-pound packs on our backs. Judge whether the plain, wholesome food and hard, narrow cots

We Must Become Terpsichorean Esperantists Says PAVLOWA

A "Pedal Babel" Has Resulted from Our Present Confusion of Steps, Says Famous Russian Dancer.

By Anna Pavlowa

MODERN American dancing is like the language of the original Americans—it has a host of dialects and ramifications. This, because society dancing is so new, relatively, and because so many new figures have been introduced into it by professionals. Those of us who wish to standardize must become Terpsichorean Esperantists, as it were. We must set up a system in dancing, or else the art will suffer. As it is, a girl and a man dancing together for the first time really do not know where or how to begin, or what step to do next. The girl may believe she is starting a figure in the one-step; the man may have a different evolution in mind. The result is a sort of pedal Babel, if such a term may be permitted. Without any standard to go by a couple start to do a tango together. They are much like two persons beginning a piano duet in different keys.

I am rather pleased, however, that modern society dancing is in such a chaotic state, for while standardizing we are working constructively to eliminate the evils from one of the most artistic, pleasurable, and healthful pastimes of the decade.

Many persons have gained their ideas of what modern society dancing is from exhibitions by professionals calling themselves "society dancers," and performing on the stage. The idea seems to be prevalent that to dance the tango properly a couple must gallop and cavort around in a large circle, like colts in a half-acre lot, and that as the right and proper finale to a tango, the girl must clasp her hands around the man's neck, and be swung in a wide and dizzy circle, with much display of limbs and lingerie. Alas! that is not modern American society dancing; it's a direct imitation of the Apache dancing in the lowest quarters of Paris.

Doggeral Names Seven Cardinal Sins

The attempt to introduce stage dancing into a ballroom is the first of the seven cardinal sins. The others are summed up by one of my intimate American friends as:

"Shrugging, hugging—
"ragging, sagging,
"romping, stomping."

The doggeral is decidedly inelegant but thoroughly expressive. During my forthcoming tour I am going to do my very best to help eliminate the objectionable features now existing in society dances.

There are six moods revealed by dancing. First, joy and unconfined gaiety; second, langourous dancing of luxurious contentment; third, formal dances of courtly grace and dignity; fourth, amorous passions; fifth, the story-telling dances of pantomimes; the sixth, dances which aim to accomplish some acrobatic or gymnastic feature.

What Americans call "ragtime" dances are in the first class. They exhibit joy and unconfined gaiety. The old-time waltz is typical of the second class. Such dances are always popular in southern countries. The minuet, cotillion and gavotte are in the third classification. They are courtly and graceful, hence good form. In the fourth class is the 'Apache' dance. The 'Pas de Trois' is the fifth class and the 'Maxixe' is of the sixth."

All modern dances have skipping steps of happiness. One must, therefore, dance with the head and the heart as well as the feet. The Russian ballet school in which I was trained has made a world-wide sensation because its pupils are taught to grasp the spirit of a musical composition and translate that spirit into rhythmic motion of feet and body. The feeling of the artist is cultivated beyond the mere technique and pantomime of the dance.

Square Dances Are From the Old Gavotte

During my last tour in America, I introduced the "Gavotte Pavlowa" of which I am very proud for it was received everywhere in a most gratifying manner.

I hope that my new ball room dances on which I have been working all summer will prove as acceptable to the American public during my coming tour. If I may be permitted to say so, without being accused of egotism and vanity, I believe the public who saw my gavotte will agree with me that it was performed with a certain willowy grace quite in contrast to the tense and fiery steps of the so-called Spanish dances. And this was so, largely because of the nature of the dance and not because of any special ability I showed in interpreting the gavotte.

The present-day gavotte—mine included—differs greatly from the original dance. Kissing and merry-making were no small part of the first peasant gavotte as danced by that class of French people who lived in the hills of Dauphin and who were called "Gavottes." Instead of shuffling their feet, these Gavottes made their dances distinctive by raising their feet clear from the ground. Courtiers and noble ladies adopted the dance of the Gavottes in the sixteenth century and made it quite as formal as the minuette. From these dances originated what we today call the "square dance."

In the present-day ballroom dances such as the Maxixe and the one-step there are many objectionable features. My hope is that I shall be able to show the people the joy of dancing without these objectionable features. For dancing is a joy and a health-giver, provided it is properly done.

Mrs. Godbee, Aged And Broken, Tries To Beautify Prison

She Seems 20 Years Older. 17 White and 144 Negro Women at State Farm. Mrs. Noble, Most Aged, Is 75

By Rhea Hayne

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 20.—On the slope of a hill near Milledgeville a woman bends over a strip of earth where brown bulbs, buried through the winter, are breaking their prison and reaching out to the spring sunshine. Occasionally she straightens up and looks over the hillsides, where the gray of the trees is turning into green. But stone walls cut off her view of the world outside. It is all winter for Mrs. Edna Godbee, dreary, with never a spring in its calendar.

She is one of the four white women shut within the walls of the state prison for life. She has aged twenty years in the twelve months since her conviction in Jenkins county, and appears nearer sixty than her actual forty-five years. All Georgia remembers Mrs. Godbee, who appeared suddenly one day in the postoffice at Millen and shot down her former husband, Judge Godbee, and the wife he had just wedded. To see this broken woman, and to remember her as she was before the tragedy, one would say that already she has expiated her crime.

Mrs. Godbee, most noted of Georgia woman convicts, is the one really cultured woman of the prison, and she has suffered in proportion to her fall. All winter she has borne her sorrow in silence, impassive, reticent, seeing only the old friends who have called upon her, listening with a ray of hope to their promise that some day she shall receive a pardon. But now that spring has come Mrs. Godbee has found a new interest even in prison life. She is trying to beautify the grounds with shrubs and flowers, and under her direction the prison is growing less forbidding.

There are seventeen white women in the prison now, and 144 negro women. They are housed in the woman's building, a mile from the main prison, and from its windows the prisoners look out upon the men's penitentiary, upon the sanitarium for the insane—three miles away, the state reformatory, and the town of Milledgeville in the distance.

Mrs. Noble, 75 Years Old, Long Ago Lost All Hope in Life

Mrs. Elizabeth Noble, now 75 years old, is the veteran among them. No prisoner of the Middle Ages, cast into a dungeon to see the sky no more, ever looked with more hopeless eyes upon the future. It was seventeen years ago that she entered the gates and never since has she stirred beyond them. She is ignorant, unlettered, indifferent to the world outside. She has grown calloused, cynical. She has heard so many words of sympathy, so many vague promises to help, that they have become but the echo of others that have gone before.

"That's what they all say," she mutters, without emotion when a word of hope is expressed by some visitor. She came to the prison because years ago she conspired with a negro to murder her husband, and the plot was carried out. Her accomplice is also serving a life term, and when he is worn out on the road gang will be sent to the men's prison, in sight of the building which houses his partner in the crime. Mrs. Noble appears to have forgotten her sin. She has never mentioned it since she came to Milledgeville, and her stolid face bears no record of a crime.

Mrs. Jennie Bennett, now fifty years old, came to the prison eleven years ago to remain there for life. She was convicted of murdering her child, though she still protests that the baby was smothered by accident.

The fourth of the "woman lifers" is the noted Mrs. Sylvia Hawkins, of Hall county, whose crime and conviction filled many newspaper columns two years ago. She was convicted of conspiring with two mountain boys, Bart and Jim Cantrell, to murder her husband. They went to the gallows, but Georgia will not hang a woman, and Mrs. Hawkins went to a living death behind the bars. She is the youngest and fairest of all the women here, having just reached twenty-five years. She protests that she is innocent, that she loved her husband dearly, and that the Cantrell boys richly deserved their fate.

Among the thirty-four negro women here for life there is nothing out of the commonplace. All of them are here for murder except one—Lula Everett, from Decatur county, charged with mayhem. She threw potash into the face of a rival and blinded her, and has been paying the penalty since 1905.

None of the negro women killed other than negroes. The first of the life-terners is Lizzie Maxwell. She was sent up from Savannah sixteen years ago, when she was only twenty-one years old, because she quarreled with a girl roommate about a common mattress and killed her.

Annie Wright, sent up from Sumter county in 1905, is the oldest negro woman prisoner, being sixty-five and still hale and hearty. Jealousy is given as the cause of her downfall. She deliberately shot her husband, using an old-fashioned gun.

Annie Rabb, of Emanuel county, is doing life-time work because, it is

DAWSON, Ga.—One of the biggest sales of cotton ever made by a negro farmer in Georgia, has just been concluded by Bartow P. Powell, of Baker county, whose 1914 cotton crop was stored in an Albany warehouse. Powell had sold none of his cotton prior to turning loose the entire lot.

When he at last decided to sell he had 500 bales on hand. He refused to let any of it go when the market was very low, and when at last he decided to sell he received an average price of 8 cents for the lot. The cotton is now being compressed, and will be exported. It puts approximately $20,000 to Powell's credit in the banks where he does business. He is one of the most successful farmers in this section.

Sleepy Gator A Home Product

DONALSONVILLE, Ga.—Last week there was on exhibition on Second street here a live home grown alligator. It is presumed that he was home grown as he was captured on the Brunson farm, south of town, where it is reported there are quite a number. The one captured by Mr. Brunson was not a very large one, being only four feet and eight inches long, but with ample capacity for enjoying several young pigs at a meal. It attracted quite a crowd of spectators but not having completed its hibernating nap it was apparently unappreciative of the attention given it, and seemed to sleep as well in the sun on the street as it would have on a log in the bay.

Chewing Gum In Little Girl's Nose

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Sallie Henderson, a little three-year-old girl of Honea Path, was brought to the city yesterday by her mother to have a growth removed from her nose. The child's nose had been affected since last August, and despite treatment given by physicians in Honea Path, the member failed to get any better. It seems that the nostril was stopped up and nothing could be done.

The physician to whom the child was carried had but slight difficulty in curing the nose in a few minutes. With the proper instruments he removed a big wad of chewing gum which had become lodged in the nostril and had stayed there since last August.

OTIS STEWART is authority for the following:

"Some years ago, I caught a turtle. I cut off its head so I could get it ready for table use, but I left the turtle's head lying on the ground. Some three days later I heard a chicken cry out, and upon investigation I found that the turtle head was trying to swallow the chicken's leg."—Crawfordville (Ga.) Democrat.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF PIONEER REAL ESTATE FIRM

Forrest and George Adair Will Celebrate Organization of the Firm Founded in 1865 by Colonel Geo. W. Adair.

IN celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the firm, Forrest and George Adair will on next Tuesday evening give a banquet at the Druid Hills club to the real estate fraternity of Atlanta.

Although only real estate men will be invited, it is expected that over 200 guests will be present on this occasion.

The event has deep significance, for Colonel George W. Adair, who founded the firm on March 23, 1865, at the close of the civil war, was the first man in the United States who opened an agency and sold property for a commission. This fact was given official cognizance when shortly before his death the Chicago Real Estate Board acknowledged it when Colonel Adair was invited to be its guest at a banquet.

Colonel Adair opened his office at No. 5 Peachtree street, now the site of the Peters building, on his return from Mississippi where he had been serving under Forrest. Like most southerners, who served in the war, he found himself without resources at its conclusion, and he turned to real estate as offering an opening for a man without much capital.

He opened both a sales and renting business and remained at 5 Peachtree street until the first Kimball house fire in 1883, which necessitated his moving to the Centennial building, where the Muse and Elsenan stores now are. After the fire he moved back to the Kimball house block, opening an office on Wall street, and the firm stayed there until five years after the death of its founder, when it moved to its present location. Except for fire, the firm has never moved but twice.

Although the conclusion of the war might be supposed to be a hazardous time to engage in the real estate business, Colonel Adair foresaw the rapid rebuilding of the city. At that time property owners were forced to sell part of their holdings in order to rebuild their houses or stores which Sherman had destroyed.

Business was good until 1873, when the panic came and the lean years followed. In those days the business was much simpler in many respects than now. Examinations of titles were practically unknown. Everybody knew his neighbor's property, and lawyers were hardly ever called in to assist in a trade except where ante-nuptial contracts or trust estates were involved.

Not long after he opened his real estate office, Colonel Adair and Colonel Richard Peters built the first street car system. Horse and mule cars were operated on Peachtree, Whitehall, Marietta and Decatur streets and Capitol avenue, and there was also the Taylor Hill line.

Taylor Hill was then the exclusive residence section, where all the social events of the sixties and early seventies were held. Taylor Hill embraced the territory behind the Terminal station, most of which was in the first ward.

Marietta and Decatur streets were also fine residence streets, some of the most prominent families living there. The first north side migration was started along in the seventies, when the Clarke and Grant families moved to Peachtree.

The panic of 1873 was ended when the old East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia right of way was bought. This turned loose about $1,000,000 in Atlanta, and business picked up. There was another panic in 1883 and still another in 1891. Booms and depressions came and went in those days as they did later.

In those early days there was no such thing as a front foot value. Property was sold by the acre or the lot. It occurred to a newspaper reporter to figure the price per front foot brought by a piece of central property at one of the Adair sales. It was so surprising, this price, that people took to the system as a novelty, and it got to be the thing to speak of front foot values. It was considered quite up-to-date and metropolitan.

Colonel Adair was pre-eminently a salesman and auctioneer, and his sales on the outskirts, which in the old days didn't extend further out than Baker or Butler streets were events. Customers were given free rides to the sales in furniture vans filled with chairs, a la campmeeting, and the plats advertised the announcement that Daddy Sheehan would be on hand.

Daddy Sheehan operated a two-wheel cart with a barrel of beer between the wheels, and between sales there was a round of refreshments. Following the war for several years, Atlanta was a wide open town. Gambling houses were in every block, and there were saloons with barmaids. There was a wild west pioneer atmosphere.

If you wanted to see a man on business in those days you called at his favorite gambling house or saloon, rather than at his club or his soda fount as at the present time.

Colonel Adair collected invaluable plats which to this day are part of the records of abstract lawyers. He was the first man to systematize the handling of real estate. He was a hard worker, never taking a vacation.

Following his death in 1899, the business was conducted by his sons, Forrest and George Adair, Forrest Adair himself having been in the office 36 years. His three sons, Frank, Forrest, Jr., and Robin, are now in the office, and Perry Adair, son of George Adair, will be taken into the business later on. The firm will be perpetuated.

Stress has been put on the early operation of the firm because of its historic interest. Fifty years is a long life for any firm; and in real estate, where so many changes and readjustments follow every boom and depression, it is even more remarkable.

Belled Buzzard At Ohoopee

LYONS, Ga.—R. B. Cowart, of Ohoopee, writes the Progress that a belled buzzard was recently found in his field.

Mr. Cowart says the bell would not ring when the bird was flying on the level. When the bird flops its wings or walks on the ground the bell rings.

Mr. Cowart is anxious to know where the bird came from and should anyone who reads this know anything about it he will please write Mr. Cowart. He requests other newspapers to please copy.

Atlanta Boy In France Hasn't Glimpsed War

were not more grateful to us than the luxuries we thought necessary to our well-being in the past. I had now seen a little of the results of war, and I knew almost all about the preparations. But I was getting anxious to see something of the thing itself.

I was not alone in this desire. Twice orders had been read out at roll-call that would take us to the front, and twice we had been disappointed. We were like men in an impending crisis, eager to be in the midst of it and have it over. My comrades are no more bloodthirsty and martial, as individuals, than your next door neighbor, and I have never been able to kill anything with pleasure, except bull frogs with an air-rifle in my early youth; but for the time war is our profession, and we are as keen to follow it as any other man who has chosen his profession and not had it forced upon him.

Whether we would have chosen this profession if we had known two months ago what we know now is beside the question. So far, it has all been gain for me. The exercise and regular life has built me up physically, and the experience has enriched me mentally beyond all my hopes. I do not feel any less human or have any less love for my fellow-men than I had before I enlisted nevertheless the fact remains that when an order was read out on Tuesday, September 29, that we would entrain for a point near the front at 1 o'clock the following afternoon I was lifted up on a mighty wave of enthusiasm, which thrilled us all, the oldest legionaire as well as the youngest recruit.

Everyone was as gay and excited as if it was some long anticipated "lark" we were starting upon, instead of the very serious business of fighting. Personally, I felt so happy at the prospect of getting away from Caserne Perignon that after we were dismissed for the afternoon I adjourned to the washroom and shaved off a week's accumulation of beard, something I had lacked energy to do before.

We were awakened at 5 the next morning, and after the inevitable but always welcome cup of black coffee went to the company storeroom for the remainder of our equipment. Each man was given 120 rounds of ammunition, to be carried in the cartridge pouches; one-sixth of a tent, with a two-piece tent-pole and stakes; a package of bandages, and leather strap for use if wounded, and rations for the trip—a loaf of bread, tin of beef, and small bit of cheese. This was to piece out our regular equipment, with which we had been drilling for the past three weeks, packed on our backs in a capacious knapsack.

We had also been given, five days previous, emergency provisions for three days, consisting of a tin of beef, a small package of soup tablets, six hard biscuit and a small bag of coffee and sugar. This is to be eaten only during an actual campaign, and if a man shows up at drill without his rations he not only goes hungry, but gets a jail sentence as well. And a jail sentence in the legion is no light thing; the prisoner spends six hours daily, for the duration of the sentence, walking up and down in a narrow space, with full pack and equipment strapped to his back. The monotony is maddening. More than one man has been driven insane or had his spirit completely broken by the punishment.

After getting the balance of our equipment, we repacked our knapsacks. This sack is a thin frame of wood about two feet square and eight inches thick, covered with canvas, and having an ingenious arrangement of straps for holding articles on top and to the sides. It is strapped over the shoulders and serves to protect the back and head from bullets, bursting shells, and shrapnel. An unbelievable amount of stuff can be packed in a knapsack and under the straps. As a sample of the variety of equipment a French soldier is provided with, I will give an inventory of the contents of my own pack: Inside the sack are two shirts, two suits of underwear, a thick woolen abdominal band, sleeping toque, a police or fatigue cap of felt, handkerchiefs and sox, a gun brush, a shoe brush, several small books and a quantity of stationery, shaving and other toilet articles, and a number of small odds and ends. On top and sides I carry my blue jacket, blanket, gammail-soup-tin and my portion of tent and stakes. I also wear a belt which holds a bayonet and three cartridge pouches, all filled; a canteen containing one litre of water; a musette, or haversack, which has my food for the train and any articles that will not go in the knapsack, and my gun—all told, about seventy-five pounds in weight.

At 11 o'clock, all the packs being filled and adjusted, the four companies formed rank in the Caserne yard. The thousand men were an inspiring sight. The French uniform may not be the most practical, but it undoubtedly makes a fine showing. The colors themselves make war seem more like the brave and careless affairs of historical romances than do the soberer jackets of other armies. Our caps are red, but we ordinarily wear blue campaign covers to protect them; the blue-gray coats reach below the knees and are buttoned to the waist with the lower ends fastened back, as in pictures of Napoleon; the legs, beginning bravely in red trousers, end in short black leggins and heavy cow-hide shoes.

Here and there the lines were broken by black-haired maidens, who ran out with flowers for their soldier friends and kept step with them for a few paces to say farewell. The sun was hot, and the way to the station long, and it takes more than cheers and flowers to make a soldier forget his seventy-five-pound load. By the time the station was in sight we were sufficiently fatigued to welcome any resting place, even a hard bench placed lengthwise in a freight car.

At some of the stations we were met by Red Cross girls with hot coffee, ripe peaches, and postals for us to send home.

We had not been told our destination, but when we awoke at 5 o'clock Friday morning to find that the train had stopped we knew that we had arrived. We crowded to the car door and looked out. A few newly made graves in an open field, and, in the distance, a number of tents and new concrete buildings, this was all we saw. We soon learned that the tents and buildings composed the Camp de Mailly, where we were to remain till further orders, and as for the graves—the Germans had attacked here only a few days before, and had been defeated. Our jorney was ended, and if we were not actually on the firing line, we were at least near enough to smell the powder, being only twenty miles south of Chalons, between the Aube and the Marne.

Chick Is Born With Four Feet

MR. W. M. BROWDER, who farms with Mr. G. H. Davis, brought us a little chick Thursday that had four feet, each of which was perfectly formed and had four toes. Of course, only one pair are used in walking. The second pair are too far back for that purpose and are connected to a single leg. The chick is healthy and Mr. Browder will try and raise it.—Lake City News.

Grandson of President Sends $5 to Berry School

Cane at Lincolnton Half Century Old. 8,000 Dozens of Eggs Are Shipped From Gainesville

ROME, Ga., March 20.—The Martha Berry school has received a check from Francis Sayre, Jr., grandson of President Woodrow Wilson. The check was contained in the following letter received from the little boy's mother:

"Williamstown, Mass.—My Dear Miss Berry: Please find check for $5 from Francis Sayre, Jr., who hopes that it will be of a little assistance to the boys of the south, to whom, though he lives in the far north, he will always feel allied. Sincerely yours, Jessie Woodrow Sayre."

Miss Berry will use the fund as a nucleus for a scholarship at the Berry School for Boys. During her life Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was a frequent contributor to the schools, and President Wilson has also shown his interest in support of the school by sending frequent contributions.

Uncle Ben's Cane Real War Relic

LINCOLNTON, Ga.—An aged colored man, erect, dignified, proud of bearing and yet with a meek and submissive bow, was a sauntering through the streets of Lincolnton.

"Uncle, where did you get that cane?" asked some one from a crowd on the sidewalk.

"I found it in my old marster's woods jest ez I wuz startin' off ter jine de Confederate army, sah," he replied.

It was Uncle Ben Freeman, a perfect type of antebellum negroes, now dwindling to a corporal's guard. The cane was, indeed, a curiosity. It was of sugarberry wood, was worm eaten but what was left was worn sleek and hard as flint. Uncle Ben carried it all through the Civil war. He carries it now on his long trips as he goes about selling the brooms he makes. Uncle Ben is a well esteemed colored man. He has raised a large family of boys who are living useful lives. One of them, Ben, Jr., is the champion 'possum hunter of Lincoln county. Another, Wash by name, when asked in Sunday school, "Who made you?" replied "I disremember."

Gainesville Ships 8,000 Dozen Eggs

M. D. SINGLETON last week shipped from Gainesville eight thousand and seventy dozen eggs to various markets in this and other states. Eggs are cheaper than they were a few weeks ago, and are considerably cheaper than meat for eating, hence the demand is quite as great as the supply—Gainesville (Ga.) Eagle.

charged, she threw a baby from a fast moving train. According to her story, some one gave her the child to hold and while she had it in the window, it fell out, accidentally.

The others of the negro women cases are only commonplace, here the story of a Saturday night frolic, there a quarrel about a man and another woman. They seem happy and take their fate as a matter of fact. They sing, shout, hoe and plow, and wait.

The public is not generally acquainted with the fact that of the thousand inmates of the state penitentiary—they are no longer called convicts—that there is hardly a stripe worn today. The stripe is now used as punishment. The model prisoners are given certain rights, all the whites are clothed in gray, the negroes in brown.

The short-term women, especially the white girls, do not take the situation seriously. It seems almost like an outing to most of them, and not a furrow of care wrinkles their brow, not a sigh breaks the rhythm of their existence. But all in all, it's a long, long story, and many a heartache.

Pagans from the East, Atheists in Europe, Coming to America

"We Must Strengthen Our Interior Defenses Against These Immigrants," Says Bishop Candler. "We Must Maintain the Holiness of the Sabbath Day

By Bishop Warren A. Candler.

Recently there was issued from Washington, D. C., the following dispatch:

"Minister Beinsch, at Pekin, reported today that a new steamship line between China, American gulf ports and New York is about to be started by Chinese financiers. The line will be operated by a joint stock company of Chinese and American capitalists, and dividends will be guaranteed by the Chinese government in return for advantageous freight rates on certain products."

This significant press dispatch has seemed to escape the notice of "war and rumors of wars;" but it means more, probably, to our country commercially than all the matters in Europe which have engaged our attention. It is especially significant in connection with the rapid development in material things of the South-Atlantic and Gulf States. The turning of the Gulf Stream in the Atlantic Ocean would not more signally affect the forces of nature than will this turning of the current of Oriental traffic affect commercial and industrial conditions in the Southeast. In China there are above four-hundred-millions of people who need our products, especially our cotton, and they have products which our people want. This trade with the Orient has been diverted from the South hitherto by the freight rates which were required by railway lines. Over water lines there are no tracks to be kept in repair, and, hence water rates will be far cheaper. Moreover, the element of time must be taken into account These shipments from China will land at Southern ports nearly as quickly as Chinese importations have heretofore reached the ports on the Pacific coast; and, therefore, they will more speedily reach their final destination.

All this means an accelerated movement of industrial development and material prosperity in our section. It also means a larger volume of immigration to the South than we have ever known before. It would not be impossible that the Chinese problem should become as acute in our Gulf ports and the interior regions back of them as it now is in California.

Moreover, when the war in Europe has ended, vast multitudes of people from European countries will fly to our shores. The burdens of taxation, which must follow the war inevitably, will be too heavy for them to bear. Want of capital will incline them to flee from the habitations in which, heretofore, they have lived and labored. Their eyes will be directed to the South as the European emigrants of a generation ago looked to the West. "Where the carcass is, there will the eagles gather." And the South will be the richest commercial carcass in America. Hence multitudes from both Asia and Europe will come to live among us.

Lands will advance in price and larger crops of foodstuffs will be produced than ever before. The Europeans and the Asiatics will not give much attention to the growing of cotton, at least not until they have been in the South for some years. They will give their attention at first mostly to the growing of grain, vegetables, poultry, fruits and live-stock.

The prospect of such a future development will doubtless be very pleasing to many of our people. The hope of gains of a material sort will command their enthusiastic interest. But our people should be warned beforehand that all these things will bring moral perils as well as material prosperity. Paganism will burst in upon us from the Orient, and a Continental type of religion will come upon us from Europe. Hereby great strain will be brought to bear upon our social and religious institutions.

For example, men will incline to relax the law of the Sabbath which the people of the South have been accustomed to respect more scrupulously for many years past than have the people of other sections of our country. Sabbathless people coming among us, impelled by the desire to secure earthly goods, will be inclined to demand the prevalence, in our section, of the "Continental Sabbath." Many of our people will be quite ready, for the sake of gain, to accede to this demand. But we cannot afford to exchange the Christian Sabbath for any amount or kind of material prosperity. The want of such an institution as the Sabbath is one of the most grievous curses of pagan lands and one of the sorest needs of European nations. We know what comes from the lives of men dwelling in Sabbathless countries, and we cannot afford to invite these evil consequences to our own shores. Wherefore, before this tide of immigration has become too strong to resist, we must strengthen the defenses of the Sabbath day. The man who does not see this necessity is stupid, indeed, and he who sees it and does not care for it thereby evinces his utter lack of both piety and patriotism. Whatever men may think about the institution of the Sabbath, the life of a pure Christianity and the observance of the holy day are inseparably bound up together. If the Sabbath perish, religion will perish with it; and hence this Sabbath question goes to the very roots of our civilization.

But the question of the Sabbath is only one of many moral and religious issues which we must prepare to meet. We want a vigorous, brotherly, and zealous christian life to meet the millions of immigrants, who are certainly coming to our shores, on their arrival in our section. Met by such a loving and fervent christianity they will know that they have come to a new world, indeed. And it is to a new world that they need to come in order to find a new, nobler, and happier life than they have ever known in the lands from which they will come. On the other hand, if they are met with a low, luke-warm, and worldly type of christianity they will be deprived of one of the greatest blessings which they ought to find in America; and they will become curses both to themselves and to us.

We should also give them a higher type of education than they have known. It should be pronouncedly christian education. They have had enough of mere educational secularism; and the result has not been good for them or the world.

The Chinese have had the philosophy of Confucius; and if we are to give them the arid systems of modern materialism, such as Herbert Spencer and men of his type have propounded, their case will be no better in America than it has been in China. They should meet here in our colleges and universities more elevated systems of thought. Our institutions of learning should breathe an atmosphere of christian faith and exhale a sanctifying influence of christian life.

The world has tried both rationalism and ritualism, and both systems have utterly failed to supply an adequate source of moral life. At best ritualism is a local thing, and rationalism is a transient mode. Neither is able to bring the highest blessings to the human mind and heart. But evangelical christianity, being neither local nor transient, is effective for the highest good in all lands and at all times. It is christianity of this sort which has prevailed heretofore in the South, and it is of infinite importance that it should continue to prevail among us with even greater power than ever.

Let us get ready for the multitudes who will be coming among us. Let us prepare the way of the Lord before their approach, and make straight paths of righteousness and peace for their stumbling and tired feet. They will be seeking refuge among us, and we ought to furnish them something more than a refuge from political and social ills. We ought to prepare for them a solace for their souls as well as a retreat for their bodies. But we cannot do this if we surrender our best things and accept in the place of them the worst things which these immigrant people may bring with them. We cannot do them real and enduring good unless we ourselves are good.

Before their coming we need a great revival of religion that shall fit us for rendering them the most christian service and the most spiritual ministries. Both for their welfare and ours we must proceed to strengthen the interior defenses of our civilization without delay.

FROM A DEATH-LIKE COMA, CHILD IS RESTORED TO LIFE AT WAYCROSS AS THOUGH BY MIRACULOUS POWER

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 20.—From a coma so like death that her mother was told she had passed away, Susie May Bird, four years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bird, revived here last week. She was being prepared to undergo an operation at a local hospital, and the little girl's mother was waiting in the hospital parlors. The child's breathing seemed to stop entirely, and, apparently, she showed no signs at all of life. The mother was told the little one was dead.

But fifteen minutes later the pulse beat feebly, and efforts to restore respiration met with immediate success. In 30 minutes the natural color of the body had returned, and the baby began crying. During the time she was given up for dead there was not the slightest beating of the radial pulse.

Mrs. Bird, the mother, looks on her daughter's restoration to life as a miracle.

Can a Man Steal From His Wife?

DALTON, Ga., March 20.—Can a man steal from his wife? That is a question being discussed by the local legal fraternity as the result of a case in the justice court here. A woman had her husband arrested for stealing her cow and selling it. Witnesses testified that both owned the cow, and arguing for the defense, the point was made that no theft had occurred when the defendant took the cow and sold it and then pocketed the money. The court took the same view and dismissed the case.

Home-Like Jail Is Kept at Decatur By Only Woman Jailer

Prisoners Get Hot Coffee Every Morning, and All Go Away Feeling Grateful. But None Ever Escapes. Mercy and Firmness are Combined in Jail Routine.

By Angus Perkerson.

WHEN a thick-necked caveman running true to form by cracking safes in this year 1915 as he did skulls in the glacial period, is brought to the Decatur jail, he first opens his eyes as though doubting his senses and chuckles to himself.

Already he sees his thick fingers guiding a thin saw through the jail bars. In his mind's eye, right now, he is stepping out of the neat little jail which has a violet-lined walk and shade trees in the yard; and is hiking up the Broad Highway.

But this thing of imagination often soars beyond reality. It is a venturesome, fickle, hope-disappointing jade. And, never does it fly on falser wings than when it points an immediate escape from the Decatur jail, DeKalb county.

Take a tip. Because the jailer is a woman don't think the way out is easy. Since she accepted the keys of the jail two years ago not a thick-handed, low-browed breaker of the law has gone out except with his fine paid, his sentence finished or the scene of his activities transferred to a gang picking rocks or rocky clay on DeKalb county roads.

Mrs. J. A. McCurdy not only is the one woman jailer in Georgia, but she also is he best jailer. She has greater kindness and greater firmness; and, above his, she possesses the knack that makes a docile prisoner from a safe-breaker who naturally has a prehistoric simplicity and violence.

About once a month now the county chaingang wagons drive up to the prison and drive off, a dozen or more prisoners bouncing up and down on the hard, springless wagon-bed. And, just as they drive away all stand up, wave their hats, and shout to the jailer:

"Good-bye. Hate to leave here. Been mighty good to us."

She has shown the state how to keep a jail—how to make it not only proof against escape, but possessed of an air of homeliness and kindness that throws mercy, like a warm and comforting coat, over the people shut in there.

Mrs. McCurdy is the wife of the sheriff of DeKalb county, and somehow dropped into jail-keeping, as she did into helping with the records of the office, issuing subpoenas, and keeping accounts.

For two years she has been the most efficient deputy her husband has (and that's high praise.)

"Why," said "Uncle Dave," county treasurer, last week, "We're thinking of running her against her husband for sheriff."

And it's a fact that the DeKalb county grand jury in its latest presentments recommended that Mrs. McCurdy be officially recognized as a deputy sheriff, the only woman deputy in Georgia.

For two years she's already done all and more than a deputy usually does do. There isn't a detail of the sheriff's office she hasn't mastered, not a duty to which she isn't equal, except one—she can't make arrests.

Mrs. McCurdy last week was signing receipts for money being paid into the office for fines, and was nibbling the end of her pen in some embarrassment.

She didn't want to talk about herself and didn't want anything printed through the jail, and we were discussing what men deserved mercy. And when we'd finished I found out I'd asked for everyone of them to be turned loose.

"'You wouldn't leave a single prisoner in jail if you had your way,' the commissioner said.

"And it's the truth; I wouldn't. That shows you what a woman I am. Why, I couldn't any more arrest a person than I could fly; and I think the reason the jail does so well is because I feel sure enough sorry for everyone in there, and do try to make life endurable for them all."

For instance, she has hot coffee served in the morning to the white prisoners; she furnishes them with whatever odds and ends she can to read; and, all in all, throws about the jail a homely atmosphere. One boy who served there six months, just stayed on. He is paid a small salary and actually has made the jail his home.

"Bill," they call this boy (he has no other name), and he helps to feed the prisoners and to keep the flower beds trim, and to continue the jail in its neat, hospitable appearance. The other day he also found a way to subdue unruly prisoners. Three had been cross and crabid, sharp in their speech, and as ingenious as boys in disturbing the routine of the jail.

But suddenly they turned from perversity to absolute docility. Bill had cut off their morning coffee.

Another (a much older prisoner) has remained twelve months in jail awaiting a new trial. And he, too, through gratitude to the jailer, helps to preserve order. When there's the least outcropping of the spirit of rebellion he begins, by force of argument and his right arm, to quell the up-rising. And such is the power and pertinacity of the man, that never yet has he failed in his endeavor.

The whole jail has a spirit different from any other institution of its kind in the state, because it is the only prison in the state with a woman for a jailer.

Gets Third Set Of Teeth at 81 Years

H. M. HANCOCK, 81 years old, has a third set of teeth. He went to a dentist to have three upper front teeth removed because they were causing him pain. The dentist found that they were being replaced by sound, well-formed, new teeth.—Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette.

CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By Mrs. Henry Symes

THE most sensible thing for any one to do in cases of accidents and injuries is to call the doctor. This having been done, the next step is to bring relief to the patient until the doctor arrives. I was somewhat astonished the other day when a woman, possessing an envied amount of knowledge, confessed that she wouldn't know what to do if any one should fall in a faint at her feet. This confession made me feel the necessity for giving my readers some general hints about rendering first aid, for doubtless there are many persons who are just as ignorant about such things as the woman who awoke me to my sense of duty.

The first thing to do for a fainting person is to place her flat on her back with her head low. If a bed or couch is not available and the fainting person is sitting on a chair, just pull the chair back so that the blood will have a chance to get to the patient's head. Do not let a crowd gather around the unconscious one, for she needs all fresh air available. Wash the patient's face with cold water, loosen all tight clothing, hold smelling salts, camphor or ammonia near, but not touching, the nose. The arms and legs should be elevated and rubbed toward the body. In fact, anything that will start the blood to circulating naturally should be done. If convenient, external heat should be applied to the body, and the patient should be given hot coffee, tea or a glass of hot water.

With the approach of the bathing season it is well to keep in mind the important thing to do to a person who is drowning. If you are able to swim after the person, try to assure her first of all that you will save her, so that she will not become weak from fright and let the patient cling around your neck to endanger you, and be sure to keep her head completely out of the water. If a barrel is handy, roll the rescued one over this, so that the water will run from mouth, nose and ears. Should a barrel be out of the question, place the patient with the head lower than the heels, with the face downward. Loosen all tight clothing. If the patient is breathing slightly, excite her nostrils with smelling salts, camphor or ammonia. If there is no breathing at all, be quick to induce artificial breathing. This is done by turning the patient on her back, supporting her head on a cushion or folded article of dress. Draw the tongue forward and secure a good hold of it by slipping an elastic band over it and under the chin, or tie a piece of string or tape in the same way. Kneel behind the patient's head, and grasping her forearms just below the elbow, draw them gently above the head; keep them stretched up for two seconds; then turn them down and force them gently and firmly for two seconds against the sides of the chest. Repeat these movements about fifteen times in a minute. When breathing starts, apply warmth and friction. Don't be quick to give up hope, but work steadily for hours. When vitality has been restored give the patient warm water, tea or coffee, feeding it by spoonfuls.

A fit of epilepsy is a ghastly thing to witness, but for the sake of the patient, the onlooker should muster up courage and lay the unfortunate person gently down on her back, with something placed beneath the head. In this emergency it is also necessary to remove tight clothing from the invalid's neck. Put into her mouth a handkerchief, a cork, or any substance which will prevent her from biting her tongue. Then wait patiently until the afflicted one has sufficiently recovered.

Of course, the question of you who would be capable of relieving a person who sprained her ankle, but I fear that you are in the minority. The best thing to do to relieve the suffering is to foment the sprained part well with warm water.

After the hot bath brush tincture of arnica over the afflicted part with a camel's-hair brush several times a day. Bandage the ankle firmly to prevent swelling and to give a feeling of security when the patient is able to move about.

It is essential for every one to know what to apply to a severe burn or scald. Prompt attention will not only relieve suffering, but it is often the means of preventing ugly scars. In every medicine closet there should be a bottle containing equal parts of olive oil and limewater. This is a most efficacious mixture to apply to a scald or burn. Another simple treatment is to immerse the part that has been scalded in cold water or pour cold water over it; or dust bicarbonate of soda over it, and then apply a wet cloth. The injured portion of the skin should be exposed as little as possible, and for this reason the dressings should not be made more often than is required by cleanliness.

In case of clothing catching fire, the patient should be wrapped and rolled in a coat, a rug or a tablecloth to extinguish the flames.

Bleeding is one of the most alarming emergencies with which the amateur has to deal. When there is severe bleeding of the nose lay the patient on her back, raise her arms above the head. Apply ice to the nape of the neck and induce the patient to snuff salt water.

When the lungs bleed lay the patient down with the head and shoulders raised; keep her perfectly quiet. Apply cold, wet cloths to the chest. Give her chopped ice, mixed with salt if available.

As stated before, call the doctor first of all and then proceed as above, but remember that it is your duty to keep calm and follow scientific directions.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs. Chester Adams most cordially invites her friends to bring to her their Social Problems and Perplexities by letter at any time

[If a personal reply is desired, a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.]

UNPREPAREDNESS

THERE are many who offer as an excuse for almost any lapse from social decorum the explanation, "But I was unprepared!" and then again there are others like the little old lady who lived very much alone and fed whole colonies of birds and cats which she had kept "for fear some one might drop in." Nevertheless, the birds enjoyed the fruits of her preparedness, and if more women were like her most of us would drop in without heralding our visits.

"I like to have company," says one woman, "but I like to know when they are coming!" Consequently no visitors honor her inhospitable board. Hospitality is but another term for "Come whenever you feel like it; there is always enough for one more." In these days of strenuous living and impulsive comings and goings, it is probably just as well to announce one's intentions before a visit of any length of time, but it is a comfort to feel that when the impulse comes to drop in on a long-neglected friend you will not be the unwitting cause of the whispered admonition, "Family, please hold back!"

There is an excellent solution of the unexpected-guest problem in what two far-seeing ladies call their "emergency shelf." On this they keep stored cans of soup, lobster, chicken, vegetables, olives, packages of cakes and crackers, and tin boxes of candies and nuts. Every few weeks the shelf is overhauled and replenished. These same ladies, though living in the smallest of flats, have a bed davenport in constant readiness for the guest whom they do not need to coax to spend the night. A guestroom is not always possible in our modern congested manner of living, but a waiting pile of clean bed linen just where the housewife can lay her hand on it will save her from extending a halting invitation to spend the night. Another hostess who is a foe to unpreparedness takes delight in impromptu card parties, for which she always has on hand a simple prize gathered at an opportune moment in some shopping trip.

There is another form of unpreparedness that accounts for more than exorbitant milliners' bills in the traditional domestic squabbles of the joke columns, and that is Flora McFlimsy's plaint, "Nothing to wear!" When William, in the first fervor of connubial attention, calls from the office and suggests "a little dinner and a show," go! Go in a tailormade and a linen shirtwaist, if you must, rather than risk William's anger and future neglect with the excuse, "But I have nothing to wear." Better still, see that you have something to wear.

If is not the woman who has very little to spend on clothes who is unprepared for emergency, but the one whose ribbons and laces are always too torn or too soiled, and whose white gloves are always ready for the cleaners. The same woman is never prepared for the stray caller, and rather than cut short herafternoon siesta will discreetly hide her kimono-clad figure behind the window draperies and wonder why the caller is so persistent with the bell. The wife of a prominent and very busy man attributes their perfect understanding and companionship to the fact that from the day of her wedding to the present time—and they are no longer young—she has always had prepared a traveling bag with all necessities for a long trip, and has been ready in ten minutes to accompany her husband to Honolulu.

Perhaps the most discomfiting form of unpreparedness is that of being short of change. This is sometimes unavoidable, but when there are six other days in the week, there is no excuse for allowing the collection basket to pass by on Sunday for want of small change, or to keep the pay-as-you-enter car and a dozen people waiting while you search for the stray caller, and rather than cut short hisafternoon siesta will discreetly hide her kimono-clad figure behind the window draperies and wonder why the caller is so persistent with the bell. The wife of a prominent and very busy man attributes their perfect understanding and companionship to the fact that from the day of her wedding to the present time—and they are no longer young—she has always had prepared a traveling bag with all necessities for a

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Announcement Cards

My DEAR Mrs. Adams.

Who pays for the announcement cards which are sent out after the wedding? TROUBLED.

The father and mother of the bride defray the expenses of all invitations and announcement cards.

Announcing a Marriage

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

Would it be proper to announce a marriage at an informal dinner party?

Is it correct for a young woman to call at a gentleman's home if he has no sister? A. A.

I think you would be much safer in following the established custom of sending out cards to announce the marriage.

If the young woman knows the family of the gentleman, or has received a special invitation from his mother, it would be correct for her to call; otherwise, if he invites her, it would be well for him to suggest that some one else accompany her.

Too Young For Sweethearts

To "ANXIOUS," "DEARIE," and "DARLING": You are all too young to be even thinking of sweethearts, or receiving presents from boys. Banish the idea of boys as lovers from your heads for some time. Treat them as good friends and playmates and you will always be at ease with them and will not fall into that "silly" attitude that so many girls adopt at your age.

Resents Teasing

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a student at a university and have become the object of much teasing at my boarding house because I have the habit of stopping dishes when they pass me at the table. Would you change your boarding place? PAT.

Your expression "stopping dishes" is not quite clear to me; but if you mean you merely help yourself before passing the dish on to others, I should think this perfectly natural in a large body of students and I should ignore their teasing. If, however, "stopping the dishes" means concerning the food and not allowing any one else to be served, then I think the teasing is deserved and the sooner the culprit wakes up to this the better.

Calling on the Sick

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

What should one say when one is thanked for calling on a sick friend? NORA.

You can say that you are glad if you have been able to brighten up a few minutes of the invalid's time; that you have always appreciated a call when you or those in your household have been ill, and you are glad to be able to do the same for another.

Before the Wedding

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

Who sits at the bride's table and how are they placed?

Does the bride cut the cake?

Should the home be decorated for the wedding reception?

Is it necessary to have a train on the bride's wedding gown?

Does the bride have the finger of her glove cut?

Who writes the invitations?

Is it proper for a bride-to-be to get what she may for her linen chest before marriage?

Should the wedding veil have a train or is it just as long as the dress?

Only the bridal party sit at the bride's table. The bride and groom are usually seated at the head of the table, with the maid-of-honor at the bride's right and the best man at the groom's left.

Yes, if there is a cake.

The groom provides the flowers for the bride and her maids.

Yes, will palms, ferns and a few cut flowers.

The finger of the bride's glove may be split, or she may remove it, with the help of her maid-of-honor, just before it is time for placing the ring.

The invitations are engraved and paid for by the bride's parents. The bride and her family attend to the addressing.

The wedding veil should be short if the dress is to be short. A veil of lace reaching slightly below the waist is proper with the short wedding gown.

The maid-of-honor usually spends the night before the wedding with the bride and helps her with her robing in the morning. The bridesmaids either come to the bride's home the night before or sufficiently early in the morning to accompany the bride and her maid to the church. At the church they are met by the groom and his best man at the chancel.

Does Not Trust His Sincerity

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

Several years ago I went with a man I cared a great deal for to some parties and let our friendship drop, but now we have renewed it again. I really care for the man, but he tells me that he was putting off proposing to me for the reason that he didn't want to see me the first time and afraid that he is not sincere. Would you tell me whether or not I should continue to go with him? IRENE.

Why do you not return the compliment and "put him through a test" by being extremely cool and indifferent. If he is really sincere, this will worry him and you can soon reassure him of your devotion. If, however, he is only trifling with you, he will probably not put up with such treatment, and you will be the better for the loss of his attentions.

The First Wedding Anniversary

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you please tell me what the first wedding anniversary is and how to word invitations to same? How, when and what would be best to do for refreshments? How can I entertain the guests? IN DOUBT.

If your guests are to be many, it is best to plan for a more or less formal evening reception. You may word your invitation formally like this:

Mr. and Mrs. —— request the pleasure of your company upon the occasion of their first wedding anniversary from nine until eleven o'clock
Twenty Madison Avenue

If you are planning an informal party, write the invitations on squares of white cotton cloth with indelible ink. If the table is to be set for the guests, have strips of white cotton cloth from the chandelier to the corners of the table and on them pin tufts of white cotton. Place candles in spools of cotton at each place; the place card might be a small square of cotton with the guest's name embroidered on it with a colored thread. For refreshments serve a light supper of chicken or lobster salad, small, thin sandwiches, coffee, olives, nuts, ices, cakes and candy. To entertain the guests, have a mock wedding with the original wedding party as participants if possible. The whole party should be dressed in cotton, and should march to a cotton draped bower to the tune of "Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow," or some other melody suggesting cotton. Have a large wedding cake into which has been baked the traditional button, thimble, ring and piece of money.

Bonbons for Hostess

My Dear Mrs. Adams.

I have been asked to spend the week-end in the suburbs with a family of my acquaintance. Should I take a present for one to take my hostess a box of candy as an appreciation of her kindness? GEORGIA R.

It would be quite proper and thoughtful to present your hostess with a box of bonbons, either upon your arrival or after your departure.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Cold Feet

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please tell me what I can do to relieve very cold feet in winter. I can very seldom get them warm at all. RUTH C.

Cold feet are a result of poor circulation. This may be due to tight shoes or lack of exercise. Try plenty of massage and this stimulating ointment:

Camphor	½ dram
Turpentine	1 dram

And zinc ointment to the ounce.

Treatment for Warts

Dear Mrs. Symes.

How can I get rid of warts and what will remove a dark hair from around my mouth? CONSTANT READER.

Following is the formula for a mixture which you can use on each wart:

Wart Eradicator

Sublimed sulphur	120 grains
Glycerin	5 fluid drams
Acetic acid	1 fluid dram

Apply repeatedly to each wart, continuing the treatment for several days. The warts dry up and then drop off.

To Remove Warts

Mix 1 grain of paraform with nine parts of flexible collodion and apply to wart three times a day. After two or three days the epidermis peels off and the wart will come with it.

Elbows Are Rough

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My elbows are so rough that I am ashamed to wear short sleeves. Can anything be done to soften this part of the body? I see so many people with ugly elbows. THERESA.

The elbows can be kept soft if one will take the trouble to keep them so. First of all, bathe your elbows with warm water. Cleanse the skin with soap and a flesh brush or a rough washcloth. Rinse and dry the skin and then apply a liberal amount of cold cream. Do not lean on your elbows.

Drinking Water

Dear Mrs. Symes.

How much water should one drink during the day? Should it be of any certain temperature? DOROTHY.

At least three pints of water should be taken every day. The best temperature for drinking water is pleasantly cool, not ice cold. Drink a glass or two of water before breakfast and before retiring. Very little water, if any, should be taken with meals. The rest of the quantity prescribed should be consumed between meals.

Pimples

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have a very good complexion, but once in a while my chin and forehead break out in pimples. What can I do about the trouble? RUTH.

Most likely the pimples are due to some indigestion. You have been eating too many sweet foods or have been overeating, and as a warning the pimples have appeared. Correct either of these two faults, if you have been guilty of them, and bathe your face with very hot water. After drying the skin apply the cream for which the formula is here given:

Pimples

Beta-naphthol	5 grains
Oil of chamomile	5 drops

Use on the surface.

The Finger Nails

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me what to do for my finger nails? They break so easily. I also have great trouble with the cuticle surrounding the nails. The half moons do not show very plainly. AGNES.

You can make your nails less brittle by applying cold cream or vaseline to them every night before retiring.

Never use a metal instrument to push back the cuticle, for by doing so you are apt to injure the cuticle and the nail. Before attempting to push back the cuticle you should soften it by holding the fingers in warm soapsuds for five or ten minutes. Dry the fingers, apply cold cream, and then push back the cuticle with the blunt end of an orange-wood stick.

Hair Is Falling Out

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My hair has been falling out a great deal lately and I should like to know of a good tonic to use. A READER.

Massage a tonic into your scalp every day, and after the massage brush the hair thoroughly. A splendid tonic for you to use is made of:

Tincture of nux vomica	1 ounce
Spirits of rosemary	2 ounces
Alcohol	2 ounces

Apply several times a week to the roots of the hair.

Small Waist

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please tell me how I can enlarge my waist? I have large hips and a very small waist, and I want to have a more symmetrical figure. SUBSCRIBER.

Allow plenty of room at the waist line and use the following exercises to reduce the hips:

To Reduce the Hips

Place hands on the hips, shoulders well back. The leg is raised with knee flexed. Then, after a high, quick kick, bring the foot back again to the floor. This is to be repeated several times.

Sachets

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please tell me in your column some dainty powder that I might use to fill ribbon sachets. EVA D.

I am giving you a very sweet sachet that ought to answer your purpose:

Rose Sachet Powder

Powdered Florentine orris	4 ounces
Rose leaves (air dried)	10 ounces
Musk in powder	10 grains
Lavender flowers	1 ounce

An Antiseptic

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What is the best thing to apply to a pimple after picking it open? RUTH.

A solution of boracic acid or peroxide of hydrogen should be applied immediately if you have made the error of picking the pimples. Never do this again. As soon as a pimple appears you should bathe it with water as hot as you can bear. After drying the skin, by patting and not a rubbing process, it will be advisable for you to apply the cream for which the formula is here given:

Fosatti Cream for Pimples

Extract of violet	15 drops
Sweet almond oil	1¼ drams
Sulphur precipitate	75 grains
Lanolin	75 grains
Oxide of zinc	2 scruples

To Reduce the Weight

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What can I do to reduce my weight? I am 35 years of age and 5 feet 3 inches in height. My weight is 220 pounds. Mrs. M. S.

Physical exercise is something you must practice if you wish to reduce your weight. It must be taken in the open air, so that the oxygen which enters the lungs will consume the carbon and thus prevent it from being deposited into fat. You should arise early in the morning and keep moving all day. Rest only at night. Never lie down during the day.

The exercise must be accompanied by extreme temperance and a strict diet. Take no nourishment which tends to produce fat, especially wheat, rye, oatmeal, rice, Irish potatoes, sago, etc., which rapidly transform into fat. Avoid all pastries and sweets. Control your appetite as much as possible.

Lines Have Appeared

Dear Mrs. Symes.

1. Just recently a line appeared on the side of my nose. What can I do to remove it?

2. Is a girl of 19 too old to wear her hair with braids around her head?

3. I am using buttermilk to whiten the skin. Should I wash off the milk before retiring and wash it off in the morning, or is it better to leave the buttermilk in the morning and leave it on the skin all day?

4. I never used any cream on my face, but recently a few blackheads are appearing on my nose and chin. I do not like to cover them with powder. What would you advise me to do? LITTLE BLUE EYES.

1. To remove the lines from your nose apply a liberal amount of cold cream to the face and rub them out and upward. If the lines are due to laughing, you will not be able to remove them entirely; but you should not feel discouraged over this fact, for their presence indicates that you have a cheerful disposition.

2. Not at all. Women who are many years older than 19 wear the braids because they are becoming to them.

3. It is better to use the buttermilk at night, for then it can act without being disturbed.

4. Use plenty of soap and water to remove the blackheads. If necessary, use cold cream to soften the black specks so that they will yield to gentle pressure of the balls of the thumbs. Never use the nails to squeeze out the blackheads. After the removal of these blemishes the face should be bathed with warm water and witch hazel applied.

Superfluous Hairs

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My skin is inclined to be hairy, but the hairs are not coarse. They are rather thin and long. Do you think that in time it will stick to the skin if I shave it downward? PERPLEXED.

I do not think the hairs will ever stick to the skin. If they are an obstacle in your road to beauty, you should go to a reliable person and have them removed by electricity. This is the only way they will disappear permanently.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

"GOOD FOR LITTLE BOYS."

A REQUEST for advice has just come to me from one of our Cornerites. "The doctor has told me that my 6 year old boy shall be put on a diet," she writes. "The child is not to be permitted to eat sweets—candy, desserts, cakes, and the like—fried articles, hot bread, any variety of pork except bacon, no veal, no made dishes. How am I going to manage it? It seems hard to have the child at the table with the rest of the family and not permit him to eat what we do, and harder yet to oblige him to have his meals by himself. How can I arrange to have him eat only such things as the doctor permits and still let him share our companionship at meals? Do advise me."

Like Mr. Lincoln, "that reminds me of a little story." A friend of mine had a cottage on the edge of a lake. She also had three children. One day a visitor remarked, "I should think you would have a fence built around that lake to keep your children from falling in."

"There is a fence around it," returned the mother smilingly. "My order to the children is never to go down by it unless some older person is with them."

That was sufficient protection to the children. They had been trained to obey and to take it for granted that their parents knew best. Put the same sort of fence about the food your child is not permitted to eat.

"But," you say, "it is hard for the child to be forbidden the articles we have, not to be allowed to eat as we do."

You might as well state that it is hard for the child not to sit up late, to go to the same amusements enjoyed by his elders, to have the same privileges, to dress in the same fashion. Your position is that taken by so many parents in this day, that the pleasures of childhood and those of maturity should be practically identical.

Before we go further into that let me take up the original proposition—that of the child's special diet. I feel qualified to speak on that topic, for it is not so many years since there was a case like that of your own in my family. One of the children was put on a diet practically identical with that you outline. Sweets, hot breads, rich foods of all kinds were cut out, but it was never for a moment considered that he should be banished from the family table or that the general bill of fare should be altered because his diet was changed.

There were two or three reasons for this. In the first place, the child had been trained in the habit of strict obedience and the statement that this or that was not for him met with no cavil on his part. In the second place, his mother held decided views on the question of children's diet and did not for a moment dream of taxing a baby's digestion with the food that could be easily assimilated by a grown person.

Even when such articles as you have mentioned were tabooed, a generous choice was left. Soups of all except the richest kinds, cream soups, meat or vegetable broths, were allowed; eggs cooked in a variety of ways, many vegetables, fish, such meats as beef, lamb, mutton, chicken, turkey, etc., toast, porridge of all sorts, fruit, fresh and stewed—all these and sundry other dishes were on the child's menu. He did not have to have a special meal provided for him, for many of the items suitable to his diet were those taken for granted on the average table.

At the same time the articles he could not eat were not banished. When some preparation was served of which he was not certain the quick question would come, "Is that something that is good for little boys?" If the answer was in the negative the matter was settled and no protest was uttered. The food given him was abundant and good. Like nearly all children, he did not crave the variety sought by the more mature appetite and was satisfied with what was placed before him.

The truth is that we too often create a demand in our children which does not naturally exist. The normal child would be satisfied with a breakfast of fresh or stewed fruit, porridge and milk, supplemented perhaps by an egg and a piece of toast or bread and butter and a glass of milk or a cup of cocoa. Why introduce him to those things which he does not need and which at this stage of his growth are not good for him? Why give him a taste of tea or coffee, a bite of sausage, a mouthful of a griddle cake? It is not as though these were articles he had to learn to like, wholesome foods which it is to his profit to eat. If they please his palate you are awakening in him a taste which it is harmful for him to indulge.

I have tried to analyze the attitude of mind which prompts a parent—or more frequently a grandparent—to give a baby a lump of sugar dipped in coffee or tea, a bit of pastry or other indigestible dainty which can do the child no good and may work harm. When we hear of the habitual drunkard feeding sweetened whisky to a small boy or girl we raise hands of holy horror. Yet we think nothing of the less dangerous but still injurious delicacies with which experiments are made on the infantile palate.

When we come down to it such conduct can only be classified as shortsighted indulgence. The older person seeks to give the child the pleasure of the agreeable flavor and does not stop to think he or she may be causing an inconvenient taste or doing positive damage to the immature gastric powers. The liking for sausage and griddle cakes may be a source of enjoyment, but, unless in exceptional cases, it is absolutely deleterious to a child under 10 or 12 years of age.

Therefore the mother is wise who from the first accustoms her brood to understanding that what is good for grownups is not suitable for children. There is no sense in the world in banishing pies, cakes, fried foods, and such dainties as lobster, crabs, cheese, etc., from the table because the children cannot have them. Establish the rule from the first that some articles are good for little people and some are not. If they have become used to seeing certain dishes placed before their seniors which are not meant for them they will not feel themselves ill treated by being forbidden the food of the "Olympians," as Kenneth Grahame calls them.

It is singular to see how little consistency parents practice with regard to the training of their children. The father who will do as I have seen some fathers do, and refuse to eat a dessert because the children were not permitted to share it, would never feel he must abandon smoking on the ground that he would not have an indulgence that his small boys and girls could not enjoy. The mother who is too tender hearted to keep pastry and fried cakes away from her child would not think for a moment of permitting her little daughter to wear the mother's jewelry or "play ladies" in the parent's best frock because the child begged for it. The parents have their pursuits, their avocations, their amusements, their food, their entertainments at which they have arrived in the course of growth and development. It is absurd to fancy that the youngsters are ready for the same sort of thing when they are still far behind their elders in age. Why deprive the children of the simple enjoyments that belong to their years, why make miniature men and women of them instead of leaving them their baby joys until they outgrow them and naturally demand something more fitted to their advance in age and understanding?

Of course this all has to do with the principle of training the children in habits of obedience and deference to constituted authority. If the parent yields in one line he or she can give no valid reason for not yielding in another.

I have been unfortunate enough to be the guest in homes where the children ruled the establishment in fact if not in name. They absorbed the conversation at the table and elsewhere; their wishes were deferred to, their tastes studied, their opinions asked, their interruptions tolerated or taken as a matter of course. I have never observed that such children were any happier than those who were taught to do as they were told and whose indulgences were fitted to their age.

More than this, such training or lack or training robs the children of pleasure later in life. I wonder sometimes what there is left for the young of the rich when they attain years of supposed discretion. We read of the theater and opera parties of small boys and girls in their early teens or even younger; we hear of their attending plays, dances, social functions of all sorts, even dinners where wines and cordials are served. The standard of dress established for these infants is on a par with that of their parents. The small boys have their miniature dress suits; the small girls wear laces and velvets and other rich fabrics as well as jewels. The simplicity of childhood seems to have passed into oblivion.

Not for a moment would I deprive the youngsters of all the good and happiness that is coming to them. But I confess to a fondness for the old times when a little girl had one or two "party frocks" which served her for a whole season at the small festivities to which she was invited; when no one heard of a Tuxedo or an Eton suit for a little boy to wear to the mild parties which seemed to fill their cup of happiness to overflowing in those days. I wonder what the girl is saving for a great surprise and joy in being grown-up when she has so much now. What will there be left for her or for the boy in the way of unaccustomed pleasures that are innocent and not extravagant?

Do I seem to have wandered a long way from the query with which this talk began? The whole subject seems to me to be essentially one—the need of keeping our children young as long as their years indicate that they are still juveniles. With the rushing spirit which has come to be a synonym for the American tendency, we force maturity upon our children while they should still be in the nursery. I don't care how it begins—the progress is identical. Food, raiment, occupations, amusements—in all instances—we give the babes in years the delights that should be reserved for their later youth and wrong them in the gift.

So keep your child a child as long as you can. Feed him with the food "good for little boys" now and don't distress yourself that he must be refused the enjoyments of his elders. They will come to him soon enough.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"FIND the house hints in the Corner very helpful. I thought that the following little recipe of mine might assist some one now, as meat costs so much. We call it 'sour eggs.' Fry slices of salt pork or bacon, as many as you need for the family; when crisp cut the meat fine and break in as many eggs as will be required for the persons who are to eat of the dish. Stir and add a little vinegar to give a sour taste and serve with mashed or baked potatoes. Two slices of pork and three eggs make a great plenty for two persons. Another thing worth knowing is that crackers scalloped like oysters are delicious with fish. Instead of potatoes use crackers, onion, butter, milk, salt, and pepper. Bake to a nice brown. I wonder how many know that potato dressing for geese and ducks beats all other kinds. Boil the potatoes, add seasoning and a little butter or pork; mash, moisten with milk. May I ask if any one has bulbs of Mariposa lilies? I have never seen them and am most anxious to have some. I have tried the seed stores here, but they are not carried in stock. MRS. T. G. D."

I have no doubt that eggs cooked as the writer described would be good, although I confess that the name sour eggs does not appeal to me as especially appetizing. I should call them "piquant eggs," or something of that sort. The dish thus cooked should be savory without the vinegar, or with the addition of a little onion juice. The scalloped crackers sound as though they might serve as an excellent substitute for potatoes and I know the merits of potato dressing for ducks and geese. I hope the bulbs of the Mariposa lilies may be found.

No Name or Address.

"Some time ago I noticed a request in the paper by Mrs. B. for the poem, 'The Fly,' by Theodore Tilton. I have the poem and would be glad to give it to Mrs. B. if she desires it. MRS. L. M."

Doubtless Mrs. B. would be glad to receive the poem if it has not already been sent to her, but unfortunately Mrs. L. M. gave no name or address. We have no other clew as to her identity.

Wants Floral Bead Formula.

"I am trying in every way to get the formula for making the floral beads which I understand are made from orris root, cornstarch, and gum arabic, but I do not know the proportions or how to mix them. If you published the same in the Corner I failed to see the directions, although I can't see how, for I always read the Corner carefully. I can make the black rose beads from the real rose petals and would like very much to get in touch with some one who would send me the formula for the kind I speak of.

"MRS. A. S."

Recipes and directions galore have been given for almost every kind of bead which may be made at home. Those of cornstarch, of salt with gum arabic and orris root have been among them, I am sure. In any event I hardly feel justified in yielding further space to such instructions. I will hold the address of Mrs. A. S., however, and gladly send it to any one who will undertake to supply her with the formula she wishes. I know that among the Cornerites there will surely be some one who will be happy to help this sister with the directions she seeks.

Inexpensive Fruit Cake.

"Seeing a request in a recent issue of the Corner for an inexpensive fruit cake I gladly submit two recipes, both of which I have tried and found excellent: No. 1—Seven cups of flour, four cups of brown sugar, two tablespoons of baking soda, two tablespoons of butter, four cups of sour milk or black coffee, three pounds of raisins, two pounds of currants, one grated nutmeg, half teaspoon of cloves, one and one-half teaspoons of allspice, one teaspoon of cinnamon, half teaspoon of ginger, two cups of walnut meats, half pound of mixed candied peel. This will make a couple of good sized loaves. Half the quantity will make one good sized cake and will be found satisfactory. No. 2—One cup of sour milk, one cup of sugar, half cup of butter, one teaspoon of soda, cinnamon and nutmeg to taste, two cups of flour, one cup of currants, one cup of walnuts broken and dredged with flour, one cup of chopped figs. Delicious. This is my first visit to the Corner. M. M. D."

We are glad to have both these recipes, although I wonder if there is not an error in the quantity of baking soda ordered in the first recipe. To my notion, two tablespoons is an error for two teaspoons. If M. M. D.—who did not send her name and address—should see this query will she not let us hear from her in the matter? Also I think there should be instructions to chop the nuts and candied peel and to dredge these and the fruit with flour.

Asks for Silk Pieces.

"Will you please send my address to Mrs. H. for silk pieces? I will pay postage on them and would gladly send California postal views in exchange for them.

"M. D."

I am sorry to say that the silk pieces offered by Mrs. H. had been given away before this letter was received. Is there not some one else who wishes to send such scraps in exchange for the postal views offered?

An Ad in the Paper.

"I have read in the paper how you have helped many others and I would like to have you help me. I wish to put an advertisement in the paper under 'Situations Wanted.' Will you tell me what it would cost if put in for one day and what for a week? Would I have to put my full name with such an advertisement?

"ALICE."

I would be glad to help you if I could, but the advertising department lies outside of my province. As you know, we do not put requests for paying positions in the Corner and you must write to the advertising section of the paper for the information you wish. They will tell you what you would have to pay for an insertion for a day or for a week. It is not necessary for you to append your name to the advertisement, although you must give a signature of some sort or a number to which letters in reply to your request may be addressed.

Does All Sewing by Hand.

"Has any one in the Helping Hand a sewing machine to give away, one run either by treadle or by hand? I have a little boy 3 years old and a small baby and I have to do all my sewing by hand. I have been a reader of your Corner for years past and am always glad to learn of the good work you are doing. I hope some time to be able to do something for some of the Cornerites. MRS. L. R."

Is there a sewing machine available for this correspondent? I think that a woman who has two children to sew for certainly deserves a sewing machine, and I hope that some friend has one to give away and will send to me for the address of Mrs. L. R.

Rain Soaked Wall Paper.

"I can answer the question asked by Mrs. F. J. C. in regard to restoring the papered ceiling which the rain has ruined. My husband is a paper hanger and painter, so I inquired of him the way to repair the damage. He says: 'Go to a paint store and buy some calcimine the color wanted—it comes in powdered form—mix it with water like paste and it is then ready to apply. A brush should not be used as would be done for painting, but the calcimine should be stippled on and the ceiling will look like new. I have lately learned how to make corn nut loaf, and it is a splendid dish. If any one would like the recipe I will send it to you.

"MRS. L. B. M."

Many thanks for the suggestions to remedy the damage done to the paper by the rain. I wish the instructions had gone a little further and told exactly how stippling is to be done. By all means let us have the recipe for the corn-nut loaf. It will be welcome and I will put it in the Corner for all to see.

Want Two White Kittens.

"I notice all kinds of things are asked for in the Corner, so my request may not seem so strange. My little boy and girl are anxious to have two little white kittens. They want only white ones and those that have been well cared for.

"R. M."

I hope the two white kittens may be found to meet the wish of the small boy and girl. I am sure the pets will have a good home and kindly treatment and I shall be glad to give the address of R. M. to any one who can make it possible to send such live freight.

Scrapple.

"I am asking for a recipe which I used to have, but which was lost during a recent illness. I think the dish was called hard scrabble, but I am not quite certain, for a friend gave it to me some time ago. The preparation was used in the place of meat and contained meat of some kind and cornmeal, and after being cut in slices was friend in a skillet. I do wish I might get it again, and I will watch the Corner in hopes of its appearance.

"MRS. C. R."

To my mind there is little doubt that the dish you wish is not hard scrabble, but scrapple. On this persuasion I give you the following recipe, but if some one who knows of a preparation bearing the name you give it I shall be happy to receive and publish the directions. Clean a pig's head, put it over the fire, and boil until the meat slips from the bones. Take out the bones and chop the meat fine. Set the liquor in which it was boiled aside until cold, remove the cake of fat which will rise to the top, put the liquor back on the fire, bring to a boil, and turn in the chopped meat. Season well with pepper and salt, boil up and thicken with cornmeal, putting this in as would be done in making cornmeal mush, sifting the meal through the fingers slowly, that it may not lump. Cook the mixture for an hour, stirring constantly at first and afterwards putting the pot at the back of the stove that the contents may cook slowly. When done pour into a long, narrow pan, making the depth of the scrapple about four inches or less. When cold it may be cut into slices and fried in butter or dripping to a good brown. This is good and appetizing, especially in cold weather, for luncheon or for supper.

Mends Crack in Stove.

"I wonder if you would let me in for just a wee bit of a talk. If any of the friends finds a crack in the stove or the fireplace it can be mended by making a good cement of a mixture of a cup each of salt and ashes moistened with a paste made of flour and water boiled until it is thick. The ashes and salt are stirred into the paste until it is thick. A board is then held against one side of the crack and the opening is filled with the mixture. It will harden when it is dry until it is like a rock. I would much like a mandolin for my little boy. I am unable to buy one for him, and he is taking lessons on it just now and needs one of his own badly. If this letter interests you I will tell you in my next of how I covered the walls out on our homestead and made them attractive without any expense.

"MRS. M. P."

Thank you for the suggestion as to the cement. It is bound to be helpful to some of our readers. I hope the mandolin may be sent to the boy. I did not print your offer of an exchange because we do not favor exchanges of this kind, and I regret that I am also unable to give the remedies you mention for the baby's cold. We do not offer prescriptions or medical counsel of any kind in the Corner, for obvious reasons.

Pieces of Stamped Embroidery.

"Do you think any one can send me some pieces of stamped embroidery? I am 15 years old and going to school. I would appreciate anything that is sent me, but I prefer articles which are useful, such as corset covers, drawers, and underskirts.

"B. B."

I suppose the desire is for pieces of work to be embroidered, although the phrasing of the request is such that I cannot be sure. However, I think it will be safe to send anything in the line B. B. indicates, and I hope not only that her wish may be gratified, but that she may be able to make some return for the kindness. I hold her address to send on application.

Hints in Cooking.

"I wonder if you could help me to get some odds and ends to make baby clothes. Any old pieces could be used, and I would appreciate them. Here are a few hints I have found good and would like to pass on: When making white sauce (it has to be made sometimes at the last minute, when there is a hurry) I rub the flour and butter on an asbestos mat to boil, then add the flour and the milk mixed to a paste, take the mat from the fire, replace the saucepan, and turn out the sauce. The melted butter, if covered, will be beautifully coated and will not need stirring. To make plates hot, put over a saucepan of boiling water for a few minutes. In making a baked meat pie, if a cup is set in the middle of the dish before the crust is put on it will be filled with gravy, and thus made the pie will require less meat. A woman showed a white apron for some dish made without meat. I often boil meat bones well, and add onions, carrots, and potatoes to the gravy. This makes a good stew and costs little. I also find that dried lentils make a nice stew.

B. S. G."

While we do not ask for clothing, it strikes me that this request differs a little from the usual appeals of that kind. Often there are small pieces of material, remnants from making clothing of different kinds, odds and ends of trimming that are of no particular use to the owner, which could serve in making or in helping to make baby clothes. We are glad to have the household hints, but I confess I do not see the advantage in making white sauce in this way over my own method. I put the butter and flour together, pour the milk upon them, and continue stirring until the sauce is thick and smooth. The whole process may be accomplished quickly and with no danger of lumping. The seasoning of salt and pepper is added when the sauce is cooked.

Runaway June

By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester

By special arrangement for this paper a photo-drama corresponding to the installments of "Runaway June" may now be seen at the leading moving picture theaters. By arrangement made with the Mutual Film Corporation it is not only possible to read "Runaway June" each week, but also afterward to see moving pictures illustrating our story.

SYNOPSIS.

June, the bride of Ned Warner, impulsively leaves her husband on their honeymoon because she begins to realize that she must be entirely dependent on him for money. She desires to be independent.

June is pursued by Gilbert Blye, a wealthy married man. She escapes from his clutches with difficulty. Ned searches distractedly for June, and, learning of Blye's designs, vows vengeance on him.

ELEVENTH EPISODE.

In the Clutch of the River Thieves.

CHAPTER I.

THERE was a wild clanging of bells on the yacht Hilarity as the sun pushed its scarlet rim up into the edge of dawn. At the foot of the landing stairs beautiful June Warner, her big, lustrous eyes widened in terror, had cast off the swift little motor tender, and the dark, handsome face of the black Vandyked man, peering over the deck rail, was distorted with rage. He shouted again his impatient commands to the officer on the quarterdeck.

Sleepy sailors were on deck now, fumbling with the davits on each side. From one swung a little covered cutter and from the other a long, narrow racer. Blye sprang to assist the sailors lowering the racer.

On the dock as the sun pushed its scarlet rim up into the edge of the dawn stood the well known and justly famous private detective, Bill Wolf, who at once called up Honoria Blye.

"Well, I got him!" came the hoarse voice of Bill Wolf. "He's on board the yacht Hilarity, and, say, with the girl!"

"Beg your pardon, sir," he said. "Don't lower the boats for a moment."

"What?" shouted Gilbert Blye.

"You infernal idiot!" yelled Orin Cunningham.

"Lower those boats!" shouted Gilbert Blye. "Wilkins, get downstairs. You can fill those boats in the water." And he looked out across the waves. The escaping beauty was rounding the point.

In the pretty apartments which Ned and June Warner had fitted up to be their nest Ned rose from the couch where he had fallen asleep with the miniature of June in his hand and recognized the rasping voice of Honoria.

"Well, we've located your darling!" And there was a shrill cackle. "She's on board the Hilarity with my husband. And the yacht is anchored outside the bay. Good morning."

Ned wasted no time. Bobbie Blethering had a stanch little boat, and Bobbie was routed out of bed immediately, yawning and wondering why the world could never be at peace. But he was ready, though it took his agitated wife, Iris, seven minutes to make him comprehend that the Hilarity was a boat. She had to suppress all her ebullient emotions to do it, but she relieved herself somewhat by telephoning June's mother and father at their beautiful home in Bronxport.

As the sun pushed its scarlet rim up into the edge of the dawn and stared in pleased surprise at the beautiful girl who was speeding toward the marshy shore a low, gray skiff with a portable motor attached to its stern skipped in and out of the dimness among the black hulls at the river's edge. In the skiff were three rough looking men and a roughly dressed woman, who sat huddled in the bow. All four were silent, but their furtive eyes roved constantly over every vessel around which they crept. In the bottom of the boat were a huge bundle of celery and a loosely piled tarpaulin.

Suddenly the woman leaned forward and touched the nearest man on the knee. He was a big, raw-boned man with a bronzed face and a deep scar on his chin. The woman pointed, and the man turned his evil eyes in that direction. Surrounded by black coal barges was a shining houseboat with brass rails, mahogany cabin and all the fittings and appointments which extravagance could devise.

The man at the stern, a lean, wiry fellow with a hooked nose and a lean jaw which ended in a big knob on each cheek, slowed down the engine until it was noiseless. They completely circled the two adjoining docks before they came back to the slip where coal barges lay; then the skiff glided in beneath the overhang of the barges, and the big man with the scar on his chin knocked on the hull. No noise from within. The man picked up a club and pounded. No stirring.

There was not a living creature in sight except these four early morning birds of prey.

"All right, Babe," growled the man with the scar on his chin.

The woman looked up at the houseboat as if she were estimating for herself its plan, arrangement and all the mysteries which it might contain. She slowly rose and cast aside her shawl. She had been beautiful once. She still bore traces of it, would have shown more traces had she not been unkempt and in frowsy clothing.

"It's a wonder Jake wouldn't take a chance on the break-in once in awhile," she complained. "He's as right on as teet as I am."

"But I ain't so quick in the head," hastily complimented Jake.

The woman shrugged her shoulders and put her roughly shod foot into the big man's outstretched palm. He raised slowly and lifted the woman straight up so that she could draw herself on board.

She disappeared. The three men sat silent.

The lean Jake stepped forward promptly and climbed up over the big man's back, perfectly contented now that he knew the silken hung houseboat to be empty. The third man with little patches of half formed beard on his face took the rudder; then the huge Ben jumped up, caught the deck rail and drew himself upward.

For the hundredth time Ned put his head out of the window. At last they were coming! He seized his coat and hat, hurried down to the street and jumped into the mechanic's seat of Bobbie Blethering's roadster before it had come to a full stop; then they turned and whirled away toward the docks. Honoria Blye, in her electric coupe, was headed for that destination too, and on the yacht Gilbert Blye was superintending with impatient energy the loading of the gasoline tanks in the two small boats.

The thoughts of all these people were bent upon the poor little runaway bride, who was at that moment skirting the marshy shore and hunting a place, no matter how desolate, in which to hide.

There was an inlet among the marshes. She ventured into it a short distance, but it led to nowhere, and she hurried out again to the open water. A small boat rounded the point, and for a moment June's eyes distended. Involuntarily she crouched.

CHAPTER II.

THE three river thieves in the exquisitely furnished houseboat worked with deft rapidity. It was the woman's swift, intuitive part to discover hiding places; the lean Jake's to discriminate in values; Big Ben's, with nippers and hammer and screwdriver, to rip off brasswork, to open drawers, to rend and tear and splinter if need be. Within an incredibly short space of time they had the skiff piled high with the richest and the best which the houseboat had contained; then they spread the tarpaulin over their plunder and disposed their bunches of celery so that the green leaves protruded in a fringe from under the edge of the tarpaulin; then the heavily laden skiff, with its four passengers and its loot, wormed its way clumsily from amid the barges, looking like an innocent farmer boat.

The sun, now a golden ball in the eastern mist, looked down upon a harborage busy with the pursuers of the little runaway bride. Henri and Marie were swishing swiftly; Ned and Bobbie and Iris were leaving the dock in Bobbie's speedy little cruiser; Honoria Blye and the well known and justly famous private detective Bill Wolf were putting out into the river in the Eagle Eye Detective agency's steam yawl, its stovepipe stack rolling black smoke and cinders and hot sparks back over the already blackening passengers; Gilbert Blye and the heavy lidded Edwards were just leaving the Hilarity in the keen little racer; Cunningham had been slow and below decks when they put off, but he followed now in the cutter. The racer and the cutter speeded straight for the point around which June had disappeared. Tommy Thomas waved a scarf after them and shouted absurd instructions to them, but Mrs. Villard stood quietly by the rail, her eyes fixed somberly on that distant point.

Slowly June raised from her crouching position. The cling of the small boat which she had sighted seemed to be fainter rather than more distinct. It was fading into the distance when she looked, and from its red stern she knew that it was not one of the Hilarity's boats. Once more she breathed a sigh of relief, but even as she did so she heard a familiar sound—the siren whistle of the Hilarity's cutter! And it was near!

Frantically now she scanned the shore. There was another inlet just ahead of her, and in desperation she steered into it. It was a narrow but distinct channel, winding about amid a tangle of shrubbery and marsh grass and stunted trees, with here and there a larger tree rising from a mound of solid earth. There were high banks presently and then a tiny island, in the center of which was a decrepit hut. June was about to step ashore when she heard the low purring of a motor. The cutter! From the sudden shut-in-ness of the sound it had entered the inlet. In terror June jumped back into the boat. The hut seemed deserted. There was no smoke rising from the chimney and no one to protect her if she were found there alone. She was away in a flash, circling the island. From the other side she saw that the channel led away into the marshes, probably to another inlet, and she had started to dart down this lonely waterway when suddenly she spied a rope trailing out into the water from under some bushes matted with marsh weeds. The whir of the motor was rapidly advancing. She could scarcely hope to escape unseen. Her wits sharpened by her peril, she steered with swift decision toward the overhanging bushes. They parted as her prow ran into them, and, bending low, she found herself shot into entire concealment. The whir of the approaching motor grew loud. Quick as a flash June reached for the telltale rope which had betrayed this hiding place and drew it under cover of the matted bushes.

Louder and lauder grew the whir. It was just upon her. With her heart beating so that her ears were full of the sound of it June peered out through her leafy screen. Orin Cunningham! He circled the island in his swift little cutter, his keen eyes searching everywhere. He passed within ten feet of her! She held her breath lest he might hear it, and once, as his eyes turned full in her direction and she thought he had certainly detected her hiding place, she almost screamed.

He passed on, however, and, running his light little boat ashore, stepped out and went up to the hut, the only possible place of concealment on the island. June held a swift debate with herself. Should she leave her concealment and, running her motor at its quietest speed, slip away down that other channel while Cunningham was in the hut? That debate was settled in an instant, for up the other channel slipped the swift little speed boat carrying Edwards and Gilbert Blye! Blye's dark, handsome face was without its usual suave smile, and it wore a look of concern as, making a quick landing, he hurried up to the hut, followed by the plodding Edwards.

It seemed ages before they came away, and they had apparently made a thorough search, for they even stooped down as they came outside to peer under the stilted foundation amid the rubbish which had accumulated there. When they had gone away June remained for a long time in her hiding place, but finally she stepped from her boat and crept from her concealment. Thirst, inspired by the fever of her excitement, had driven her forth in search of drinkable water.

There was a cask of water in the hut, brackish and stale, but it was water, and she drank of it from a rusty old tin cup which hung to it. She had just set down the cup when her quick ears detected a low, steady hum. She stepped to the door, ready to make a dash for her boat, but as she set her foot upon the threshold she saw the dark gray prow of a skiff protruding its point around the bend of the lower channel! She darted back out of sight and, looking through a crack in the board wall, saw in the skiff three rough looking men and a rough looking woman. The skiff rode low in the water, and from under its tarpaulin there flaunted a fringe of celery leaves.

June laughed in relief. It was good to see human beings who were not in pursuit of her, who would befriend and protect her, and she had almost run down to meet them when suddenly loud, angry voices came from the frail little craft. There was a bitter quarrel, in which the woman took a shrill part, and as the boat landed the woman jumped out and stooped swiftly. The man with the scraggly mustache and the scattered tufts of beard on his face jumped ashore, cursing. The woman raised up swiftly and, with a shriek like a cat, jumped for the man with a long knife glittering in her hand. The knife flashed down, and the man staggered back. The gleaming blade was raised again, but before it could descend again the huge, rawboned man, who had jumped from the boat, caught the woman's arm.

June saw no more. She ran wildly around the little hut, looking vainly for some place of concealment. A rusty stove, a rickety table, some rude benches, two straw pallets—that was all. There was no other room, not even a cupboard. In the ceiling June's frantically roving eyes found a trapdoor, one of its boards loose. On the wooden wall beneath it was a series of cross sticks, and without hesitation June ran up this rude ladder, shoved the trapdoor aside and scrambled into the attic.

There were voices below. The quarrel, whatever it had been about, had evidently been settled, for the woman was laughing, and so was the big, rawboned man. June peered down through a crack in the ceiling boards. These two and the lean fellow with the hook nose were loaded with all they could carry. The big man with the scar on his chin dropped his heavy bags on the floor with a clatter, and the brass stopcock of a washbasin rolled out and struck against the stove. The woman carried silks and fine linens in her bundles, and the lean little fellow was loaded with silverware. As they deposited their burdens on the floor the other man came in and sat heavily on a bench.

"Well, Babe, you sliced me, all right," he grinned, and, throwing off his coat, he loosened his shirt at the neck and bared his left shoulder. There was an ugly wound near his armpit, and it was bleeding profusely.

The woman made a laughing reply, and after the people exhibited different articles of jewelry, clothing, etc., they started cooking a meal.

The men were at the table an incredibly short time. They gulped their food, and then, tired and sleepy, they lay down on straw pallets for a few minutes of honest rest, while the cold and starved little runaway bride in the attic looked down with ravenous eyes on what they had left. The odor of the hot coffee made her feel faint. Only terror kept her on the alert.

CHAPTER III.

THE woman below was acting strangely as she cleared away the remains of the breakfast and washed the dishes. From time to time she passed near her husband, bending over slightly, and finally she stopped beside him and listened to his breathing, but she shook her head and went away. Big Ben was quite plainly fast asleep, sprawled in complete relaxation, while lean Jake was snoring with great energy. The woman stopped and touched her husband's shoulder. He moved slightly, and she went back to her dishes. The next time she came he did not even twitch at the touch, and with deft fingers she reached into his vest pocket and extracted a little chamois bag!

So that was how one woman solved her money problem, and her burning eyes told with what bitterness she had resorted to this bold step. Of more value than her husband, even in his low profession, she was still his supine inferior in the rights of possession. What she had was a gift from him, and, as June had heard him put it himself, he gave her what was good for her.

The woman! She was coming up the ladder! The fugitive hidden in the attic was stunned by this unexpected action.

"Babe!" Flub stirred uneasily. "Oh, Babe!"

The woman was down the ladder like a cat.

"What?"

No answer. The man was still sound asleep. The woman stood over him for awhile, to make sure of this, and started for the ladder again. Halfway across the room she hesitated, turned, walked swiftly to the end of the hut and hid the little chamois bag beneath a loose stone behind the stove.

She was putting away the last of the dishes when suddenly she stopped, turned, and a slow smile spread upon her lips. Her eyes burned with a somber fire. She went over to Big Ben and deftly secured a long, slender cigarette holder. She crossed swiftly to her husband and inserted the holder in his top vest pocket, so that its shining tip protruded. The water cask stood by Big Ben's head. With a gleam in her eye the woman went over, filled the rusty tin cup and deliberately poured a fourth of its contents over Big Ben's face.

"Excuse me," she laughed as he sat up, startled, and with the same motion jerked a revolver from his pocket.

"You done it o' purpose," he speculated, chuckling. "Think so?" she dimpled.

Big Ben's eyes brightened.

"Flub'd sell it." And she glanced across at the sleeping man with vindictive hatred.

"Take it," urged Big Ben, rising. "If Flub sells it tell me." He picked up the shawl and clumsily threw it around the woman's shoulders. She looked down at the shawl and toyed with its long, delicate fringe. She took it off slowly and gave it back to the man.

"Nothing doing," she sadly decided; then she slowly turned and looked at her husband and walked away. There was a softening in Big Ben's eyes as she walked away, and then he, too, glanced at the sleeping Flub. He strolled to the door and came back. Suddenly he stopped. The gleam of something yellow had caught his gaze. He walked close and bent low. He pulled the cigarette holder out far enough to identify it and pushed it back; then he gave the sleeper a kick.

Flub sprang up, dazed.

"What's that?"

"I said get up, you thief!" roared Big Ben as lean Jake abruptly stopped snoring and jumped up. He was halfway to the ladder before he realized that this was not a raid, and June, divining his intention, rose swiftly and put her hands on the loose clapboards of the roof. Ben jerked the cigarette holder from Flub's pocket. "You stole it!"

"Ah, no, Ben!" protested the woman. "I wasn't out of the house five minutes. Flub was asleep when I went out, and he was asleep when I come back."

Flub seemed dazed by the accusation; but suddenly he let out a yell. Mechanically he had reached in his vest pocket, as was his habit when the chamois bag was there, and had discovered his loss.

"My diamond!" he yelled. "It's gone!" And his face turned white as he looked around the tense group. Slowly comprehension came to him. "You framed me!" he suddenly shouted, pointing a trembling finger at Big Ben. "You copped my diamond; then you planted this cigarette holder so you could"—

A knife gleamed in Flub's hand, and he slashed savagely at his onrushing opponent. With a roar of rage Big Ben caught the descending wrist, wrested the weapon from it and plunged it to the hilt in Flub's breast!

There was a piercing shriek from the attic and a tearing of boards. The woman, quick of mind as she was of body, was the first to comprehend what that might mean. She sprang to the ladder, but as she went she cast a backward glance at the lifeless man on the floor. There was no shudder in her, only cold triumph.

"It's a girl! She's on the roof!" cried the woman as she gained the attic.

Lean Jake was the first out of the door and Big Ben just after him. They rounded the corner of the hut just in time to see June jump from the roof and dart for her boat. It was the woman who caught her.

"Let me go!" implored June. "I won't tell!"

Those last three words would seal her fate in the mind of any murderous thief. Big Ben had caught her roughly by the arm, and now he looked inquiringly at the others.

"Drown her," advised Lean Jake, who was more full of fear than a thief should be. "She knows too much."

All three of them looked at the water. It spread far into the marshes, and it held its secrets well and long. Without a word Big Ben swung June up in his arms and started with her to the water's edge, while she uttered shriek upon shriek.

A shot and then another answered June's piercing shrieks, and down the channel from the inlet swiftly sped the little cutter, with Orin Cunningham at the wheel, revolver in hand!

"Hands up!" yelled a strong voice, and another shot startled the air of the marshes. Gilbert Blye! He stood up in his racer, and over the wheel bent heavy Edwards, his eyes narrowed and his thick lips firmly set.

Big Ben had dropped June at the first shot and had reached for his revolver. Lean Jake had dropped flat on the ground behind a bowlder, but before Big Ben could return the fire of the oncoming boats from the Hilarity he was confused by a shot from another quarter, and through the reeds of the marsh there pushed a narrow steel gray motorboat, in which stood a tall man with a soft hat and a loosely knotted cravat.

A stranger! And he was nearer to the helpless June than her pursuers from the Hilarity! She ran toward him like a deer, and as his driver drew close inshore June sprang into the boat.

"Hurry!" she cried. "Please hurry!"

The man, evidently an artist, from the canvases and folding easel in his boat, followed her terrified gaze as she glanced back, her terror divided between the murderers on the island and the men in the boats. The artist lowered June to a seat beside him, and, with a word to the driver, they darted away toward the channel. A shot whizzed over their heads as they started, and shot after shot resounded from the upper channel.

The man with the white mustache paid no attention to Big Ben as he steered his swift little cutter around the island and struck into the lower channel after the artist and the beautiful young girl who had escaped from the attic. Nor did the man with the black Vandyke waste any time upon the astonished thieves as his boat, too, whizzed around the curve. Lean Jake raised up from behind his bowlder as the boat shot by, and the three—Babe, Big Ben and Jake—looked at each other in bewilderment. Another boat came swishing down past the island. It was driven by a blazing eyed little chauffeur with a tiny mustache, and he was shouting at the top of his voice. Behind him sat stiffly a woman with high cheek bones and a wilderness of gums, and she, too, was shouting:

"Voila! Voila! Voila!"

Another boat! In it were two men and a woman, the driver a plump faced little man with deep concern upon his brow, the woman hysterical and the other man with his teeth and fists clinched.

For ten minutes Babe and Big Ben and Lean Jake stood there in dumb stupefaction, waiting for another boat.

Some Jinx And a Few Mascots of Ga. Home Folks

Dr. Burch won't begin any important work on a Friday and he carries a rabbit's foot all the time.

Dr. Crawford says the number 7 causes him to think hard when it figures in his personal matters, and cites the fact that in Bible times there were 7 years of plenty, 7 years of famine, 7 golden candles that burned before the altar of the Lord, Jacob had to wait 7 years for his wife and Christ stayed 7 hours on the cross. And yet the doctor denies that he is superstitious.

Love Dozier says that if you plant Irish potatoes after the full of the moon they will go to vines. Plant just before the full moon.

Cleve Ward says if he has a good dream he will surely tell it before breakfast so it may come true. If he has a bad dream he will wait until after breakfast so it will not come true.

Colonel T. H. Remsen says if anybody puts his foot on his chair in a game of cards he will lose and always quits the game unless the offender desists.

Alec Willingham, before he turns backward in a road for something he has forgotten, will make a cross on the ground with his foot and spit in it to offset bad luck.

Port Bentley will do this, too.

Moseley Lane Ward says when a person is very sick and a screech owl alights on any part of the house death is apt to follow. Mr. Ward also says he plants corn on the increase of the moon and not on its wane.

Nonie Albea says he frequently spills salt and has bad luck, but he doesn't know whether spilling the salt causes the bad luck or not. He will try throwing some over his left shoulder next time.

Tech Glaze says if a horse balks and you get a stone and tap three times under his left fore foot, the horse will go on, and he says he can make a screech owl stop screeching by turning his pocket wrong side out.

Reid Nash: "If a rabbit runs across the road in front of your horse when you are fox hunting you might as well call your dogs off and come home."

Who Can Beat J. Sharp's Hog?

OUR good friend, John O. Sharp, who lives on Route No. 4 from Temple, was in to see us this week and tells of a fine hog he slaughtered on Wednesday, February 24th, which weighed net 620 pounds.

John says he has tried to raise the biggest hog in the county and thinks he has succeeded this time. He offered $10 in gold last year to any one who would beat him, but no one claimed it. This hog was just a little over two years old.

Hurrah for John O. Sharp and his big hog.—Carrollton (Ga.) Times.

"JEDGE, me an' Sam kalkilate we'ze gwine to de dance down at Frog-eye's," explained Oscar White, who accused Samuel Ball of stealing ten dollars. "But Sam wuz broke. So I 'gree ter put up de money in disser way: I say I give Sam ten dollahs so's he kin flash de bills erroun' an' show folks he got all de coin he want. I say he kin *spen' as much as fo' bits, pervidin' he gimme de change. But 'bout time dis Sam Ball git in de do,' he mek er break fo' de gals an' I ain't seed him till yet, nor I aint seed mah ten dollahs neither."

Sam admitted the impeachment, and furthermore confessed that of the ten dollars not one penny was left. Misery crept over Oscar White's sable features.

"I knowed it!" he moaned. "I knowed it! Mought as well er kissed dat ten goo'bye when I had it. Dat's whar I made mah mistek, when I let dat Ball man git his eye on it!"

"Rather, Oscar," suggested the recorder, as he bound over Samuel, "the mistake lay in not keeping your eye on the Ball!"

A SMALL, chunky negro stood wearily before the bench. Every now and then he would sag against the policeman and have to be straightened, when he would sway gently in the opposite direction and bring up against a lawyer.

"Drunk and disorderly, your honor," said the officer. "We found him early this morning lying in the middle of Rosebud Lane with his coat and vest hung up on the fence and his shoes under the porch. He's been drunk ever since. Can't even tell his name."

"What's your name, boy?" said the judge.

The darky took his head off the policeman's shoulder and began to rock slowly toward the lawyer. "I-z-z-z-z-z" he murmured, and placidly went to sleep against the attorney's stomach.

"Where did you get your liquor, boy? Tell us about it!" said the policeman, shaking him roughly.

The kinky head began to move toward the bluecoat again, the negro to speak.

"C'ibratin' Sain' Pa'rick' day," he mumbled. "I'se Ir'sh nigger—I-z-z-z-z-z"

"Come, come, wake up, what's your name?"

"Name's Iz-z-z-y-doah Roze-stein," yawned the negro. "Ir'sh nigger—Sain' Pa'rick—Hoo-ray!"

"$10.75 for you, Isadore," said the recorder. "You may be Irish, but your name is a long way from Tipperary."

TWENTY-SIX burheads, scions of the respective houses of Jackson and Johnson, crowded forward in the court room to testify regarding the rucus at the home of Mr. Joe Jackson and Mrs. Sallie Jackson, nee Johnson.

Joe was the first witness. Three years ago, he said, he wed the fair Sallie, "er lakly-lookin' high yaller," in the belief that she was the fairest blossom in all Darktown, only to find after the honeymoon that "catamounts wuz kittens beside her."

"When she git inter er tantrum, she grab er axe," stated Joe, "an' dat's jes' de way hit wuz Sadday night. But wussen dat, she git all her kinfolks ter help her. Dar wuz Randall Johnsing an' Sasfras Johnsing an' Liza Lou Johnsing an' Carrie Johnsing an' er whole passel er mo' Johnsings an' dey all come down tergedder on mah house er hollerin' an' er stompin' an' er cyarvin' wid dere razzurs. De Johnsings had dere razzurs an' dere axes, an' de Jacksons had bricks an' knives. An' fo' quite er spell we fit up an' down an' roun' an' roun', twell de p'licemens come wid two pat-rol wagons."

"That's true, your honor," said the officer, "so far as the fight goes, anyway. But the funny part of it is that not one nigger was hurt particularly, while the house was wrecked. I have a bill here from the owner for $150 damages, including six broken window panes, plastering knocked out of the ceiling of every room in the house, three smashed doors and a caved-in porch, not to mention pieces of furniture scattered all over the joint."

Whereupon the recorder announced that the families Jackson and Johnson would have a little reunion in East Atlanta, in the course of which they could work off surplus steam in the study of geology in its relation to the roads of Fulton county.

"Why did you steal this woman's fish, Sampson?" asked the recorder.

"Steal, jedge? I ain't steal no fish!" swore Sampson, and mingled grief and indignation shot through his tones. "Naw, suh! Dar dey wuz layin' lak dey wuz ready to be et, an' dar wuz me hongry an' lonesome. I jes' tuk 'em, jedge. I ain't know dey B'LONG ter nobody!"

"OFFICER," said the judge, "You look exceedingly well-fed this morning, and yet there is something about you—a sort of melancholy, an eerie sadness as it were—well, you get me, don't you?"

Call Officer Tom Watson smiled a trifle mournfully.

"Judge," said he, "I understand. You see, I was thinking. I am well-fed, I never felt so good in my life, and yet—and yet—there is remorse in my heart—forgotten days, Memphis blues, and all that, you know."

"Why these regrets, officer?" inquired his honor.

"I was thinking about Madge, judge—" The court stenographer groaned.

"Here's that goat buttin' in again," he murmured.

"We had to kill Madge, your honor," continued Officer Watson, glaring at the stenographer. "She was a good goat and all that, but we killed her. We also barbecued her and ate her. Ah, she was a very good goat indeed! Those cutlets! Fried in yams—with gravy—!"

"Why the slaughter?" from the stenographer.

"She ate too much," said Officer Watson. "It was all right so long as she confined herself to bricks and bicycles, but one day last week she began on the plumbing. She ate fourteen inches of piping, and when I turned on the water to take a bath, the house was flooded. We very nearly drowned. Madge was so heavy with iron inside her that she sank to the bottom. I saved her life by dangling a gas range before her nose. She came right up to the bait and I drew her to safety, although it cost us a leg off the stove. But we killed her the next day, and I broke two teeth on a tack concealed in the dark meat."

The awed silence that followed was a tribute to the memory of Madge and the veracity of Officer Watson.

Gin Is Accused Of Sucking Eggs

THE gin at the Farmers Oil Mill at Canon has been accused of doing a doggish trick with the eggs brought there on cotton wagons. Last Friday a farmer carried a bale of cotton to the gin to be ginned. He drove on the scales and put the suction outfit to work to get his cotton over into the gin. He had forgotten about his two dozen eggs which he had brought along. When he turned to look for his eggs he found them gone. He turned to the ginner and said, "I see that your gin sucks eggs. Bad Gin."—Lavonia (Ga.), Times.

Wedding Crop off in Lincoln

LINCOLNTON, Ga.—Fewer weddings have occurred among the white folks of Lincoln county during January and February than was ever shown for the same two months on the books of the ordinary where the licenses are recorded. Very few occurred the whole of last year. People are gradually quitting the marrying habit.

What's the trouble?

Apparently it does not lie with the girls. They are as pretty as ever and the Lord knows some of them are willing enough. On the other hand there are plenty of men available. Perhaps, marrying is just playing out. Perhaps the divorce output in the cities serves a warning. Perhaps in a few years there will be no such institution as marriages except for the aged and infirm.

Lazy Husbands, Avoid Indiana!

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Residents of New Albany were notified yesterday that a bill in the Indiana legislature known as the Lazy Husband Bill has passed both houses and has been sent to the governor for his signature. The proposed law makes failure of a husband to support his wife and children a misdemeanor and authorizes the board of county commissioners to put them to work when convicted of neglect of family, the earnings to be paid to the wife and family.

The purpose of the law is to place in the hands of the proper authorities a club to hold over the heads of indolent men.

Jail for You If You Don't Think This Dog Story Is True

Sheriff Says Dog Brings Up Cows Giving Milk or Not on Instructions. Too Much Carolina Cortin'.

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—J. F. Jamison, who lives near Gaffney, has a collie dog which is a most remarkable animal. His master sends him to the pasture with instructions to bring up only the cows which are giving milk, and Nip will confine himself strictly to those instructions, and then Mr. Jamison will tell him to bring all the cows, and he will come driving them all to the barn. In addition to this, when milking is in progress Nip will seize the calf around the neck with his paws and hold it off while the cow is being milked. Now the above information was obtained not directly from Mr. Jamison, but from Sheriff Thomas, who is a truthful man, and anyone who doubts the statement will be liable to arrest as soon as he may put his foot into Cherokee county.

To Much "Cortin" For Carolinian

A CITIZEN of North Carolina who is annoyed by too much "cortin'" in his section, has sent his representative in the legislature suggestions for a law to prohibit same. The Charlotte Observer prints the letter to the representative which is as follows:

"Any man that is married or woman caught cortin, writing letters or riding on the same horse behind other men's wives, or walking huged up with some other man's wife, it ought to be a fine of five hundred dollars and 18 months on the chaingang. As this is becoming common for boys and girls to marry and leave their wife or husband go cortin other parties, so we ask a law to be passed and any man going with a man's wife after she is parted without the consent of the husband to make it five hundred dollars fine on the party that it does and harbors her or either of the above, and make it two years in the state prison and no less.

Cow Law Holds Interest In Lyons

LYONS, Ga.—No longer will the war, the tariff, prohibition or any other perplexing question have the attention of Lyons folk. At least all these questions of public concern will take a rest for the next thirty days. They have all been sidetracked until a more important issue has been settled by the sovereign voters of the Toombs county capital. The issue to be fought out and settled at the ballot box is shall Brindy continue to roam the streets or shall she be retired to the cowlot or pasture?

At the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday night a petition was presented numerously signed by the Woman's Civic league and others asking that an election be called to vote on the question as to what shall be done with Brindy and her abnormal appetite for mule feed in the rear end of the farm wagons. The petition was acted upon favorably and the election called. So for the next thirty days "Cow or no Cow" will occupy the attention of local statesmen and others.

Uncle Fayette Started the War

UNCLE FAYETTE GOLDMAN is a cutter. He fired the first shot in an engagement in the Civil war because his regiment came suddenly so close upon the Yankees they could see them bat their eyes. Under the impulse of self-defense Uncle Fayette whirled his old walloper around in action and let the Yanks have one barrel before the command of "Fire" was given. He was called before the colonel to explain.

Uncle Fayette told the colonel he was about the same with Yankees as he was with snakes.

"I most generally kills 'em where ever I sees 'em," said Uncle Fayette.—From the Lincolnton (Ga.) Journal.

Spendthrift Wives Cause of Divorce Here, Says Lawyer

"I'm in Favor of Divorces," Says Lawyer Who Gets Them. "If Man and Wife Can't Agree Why Should They Live Together?"

CAUSES of divorce in Atlanta are:

2—Willingness of ministers to marry anyone, no matter how young or how unfit.

3—Lax marriage laws, which permit anyone to get a license.

These three reasons for divorce were given last week by John Y. Smith, attorney, who has tried numerous divorce suits in Fulton county courts. In the following interview he looks at divorce from the "inside," from the lawyers' point of view.

"I wish to begin," he said, "by pointing out that divorce is not as frequent here as everyone thinks it is. Not over 175 absolute divorces are granted yearly in Atlanta to white people. When you consider our population and the number of marriages, that is not a great many. In fact, marriage is by far our most successful institution.

"But extravagance is a big rock in the road. Women crave pretty clothes. It looks as though the God Almighty constructed them so they can't help it. I don't believe they can. It's just an inborn instinct. But it does cause about as many divorces as any other one thing.

The man makes, say from $100 to $125 a month; and the girl, without stopping to think how few luxuries that will buy, rushes into marriage, believing that she will be radiantly happy. She finds out soon that she can't have the things she wants, and she isn't radiantly happy at all. Later on she sees some other wife with a more fortunate husband and she becomes wretchedly miserable. Then a divorce suit is filed.

"The second reason is the willingness of many ministers to marry anybody. I don't mean to make this charge against all ministers, but it's a fact that the carelessness of some is adding all the time to the number of divorces.

"The third reason is the failure of our state laws to provide any reasonable or safe method of issuing marriage licenses. Anyone with the license fee can go to the ordinary and get a license. He can make any representation he wants to as to his age or the bride's age. It's all the same, he gets the license.

"But I am absolutely in favor of divorce. If a man and a woman can't agree, why should they live together? There's no state or moral law that can justly keep them in the wifely and the husbandly relation. There's nothing for them to do except separate.

"As a rule the divorce suit is filed by the wife, and the husband is only too glad to see her petition granted."

Donald Fudge's Squab Farm Is a New Georgia Industry

Donald Fudge began eight months ago with five pairs of Red Carneaux pigeons, and today he has 300 pairs.

He has made a close study of the business, and is convinced raising pigeons is one of the coming industries. The game laws in every state make it impossible for partridges to be served at banquets, and the squab is beginning to be looked on as the only logical substitute.

Donald Fudge is sure that the south, because of climatic and other conditions, is the best place to raise these birds. The pigeon is hardy, prolific, and needs little care, except pure food and water.

He believes that raising pigeons is a profitable industry. One pair, in a year, will produce nine pairs of squabs. A dozen squabs, at the age of three to four weeks, will average ten to twelve pounds in weight. At present, the price paid in New York for squabs is $5 a dozen.

According to closest calculations, one pair of pigeons in a year will yield a profit of at least $1 net; and one man, on three acres of land, can tend 5,000 pairs of pigeons and make a profit of $5,000 to $8,000.

The average life of pigeons as a profit maker is ten years. They live much longer, but after they pass this age the degree of prolification decreases. Once mated, it is ordinarily a lifetime contract with pigeons; however, they are not unknown to jealousies and the divorce court. The birds take turn about at setting on the eggs and feeding the young. The hen, which sets on the eggs throughout the night and early morning, is regularly relieved by the cock, which goes on duty about 10 o'clock and comes off late in the afternoon. Frequently before one pair of squabs is old enough to open their eyes, the industrious parents are busy with another nest, and before pair number 1 is of a flying age pair number 2 is well on the way.

Although all of Mr. Fudge's birds are of registered stock, and considerably larger and of superior plumpness and savor to the common variety, he finds that some are more prolific by nature than others. By making a careful record of each pair, he intends to retain only those that are most valuable.

The Red Carneaux, of which species he has more than 200, is possibly the most prolific of all pigeons, although both the Yellow Carneaux and White King are far superior to the common variety. The fact that physicians are beginning more and more to prescribe these squabs is indicative of their value.

Mr. Fudge has set his ambition at the 5,000 pair mark. He asserts that, with the number he now has, he will breed these birds within three years. His farm as it stands affords an interesting sight for persons who take stock in such things, and that its possibilities are not overestimated is the belief of experts.

Lion Tamer Plays Daniel And He Gets By With It

HOW many of us have read the Biblical story of "Daniel in the lions' den" and understood the thought embodied in it. Animal trainers throughout the world are known as the best students of this wonderful story, for they have found that no matter what progress they make with the king of beasts the story of "Daniel in the lions' den" forms the basic principle to follow.

No better illustration of this can be had than an incident which took place at the winter quarters of Captain Sheesley's shows, just a few weeks ago. "Lewis," one of the most ferocious of a group of ten lions, was in the arena, looking as peaceful as a lamb, when Trainer Wilmouth entered the cage to go through the usual routine. As Wilmouth called to "Lewis" to mount the pedestal the lion let out an angry growl that could be heard for blocks away. Wilmouth, with pistol and prod in hand, went at the beast, firing his revolver to scare the animal into submission, but all to no avail.

"Lewis" growled, and running around the cage in a fury, frequently attempted to jump at Wilmouth, the trainer, who with the aid of his prod and pistol, was able to keep the beast at a distance. As this unexpected incident was going on, Manager Rollins, of the animal department, saw that Trainer Wilmouth was in a serious predicament. Mr. Rollins looked on, wondering what to do when the happy thought of the story of "Daniel in the lions' den" came to him.

Rollins cried out, "Drop your prod, throw your pistol away, look the beast in the face, and don't show fear; show friendship. Remember 'Daniel in the lions' den;' you know it's the only way."

Wilmouth did as Rollins bid him, and in less than a few minutes the beast was accepting peacefully the hand stroke of the trainer.—Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.

Gourd-Shaped Egg Is Laid at Waycross

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 20.—An egg shaped like a gourd is being exhibited today by W. H. Yerby, attracting much attention. The egg was found in a nest at his home here. The egg proper is about the size of a pigeon egg, with a curving stem about an inch and a half long. The freak egg is from a Rhode Island Red hen, and is one of the queerest looking specimens of hen fruit seen in Waycross in some time.

PETER RABBIT POSING FOR EASTER

Henry Whittier Frees, Who Made These Pictures, Tells How Peter Rabbit Was Induced to Pose

THESE Easter pictures of live rabbits were made by Henry Whittier Frees, of Rogersford, Pa.

"A white rabbit," he says, "is comparatively easy to photograph, providing you know how to handle animals so that they do not fear you or are unduly excited by your presence. This of course applies to poses of the little animals sitting on all four feet. To take him sitting erect with his forepaws elevated in the air is not quite so easy.

"Although engaged in animal photography for a number of years, it was not until recently that I was enabled to picture these little models sitting in an upright position. My success in this respect is not due to any hypnotic influence as some people suppose, but merely the exercise of great patience and invariable kindness.

"If a rabbit's attention is once engaged there is very little likelihood of his moving during the short time of exposure. There is one exception, however, and that is his ears. These are his only means of expression and he uses them to voice all his emotions. If he is somewhat doubtful of your good intentions he glues them tightly down along the back of his neck. If he catches the odor of a bit of celery or carrot he raises them aloft in such a rigid fashion that they fairly quiver with expectation. And the invariable accompaniment of his different ear movements is the constant 'wobble, wobble' of his nose.

"The slightest movement of his long tapering ears of course blurs the resultant negative. Strange as it may appear however, the constant 'wobble' of his nose does not prevent the making of a good sharp negative.

"One of the lesser drawbacks of rabbit photography is the fact that an innocent looking bunny will not hesitate a moment to bite your finger if the mood so strikes him. Possibly his lack of good manners is due to the use of a stalk of celery to attract his attention. The odor of the celery clings to the fingers and he is hardly to be censured for not having the necessary intelligence to discriminate which is the celery and which is the finger.

"The more you study Peter Rabbit and his cute little sister, Molly, the more delightful they become. The soft, downy coats, the pink eyes, rivalling jewels in their beautiful luster, and their constant air of helpless innocence, endear them to the true lover of animals.

"Occasionally they display some very amusing traits of character worthy of Little Tommy himself. One day I was engaged in my studio posing several rabbits under a vase full of lilies-of-the-valley. They behaved beautifully as long as I faced them, never so much as giving an upward look at the tempting sprays overhead.

"Finally I turned about to make some adjustments to the camera which occupied several minutes. When I looked back the three innocent little bunnies were calmly chewing the last few stems of what was once a beautiful bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley."

Judge Gets Bowl of Pot-Liquor at a Fashionable Hotel

Negro With No 17 Feet Is a Convict in Hall County. Trained Rooster Is Owned at Juliette, Ga. Stones of Queer Appearance Found

A COUNTY ORDINARY who ordered pot-liquor at a fashionable hotel—and got it—a negro convict with a No. 17 foot, a trained rooster which plays tricks at its owner's bidding, and the discovery of queer stones which closely resemble bits of ice, make up some of the odd stories last week from Journal correspondents.

Judge James R. George, ordinary of DeKalb county for years and likely to stay on the job for several decades yet, is the pot-liquor gourmand of the story.

"The old-fashioned country eating for me," quoth the ordinary, discussing bills of fare. "I had them all shocked the other day. We were at a hotel where the menu card had a list of fancy stuff as long as your arm. They didn't look good to me.

"'Waiter,' I said, 'got any pot-liquor?'

"'We sho' has, boss,' said the waiter, with a grin.

"'Bring me a bowl of it, a big bowl, with a good-sized hunk of corn bread,' said I.

"Then I started in on that pot-liquor, and I didn't leave a drop. The pot-liquor gave me a hankering for turnip greens, had I got them, with a slab of side-meat as big as your hand and a quart or two of butter milk. When I finished that I felt like I'd really eaten something."

"Me, me," said one of the crowd. "Judge, where do you reckon I could find some pot-liquor right now?"

Has Brobdignagian Foot

THE convict with the Brobdignagian foot is at work in the Hall county chaingang. His size of footwear is not a part of the regular chaingang equipment, so a special order was placed with a manufacturer, and a pair of No. 17 shoes are now on exhibition in a Gainesville show window, to be delivered this week to the prisoner.

The shoes are so big and heavy that the boss of the gang says he will use their wearer to pack down the new-built roads and save the county the expense of running the steam roller.

Rooster Will Chase a Dog

WILL ROGERS, of Juliette, Ga., is the proud owner of the trained rooster which has excited the interest of every chicken fancier and the envy of every negro in Monroe county.

The rooster, a full-grown game, has been trained to jump over a chair, hop to a table, chase the dog and the cat, crow to order, and perform other stunts when Mr. Rogers gives the signal.

The performing bird is kept under lock and key at night, but several attempts have been made to steal it. Mr. Rogers wouldn't trade it for the most expensive blooded chicken that ever came off a poultry farm.

Queer Stones at Juliette

MR. WILLIAMS, of Juliette, is exhibiting to Monroe county citizens the most remarkable freaks in stone ever seen by amateur geologists of that section. In one of them all the colors of the rainbow can be seen, and if broken into bits the colors all appear in the smallest particles. Another resembles a bit of ice, being as clear and white. Mr. Williams has quite a remarkable collection of Georgia stones, which has attracted wide attention.

Catfish Swallowed a Ring

THE story of the catfish which swallowed a ring has come to life again, this time in Juliette, Ga. A cook in the household of Mrs. R. L. Williams was carving the catfish for dinner when she discovered a diamond ring, apparently worth several hundred dollars.

Some years ago a citizen of Juliette, who has since moved away, dropped such a ring in the Ocmulgee river while fishing. Mrs. Williams is holding the jewel pending investigation, identification and establishment of property rights.

Negro, 127 Years Old, Dies

THE past few months have been marked by a strange fatality among negroes more than 100 years of age, a score or two of black centenarians having passed away recently. The latest is Rachael Scandrick, of Orchard Hill, near Griffin, who died Friday. Rachael claimed to have been born in 1787, and therefore to have reached 128 years. Scandrick, despite his feminine name, was the father of five sons, one of whom died in Atlanta at the age of 100. The others are in their nineties. The old man fell dead while at work in his yard.

The Man Who Never Learned How to Spend

"THE man who never learned to spend."

The title fits the case of Edward J. Halley, whose money has just been parceled out by the civil court of appeals in Jackson, Miss.

Halley and his mother, Mrs. J. W. Madden, for years kept a grocery store on the east side of Main street, a few doors from Beale avenue, in Memphis, Tenn.

Both slaved by day, and lived in mean apartments over the store. They seemed to have no more than the bare needs of life, and Halley himself thought this labor and mean living a necessity. But bit by bit his mother was accumulating money and hiding it away. While they worked long hours and habit, like an iron fist, was forcing him into rules of miserliness, she was gathering a fortune.

Halley had forgotten how to spend when his mother died in 1909, and gold, silver and currency to the amount of $240,000 was found under carpets, behind picture frames, in brick walls, and in cubby holes. Some of the currency had been out of circulation more than half a century, and bore the signature of Secretary of State Spinner, who served under President Lincoln. Many of the gold coins were so old that they were worth a premium.

Halley, who was then pushing middle-age, decided he would go to Europe, would learn to spend, to live, to forget the cramped, miserly life of the little store, where every penny had been counted. Until now his whole existence had been confined to the store. To him it was the sum total; and, now, like a man setting out for a new world, he was going on a long journey—a voyage of adventure to learn how money is spent and what it will buy.

It's a queer study in character—the ending of that voyage. It's the text of a sermon on habit. For the conclusion of the journey was right back at the little store in Memphis. Europe meant nothing to Edward J. Halley, spending money was a thing he could never learn, life as other people with money live it, was an incomprehensible thing to him.

Habit had ground into him simplicity in its barest, most meager form. Life meant to him living with a kindly, open heart; living in charity toward all his neighbors, but spending next to nothing.

He rented a room in Memphis for less than $15 a month, confined his friendships to the people of that neighborhood, and made his life exactly what it would have been had he never inherited a penny.

How to spend was something Edward J. Halley couldn't learn.

At his death he divided $240,000 among twelve people in Memphis, and gave $70,000 to St. Peter's Orphan asylum. This will was contested, but was upheld by a recent decision of the civil court of appeals at Jackson, Miss.
